STATE'S BALKY SLOT WITNESS SENT TO JAIL

Rockola, Still Mum, Gets 6 Months.

David C. Rockola went to jail yesterday rather than tell the jury in the slot machine conspiracy trial the story on which the grand jury indicted the 21 defendants, including Dr. William H. Reid, formerly of Mayor Thompson's cabinet, six police captains, and fourteen others.

Judge John P. McGoorty sentenced Rockola to six months in jail when he again refused to testify after he had been given complete immunity from procecution, and could no longer fall back on his constitutional right to refuse on the ground that he might incriminate himself.

State Believed Beaten.

As the state's star but refractory witness was taken from the stand and led to a cell in the county jail he was believed to have taken the prosecution's hopes of obtaining convictions. For Assistant State's Attorney Henry Ayers, heading the state's forces in the trial, had played his last card and had failed to compel Rockola to give the jury his testimony.

The day's trial session that led up to Rockola's sentence and an adjournment until 10 o'clock this morning was one of legal argument, during which defense attorneys charged the state's attorneys with attempted intimidation, and Judge McGoorty severely criticized State's Attorney Swanson's assistants.

Judge Rebukes Prosecutor.

Mr. Ayers was accused of giving out statements that he would seek perjury indictments against Rockola and William Keeney, another rather unwilling state's witness. He admitted he gave the newspapers the information and that aroused the judge.

"I do not approve of the state's attorney telling the world what he is planning to do," Judge McGoorty said. "I believe that it is contrary to the administration of public justice. Also, it is unethical for the state's attorney's office to attempt to intimidate witnesses in this way.

"It would be well for the state's attorney to follow the example set by the federal prosecutors and do more work and less talking. Action is more important than talk."

Asks Immunity for Rockola.

The controversy that led to the contempt sentence for Rockola was started when the court took up a petition of Mr. Ayers seeking to have the court force Rockola to testify. The prosecutor wanted the court to grant the witness complete immunity from prosecution, so that he could put Rockola back on the stand in the position of having no constitutional right to refuse to answer.

Judge McGoorty informed Mr. Ayers that he could do this only if the prosecutor would agree to drop the last three of the four counts in the indictments, that under the law he could do it only under a charge of bribery.

Defense Takes Up Argument.

Defense Attorney Benedict J. Short started to point out that if the other charges were dropped the "conspiracy to take bribes" charge—then the only one remaining—would be under the common law null and void against any of the defendants.

"Under the common law, your honor," Mr. Short said, "only judges and members of parliament—here members of legislatures or congress—may be charged with taking bribes."

Judge McGoorty would not rule on Mr. Short's matter, and it was dropped while Prosecutor Ayers during the noon recess of court, decided whether to drop the last counts in the indictments. Short apparently had injected his reading of the law merely as strategy, but he indicated that he may return to it today.

Rockola Put on Stand.

Rockola was placed on the stand as soon as Ayers had nolle prossed the last three counts against the defendants. He admitted that he testified in fall before the April grand jury. Then Ayers asked Rockola whether he knew James Neal [High Pockets] O'Brien, one of the alleged important figures in the conspiracy case, who has never been apprehended.

Rockola thought long, then made his reply. "Yes," he said, "but only by reputation."

Q.—How long did you know him?

Q.—Did you ever, between Dec. 1,

EXPLORER BACK AT BASE SAFE; SEES NEW LAND

Takes Sky Photos of Virgin Areas.

BULLETIN.

New York, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The New York Times, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and newspapers affiliated with them in publishing reports from Commander Richard E. Byrd's expedition announce that Commander Byrd has safely returned to his base, Little America, after a successful flight across the south pole in which he surveyed much adjacent territory. The flight was without mishap and everything worked well.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—After being informed tonight of Commander Byrd's successful flight to the south pole and back to the base at Little America, President Hoover gave to the New York Times the following message of congratulations on behalf of himself and the American people, to be transmitted by radio to Commander Byrd at Little America:

"Commander Richard E. Byrd, Little America: I know that I speak for the American people when I express their universal pleasure at your successful flight over the south pole. We are proud of your courage and your leadership. We are glad of proof that the spirit of great adventure still lives. Our thoughts of appreciation include also your companions in the flight and your colleagues, whose careful and devoted preparation have contributed to your great success.

"HERBERT HOOVER."

Mrs. Byrd "Rejoices."

Boston, Mass., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Mrs. Richard E. Byrd, when informed of her husband's successful flight over the south pole, would say only that she "rejoiced" in her husband's safe return.

OVER BOTH POLES.

Commander Byrd's flight across the south pole has made him the first man in history to fly across both the earth's poles. Commander Byrd was accompanied on his flight today by three companions: Bernt Balchen, pilot; Harold I. June, radio operator, and Capt. Ashley C. McKinley, aerial photographer.

In May, 1926, in the trimotored Fokker airplane, the Josephine Ford, commander Byrd flew from King's Bay, Spitzbergen, across the north pole and back.

That springtime flight required a total of 15 hours and 30 minutes and the round trip covered 1,600 miles. In addition to being the first to fly across the north pole, Byrd was also the first man to fly over it in a heavier than air machine. On that historic flight his pilot was Floyd Bennett, who died on April 25, 1928, while attempting to rescue the crew of the trans-Atlantic plane Bremen from Greenly island.

Third to Reach Pole.

The flight across the south pole, begun yesterday, was the first attempt Byrd had made to fly to the pole, although previously he had used airplanes in flights from his base at Little America in laying sub-bases on the route to the pole and in exploration trips. It is estimated Byrd flew about 1,000 miles to reach the pole.

He was the third man to reach the south pole. The first was Roald Amundsen, a Norwegian, who reached it on Dec. 14, 1911. A few days later he was followed by Capt. Robert F. Scott, British explorer. Both of them used overland methods of travel. Amundsen disappeared and never was found last year while on a rescue flight to the Italian dirigible Italia in the arctic.

Balchen Flew Atlantic.

Balchen also was pilot on the commander's trans-Atlantic flight of June 29, 1927. With Bert Acosta and Floyd Bennett, they flew the monoplane America from Roosevelt Field, N. Y., to Ver-Sur-Mer, France. Balchen, chief pilot of the expedition, is a native of Norway and has had extensive experience piloting planes under polar flying conditions.

June, the radio operator, is a petty officer and pilot in the navy and was granted a leave of absence to accompany the expedition. He was chief engineer in the famous "billion dollar crew" of the Vanderbilt yacht during the war.

Capt. McKinley of St. Louis, Mo., the photographer on the flight, served from 1917 to 1926 in the United States army corps.

LOESCH HANDS IN HIS RESIGNATION AS PROSECUTOR

Attorney Frank J. Loesch, the veteran who for more than a year has been battling the alliance between crime and politics, formally announced his resignation as a special assistant state's attorney yesterday after he had conferred with State's Attorney Swanson. The resignation will take effect Dec. 1.

Mr. Loesch refused to comment at this time, but said that he would write a letter of resignation to Prosecutor Swanson in which he would detail his work and also perhaps give his reason for resigning. What will be the fate of the prosecution of the sanitary district cases, which we originated by Loesch and his assistants, he refused to discuss.

Mr. Loesch in announcing his resignation said that he considers it "necessary for all interests to work together for the suppression of the alliance of crime and politics."

The recent stormy trial of Lieut. Phillip Carroll and his detective bureau squad for the murder of Octavius Granady was the final act of the special prosecutor. The cases were nolled last Friday, following much bickering between judge and prosecutors. Lieut. Carroll and his squad were ordered reinstated yesterday by Commissioner Russell. They will receive back pay.

Brother Jailed; Loop Jeweler Ends Own Life

Five minutes after he had been notified that his brother was in jail for pawning diamonds obtained on credit, Lester Feldstein, 28 years old, a manufacturing jeweler, committed suicide yesterday afternoon by shooting himself in the workroom of his shop on the tenth floor at 7 West Madison street.

The police believed that Feldstein, chose death in preference to the task of telling his mother, Mrs. Leo Feldstein, 1329 Winona avenue, of the plight of his brother, Milton, 32 years old, which involved the name of her dead husband's jewelry company.

Admits Pawning Jewels.

Milton was arrested at 5 o'clock yesterday in the Pittsfield building by Detective Sergeants William Knowles, Thomas Alcock, and Matthew Quilter on a charge of pawning approximately $15,000 in diamonds which he had obtained from diamond merchants on memorandum from his firm, Leo Feldstein & Sons. He admitted pawning the jewels to obtain money to pay other debts. He said he had been in straitened circumstances since early in October, but he had not been speculating in the stock market.

On his arrival at the detective bureau Milton asked permission to call his brother at the jewelry shop and told him of his troubles.

"You tell mother about it," Milton said to Lester, but Lester demurred.

Sergt. Knowles then took the telephone and advised Lester to call his mother, pointing out that she must learn of her son's arrest eventually.

"I can't tell mother," Lester said.

Get Report of Shooting.

Five minutes later the detective bureau received a report that there had been a shooting in Room 1001 at 7 West Madison street. A detective squad hurried there and found Lester lying on the floor of the workroom with a bullet wound in his right temple. Beside his body lay a revolver.

Leo Feldstein had conducted the jewelry business for more than 40 years and upon his death Mrs. Feldstein continued it before turning it over to her two sons.

Milton Feldstein was not informed of his brother's suicide and when his sister, Miss Lillian Feldstein visited him in his cell at the detective bureau he smiled and assured her that everything "would come out all right." He said that he needed only $3,500 to redeem the diamonds he had pawned and settle with the owners.

TWO STREET CARS CRASH HEAD ON; 1 DEAD; 7 INJURED

A motorman who stuck to his controls in a vain effort to avert a crash was killed last night and seven other persons were injured, three seriously, when two street cars collided head on at 88th street and Stony Island avenue. The dead man was Edward Mulligan, 41 years old, 7917 Maryland avenue, who was crushed in the wreckage of the platform on the southbound car when a northbound car leaped the rails and struck it at a high rate of speed.

Those seriously injured, all of whom are in the Jackson Park hospital, are:

George Hammil, 14 years old, 8808 Blackstone avenue.

Dr. Hugh J. Ovens, 9226 Merrill avenue, a dentist, went home after receiving treatment. The others injured slightly: C. H. Nelson, 9938 Parnell avenue, motorman on the northbound car; Mrs. Maglin Bukovitz, 1106 East 93d street; and Mrs. Alma Dakowitz, 9232 Chauncey street.

The front trucks of Nelson's car leaped from the rails just before it reached the southbound car and careened over the west tracks. Mulligan paused to apply the brakes and was crushed to death as the front platforms telescoped. There were only ten passengers on the southbound car and none on the other.

AUTO HITS TRAIN; BRAKEMAN FINDS HIS WIFE INJURED

Harry Anderson of South Chicago Heights, a brakeman on a Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad train, was given the surprise of his life late last night when he found his wife, whom he supposed to be at home, one of the injured in the crash of an automobile against his train which had stalled across the Lincoln highway, near Chicago Heigths. The driver of the automobile, George Newhius, 292 West 15th place, South Chicago Heights, and Mrs. Anderson were taken to St. James hospital, Chicago Heights, suffering from broken bones and other injuries.

The train had stopped because of a defective brake and the crew was engaged in repairing the broken mechanism when the automobile, going at high speed, crashed into the side of a car. Anderson heard the crash and, hurrying to the scene, found his wife and Newhius lying beside the road where they had been hurled by the impact. Mrs. Anderson is 23 years old and the mother of three children. Newhius is married and has four children.

Blast Wrecks U. S. Scientific Ship, 5 Others

TUTUILA, Samoa, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Dispatches from Apia, Samoa, tonight said the yacht Carnegie, nonmagnetic scientific vessel of the Carnegie institution of Washington, D. C., exploded and burned at Apia harbor at 1:20 p. m. today, causing the death of the captain, J. P. Ault.

Five other vessels moored near the Carnegie were said to have become ignited from the burning scientific craft and all were destroyed.

The explosion blew Capt. Ault into the water and he died while being taken to a hospital.

The Carnegie, an experimental cruiser, was built in 1909 without a scrap of iron or steel being used in its construction, from which came the name "nonmagnetic," a property said to give the vessel great value in scientific studies. It has sailed around the world several times, visiting the north and south polar regions in quest of scientific data on magnetism and atmospheric electricity.

The vessel left Washington in May, 1928, for a three year cruise. At that time Capt. Ault was accompanied by seventeen scientists. The Carnegie was equipped with the latest instruments for the study of oceanography, including new sounding devices, delicate instruments for measuring the contour of the ocean bed, and sensitive thermometers.

The Carnegie put into San Francisco July 29 of this year after a voyage from Yokohama. Among the discoveries announced then was the finding of two submarine mountain ranges off the coast of South America last February. One range, extending 10,000 feet above the ocean floor, was encountered off the coast of Ecuador and another off the Chilean coast.

Found Magnetic Pole Wabbling.

Definite proof was obtained, her master said then, that the north pole was "wobbling."

"While the change is comparatively slight," Capt. Ault said at the time, "our observations prove that the north magnetic pole, ordinarily regarded as constant by mariners, is changing."

It had been planned that the cruise would have ended in Washington in 1931.

2 SHOT IN LOOP DUEL AFTER FIST FIGHT IN STADIUM

Charles (Babe) Baron, 27 years old, a former prize fighter, and James Walsh, 28 years old, known to the police as a beer racketeer, were shot in a pistol battle last night at Randolph and Clark streets in the midst of the after-theater crowds. The police were told by witnesses that the shooting, in which several men participated, was the aftermath of a fist fight between Baron and Walsh at the boxing bouts in the Chicago Stadium.

Baron, who lives at 3437 Congress street, was taken to the Garfield Park hospital with a bullet through his chest. Walsh is at St. Luke's hospital with wounds in his abdomen and left hip. His condition was reported to be critical.

According to the witnesses, Baron quarreled with Walsh and a man known only as "Polack Joe" at the Stadium when he declared that Griffith had won the sixth round of his bout with Uzcudun. After the fight Walsh and his friend attacked Baron, breaking his nose.

Later Baron and a friend, Frankis Smith, encountered Walsh, "Polack Joe," and four others in front of Lindy's restaurant, 75 West Randolph street, bystanders said, and the shooting began. Flying bullets sent the Rialto crowds scattering as Walsh and Baron fell. Some of the shots broke windows in Henrici's restaurant, the Raklios restaurant, and the Klein shoe store.

The police found four pistols on the sidewalk and arrested Robert Ryan of the City Hall Square hotel. He denied taking part in the battle. Both Walsh and Baron also denied any part in the fight and declared they had never seen each other before. The police were seeking "Polack Joe."

Buenos Aires Swelters in First Hot Spell of Summer

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 28.—Contrasting with Chicago's cold wave, Buenos Aires experienced its first real hot spell today, when the thermometer passed 90 degrees Fahrenheit. Several cases of sunstroke were reported.

THOUSANDS ASK HELP; LAY SEVEN DEATHS TO COLD

Midwest Is Raked by Snowstorms.

Wilmetka	3	Melrose Park	—2
Wilmette	—3	Willow Springs	—2
Highland Park	2	Bellwood	3
Lake Forest	—3	Lyons	3

Chicago endured one of the coldest November days in its history yesterday and the thermometer was sliding last night to depths hitherto unplumbed for this month. The unofficial midnight reading was zero.

An infant and a hospital patient, exposed to the bitter northwest wind, perished. A family of four in a cottage and a motorist starting his car in a small garage were asphyxiated after shutting the icy air out of the poorly ventilated structures.

Destitute families besieged charity agencies; vagrants huddled the radiators of free lodging houses and clogged the corridors of police stations. The fire department was overwhelmed with alarms due to blazes caused by overstoked furnaces. A suburban police chief left his sick bed and braved pneumonia to rescue a woman from a blazing garage.

3 Below is Forecast.

The weather man, J. R. Lloyd, gave warning that a range of from 3 to 6 below zero was likely for the early morning hours. Not since Nov. 29, 1872, has the mercury fallen below zero in this month—the reading then being 2 below.

Mr. Lloyd predicted the sunshine and a veering of the wind to the southwest would bring about a speedy reaction. By noon, he said, the reading should be 20 degrees above zero, and he predicted that the mark would be maintained the remainder of the day and tonight. Tomorrow will find the mercury back within its normal range of 35 degrees, he promised.

Record Is Set.

From 1 o'clock yesterday morning until 9 last night, the period during which official records were available, the mercury ranged between 1 and 8 degrees, setting a mean temperature of 5 degrees. This, Mr. Lloyd said, was probably the lowest mean ever recorded on a November day in Chicago.

From the Rocky mountains to the Atlantic seaboard, the northern section of the nation was benumbed by the bitterest November cold speed in decades.

The frigid snap was most rigorous in the central states, but the pinch was felt in Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York, while communities as far south as Vicksburg, Miss., and Atlanta complained of unaccustomed temperatures near zero.

Family of Four Killed.

Clayton Van Wie, 30 years old; his 21 year old wife, and their two infant daughters were the victims of Chicago's first cold weather tragedy this season. A neighbor, Mrs. Veronica Warner, calling at the Van Wie cottage at 2106 North Mobile avenue, yesterday, found their bodies.

The Thanksgiving dinner was on the stove in which the fire had burned out. The doors and windows were chinked for warmth and a ventilating chimney above the stove had been stopped up against the draft. It was evident, police said, that the fire had consumed all the oxygen in the dwelling, leaving the inmates to suffocate from carbon monoxide gas.

The body of the fifth asphyxiation victim, Charles Levy, 50 years old, wealthy president of a lumber company bearing his name, was found yesterday by police in his single car garage in the company yard at 3300 Belmont avenue. Mr. Levy had not returned to his home at 444 Belmont avenue the previous night.

The searchers found the garage door closed tight. The engine was not running, but the ignition switch was turned on and the fuel tank was empty. Police deduced that Mr. Levy had closed the garage doors, started his engine, and died at the wheel as the exhaust pipe spouted poisonous fumes.

The body of Frank Murray, 50 years old, a patient at the Oak Forest infirmary, was discovered on the institution grounds. The cause of death was not determined, according to the infirmary officials, but his limbs were frozen stiff.

The infant victim of the cold was Caroline Samci, aged 6 months. She died in her mother's arms in her home, 1441 Cleveland avenue, Elmwood Park, after an automobile ride. Exposure brought on a heart attack from which the infant died, physicians said.

Police Chief Rescues Woman.

Police Chief Lester Tiffany of Lake Forest, in bed with influenza in his home at 700 Oakwood avenue, in the suburb, rushed outside in his pajamas with the temperature at 3 below when he heard screams in his garage.

Mrs. Paul Jensen, wife of a police sergeant who rents the chief's garage, set her husband's car afire while starting the engine and scorched her hands trying to extinguish it. The chief carried her into the house.

Between 9 a. m. and 9 p. m. the Chicago fire department answered 142 alarms, three-fourths of which were for blazes originating in overheated furnaces. In the most serious blaze five women and fifteen men were driven to the wind swept street from a three story rooming house at 538 North Dearborn street after an overheated furnace ignited the flooring a few inches above.

2,000 Needy Families Aided.

Since the first cold surge on Wednesday between 2,000 and 3,000 destitute families have received emergency supplies of food and fuel through the United Charities of Chicago, according to the assistant superintendent, Miss Amelia Sears, the daily average of requests being 50 greater than in the coldest weather last winter. Msgr. William A. Cummings, supervisor of the Associated Catholic Charities, said that organization had been similarly pressed by petitioners seeking relief.

Seven hundred homeless men were driven to seek shelter in the Des Plaines street, Maxwell street, and Warren avenue police stations.

More than 150 renters complained to the health department of insufficient heat yesterday. Health Commissioner Kegel's office mailed warnings of the provisions of the law to each landlord involved and Dr. Kegel announced that prosecution would be resorted to where the warnings went unheeded.

The cold wave, which disabled 2,800 autombiles in Chicago, according to estimates of the Chicago Motor club, was country wide.

Found Frozen in Field.

A middle aged vagrant, in whose pocket was found a pawn ticket issued to William Day, formerly of 1832 Roosevelt road, Chicago, was picked up in a cornfield near Fulton, Ia., his arms and legs frozen. He was in a hospital at Clinton, Ia., last night, his recovery doubtful.

The frozen body of Nick Smolinski, 45 years old, was found in a field near his home in Racine, Wis. His family said he ventured out without an overcoat on Thursday night. At Milwaukee Christ Bantrup, 35 years old, was saved from a similar death when another man heard his cries after he pitched off a street end and fell, disabled, on the lake shore 75 feet below.

Near La Porte, Ind., William Brickman, 55 years old, a peddler, stopped at the farmhouse of Silas Craig for warmth and shelter. He sat down to thaw his hands and toppled off the chair, dead.

2 Die In Ohio.

A blizzard, described as the severest since 1887, raged over Ohio, resulting in one death by freezing and another by fire. In Cleveland the body of Joseph Welch, 53 years old, was found behind a bill board, where he fell Thursday night, fifty feet from the shelter of his sister's home, which, apparently, he could not find in the storm. Near Xenia Mrs. Minerval Smith, a semi-invalid of 75 years, was burned to death in a fire caused by an overheated stove.

HUNDREDS LOAF ON COUNTY JOBS, BOARD IS TOLD

The life of a county building employé—judging from the stories told by county officials yesterday before the county commissioners—is an existence of virtual slavery.

These political jobholders work so hard, and such long hours, and so faithfully, their bosses said, that it would be a shame to cut their pay or lop off some of the jobs altogether.

The county statesmen were going fine with their pleas when J. L. Jacobs, county efficiency engineer, got up.

"All this talk we've heard hasn't meant a damn thing," he declared, with vehemence unusual for him. "These officials elected by the people to perform honest services come up here and try to bluff you with their high talk, while back in their offices hundreds of employés are just plain loafing."

Points Out Deadwood.

Jacobs went on to say that the pay roll of the county offices could be cut $1,250,000 or even $1,500,000 without the slightest effect on the services these officers perform for the public. Political deadwood on the county rolls should be culled out to give the honest employés room to work in, Jacobs said. He showed a list of 492 jobs which he believes are absolutely unnecessary.

Then Douglas Sutherland, executive secretary of the Civic federation, who had been listening all day, arose and asked the commissioners to give the public a chance to see how the county officers could get along on a cut rate basis. He complimented the county board as the one taxing body in the county which "at least is headed in the right way toward relieving the tax burden."

Cermak Defies Judges.

Finally President Cermak announced his defiance of the judges' committee of the Circuit court, which is considering how many employés are necessary to man the various fee offices of the county.

"If the judges refuse to accept our recommendations for retrenchment in these offices," Cermak said, "we are going to do something that was never done before. We shall disregard the recommendation of the judges. We won't eliminate pension funds for mothers and neglect the sick and old at county institutions to please the judges.

"We are threatened with mandamus proceedings if we refuse to follow the judges' recommendations. But I don't see how they can make us do a thing if we haven't got the money."

"Strong Letter" Revealed.

Mr. Sutherland revealed that his federation had addressed a letter to the judges' committee — a "very strong communication," he called it.

"I hope they are bearing in mind their grave responsibility to the taxpayers, which is just as great as yours in the county board," Sutherland said. "I hope they will arrive at a conclusion somewhat different from that indicated at their earlier hearings.

"But if the judges don't see fit to go along with the retrenchment plan, I believe you can put these jobs on a man month basis, paying them for ten or eleven months of the year."

"But they don't believe so," interjected President Cermak.

"Then you can show who is the real benefactor of the taxpayers," Sutherland said. "At least you can put the responsibility upon the judges."

Board of Review Criticized.

The board of review came in for a special lashing, after Meyer Cosman, chief clerk, asked for a delay in presenting the board's needs for the coming year.

"The board of review has had absolutely nothing to do for over a year, due to the fact that the assessors have been engaged in the reassessment all that time, and have sent no tax books to the reviewers," said Mr. Jacobs. "Yet they have spent $172,000 of the taxpayers' funds. When I asked Mr. Cosman how the money went, he replied that it was for 'odds and ends.' That was the best he could do."

Every county employé was awaiting anxiously the verdict of the board on salaries. President Cermak said last night that it seemed to him the best method of making a cut would be in appropriating salaries for all employés for an eleven month year, instead of cutting the rate.

Speed Is Necessary.

The board must pass the budget by next Thursday or Friday, so that borrowed funds may be made available for meeting the Christmas pay roll on Dec. 23. The commissioners last night began going over the salary items, one by one, and indicated they would meet this afternoon and evening, and Sunday also.

Among the county officials who appeared before the commissioners yesterday were County Clerk Sweitzer, John H. Passmore, clerk of the Criminal court; Sheriff John Traeger, Recorder Clayton Smith, and Charles Ringer, chairman of the board of assessors. They all asserted their employés now were working long hours, but with the exception of Ringer all the officials slipped in a promise to accept the eleven month year plan for their employés.

Ringer insisted that unless the demands of his office are met by the commissioners delays will result in getting out the tax bills. His attitude was resented by Commissioner William Busse.

Where the Trouble Lies.

"There would be no trouble at all about our paying your salary and mine if you and your associates on the board had made a decent and honest assessment in 1927," Busse declared. "And I want to say, too, that I never get huge sums for legal services or bet on horse races or run dog tracks."

"I haven't seen a race since I was a boy," Ringer replied.

"I think we ought to send out for a pair of boxing gloves and let Busse and Ringer mix it up," put in Commissioner John Gibson.

"The board of assessors," said Jacobs, "has sent a request for jobs up here that is damnable. They have asked for some jobs which are necessary, of course, but with it they ask you to swallow a raft of political stuff that is sickening."

Cutmore Tells Troubles.

Mr. Ringer had disappeared, so H. S. Cutmore, director of the reassessment, who had presented the assessors' recommendations, took up Jacobs' statement.

"Maybe it's time for plain speaking," Cutmore said. "Do any of you here think it is my duty, for example, to go into the office of one of the assessors and tell him to fire one of his secretaries who may not be earning her pay?"

"Well," said Commissioner Harry Newby, "they leave it to you to make recommendations. Why not?"

"I know a joke, too," Cutmore replied.

"That's the trouble with the assessors," Jacobs replied. "They have been using Cutmore, a man of great ability as an appraisal engineer, as a front for their political demands."

"Well, Mr. Cutmore," put in President Cermak, "will you sit down with Mr. Jacobs and agree upon the number of employés in the assessors' office?"

"I'll be glad to submit your request for curtailment to the assessors, and if they don't throw me out of the window I'll be back," replied Cutmore.

Department heads who have not yet appeared were instructed to be on hand this afternoon.

County Commissioner-City Treasurer Charles S. Peterson, criticized by Assessor Ringer for holding two public jobs, one netting him $7,500 a year from the county and the other $10,000 a year from the city, in an interview yesterday said the salary was immaterial to him, anyway, that he made $200,000 a year in his private business. He would turn back his $7,500 salary to the county if it wouldn't look like a grandstand play, the commissioner-treasurer said.

BYRD'S ROUTE OVER SOUTH POLE

reached the antarctic in December of last year. After various reconnaissance flights from his base, he and his party established winter quarters on the ice barrier about the antarctic continent. Only recently, with the coming of spring in that frozen territory, activity was resumed.

Flew Over Jagged Mountains.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—(AP)—The congratulations of the National Geographic society for his second polar achievement was sent by its president, Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, tonight by radio to Commander Byrd at his base in the antarctic. The society had counseled and coöperated with Byrd on this venture.

Dr. Grosvenor said the antarctic undertaking was faced with difficulties far different from those encountered by Commander Byrd in his flight to the north pole.

"In the little known land around the southernmost part of the earth, Commander Byrd was forced to navigate his plane over a jagged mountain chain with sentinel like peaks that rise anywhere from 10,000 to 15,000 feet," he said. "In contrast to the verdant summer vegetation of the arctic region and its Eskimo inhabitants, the south pole lands are mostly barren of plant life and without human inhabitants and even animals, due to its severe climate.

In Center of Ice Continent.

"The north pole is in an ocean, while the south pole is roughly in the center of what has come to be called the antarctic continent.

"In his north pole flight, Byrd flew from Spitzbergen over floating ice fields rising only a few feet above sea level, with here and there open leads of water; from the edge of the southern ice barrier he flew over one of the greatest ice fields in the world, an accumulation of ice rising 150 feet or more above the sea and as solid as land.

"There is nearly 400 miles of this ice barrier between Little America and the mountains which mark the first exposed land. It took Amundsen 27 days to cover this portion of his journey, the men traveling on skis and the sleds of provisions drawn by dogs."

May Raise Dispute.

Diplomats watched Commander Byrd's flight over the south pole, believing it might give rise to the question of title to lands in the ice locked antarctic. First to come, however, might be the work of the map makers, who visualize a chance to draw more lines upon the globe.

In aviation quarters Byrd's success means valuable knowledge in aeronautical construction, navigation and the capacities of ships to perform under severe conditions.

The National Gaographis society looked to Byrd's flight for further commendation of the sun compass Use of this instrument is credited to Byrd with a large share in the success of his north polar flight, and six were carried to the southern area. It was invented by the society's chief cartographer, Albert H. Bumstead.

JAIL STAR SLOT TRIAL WITNESS FOR CONTEMPT

Rockola Gets Six Months for Refusing to Testify.

1927, and May 11, 1928, have any conversation with O'Brien about the operation of slot machines? A. [After objections and repeated questions]—Yes.

Rockola Balks at Questions.

"Where and when was that and who was present?" Ayers asked, and Rockola then made it plain that he was going to refuse to testify for he replied, "Well, I don't recall just when or where it was."

There followed a number of questions, to which Rockola replied, "I can't recall." Finally, when he was asked whether he had paid O'Brien any money, he turned to the court.

"Your honor, what is all this leading up to?" he asked. Judge McGoorty looked sternly down on him. "The court directs you to answer," the judge said.

Rockola declared that he stood upon his constitutional right to refuse to answer.

The judge then informed him that he would be held in contempt if he persisted.

"Then, your honor, I still refuse to answer," Rockola replied, and the questioning went on.

Prosecutor Ayers asked Rockola the same set of questions concerning each of the police captains who are on trial—Patrick J. Collins, Dennis Malloy, Richard Gill, Michael Delaney, Michael Tobin, and Hugh McCarthy. Rockola in each instance made the same answers, and each time that the court directed him to answer he persisted in his refusal.

Judge Sentences Witness.

Judge McGoorty then sent the jury out and turned to Rockola, sitting in the witness chair.

"You," the judge said, "are largely the one who started the machinery of the law in motion on this case. Now, by your contumacious attitude, you may render it impossible for the state's attorney to proceed. It is now the duty of this court to find you guilty of contempt, and the court does so, sentencing you to six months in the county jail."

Attorneys for Rockola fought hard to have him admitted to bail while they perfected an appeal. Judge McGoorty said he didn't believe Rockola had the right of appeal.

"I do not wish to take any of his rights from this man," the court said, "but I will not release him until the Supreme court compels me to. He has been guilty of a gross contempt in open court. Is the law so helpless and are the courts so impotent that such persons may not be properly punished? No, I will not, of my own volition, admit him to bail."

SHIP TO SHORE PHONE MAKES DEBUT DEC. 8 ON LINER LEVIATHAN

New York, Nov. 29.—(Special.)—The first radio telephone to be installed on ocean liners for passengers will be thrown open to public use Dec. 8, when the United States liner Leviathan is a day out to sea, bound for Southampton.

The telephone on the White Star liner Majestic, next largest liner to the Leviathan.

It is expected that the successful operation of the ship-to-shore telephone will bring about it immediate installation on all the big liners.

Sailing from here Dec. 7, the Leviathan will carry a group of American Telephone and Telegraph officials, in addition to its usual passenger list. Arrangements have been made to hold the public demonstration when the Leviathan is a day out at sea. Newspaper men will be invited to the radio laboratories here to carry on conversations with those aboard the Leviathan and tell the story to the world of the latest adaptation of science to civilized convenience.

VATICAN TO PUSH FULL INQUIRY IN ATTACK ON BISHOP

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 29.—(AP)—A semi-official communique issued this afternoon said that the vatican authorities were determined that the fullest possible light should be shed on all phases of the attempted assassination of Bishop Johan Smit, former apostolic vicar of Norway, by Marguerite Gudum, a beautiful Swedish woman.

Denying statements in the local newspapers that the case would not be pressed because the woman was of infirm mind, the statement read: "The examination is proceeding and will continue for several days more."

The woman is being kept in a small apartment near the gendarmes' mess hall and takes exercise daily under the surveillance of two nuns and gendarmes.

BURGLARS STEAL $40,000 IN JEWELS AS FAMILY DINES

The theft of jewelry, valued at $40,000, from the home of Henry P. Kransz, 6027 Sheridan road, wealthy real estate dealer, on Wednesday evening while the family was at dinner, was revealed yesterday when the Summerdale police obtained an inventory of the loot. The police believed the burglars were the same ones who have committed several similar robberies in north side homes in recent months.

The burglars entered the house through a second story window which had been left open, using a ladder which they found on the premises. Mr. Kransz and his family and the servants were on the first floor and the robbery was not discovered until later in the evening. All the rooms on the second floor had been ransacked, but nothing besides the jewelry was taken.

Included in the loot were a platinum ring with a 4.46 carat diamond, valued at $10,000; a platinum brooch with a sapphire and 12 diamonds, $2,400; platinum earrings, $2,000; a platinum brooch, $800; diamond clasp, $1,500; diamond braclet, $1,200; platinum diamond brooch, $2,150; a ring with one 4½ carat diamond and 39 small diamonds, $5,700; a sapphire ring, $1,400; a diamond and emerald set bracelet, $10,600.

HOWELL INSISTS HE GAVE HOOVER DRY LAW FACTS

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 29.—(AP)—United States Senator R. B. Howell [Rep., Neb.] said here today that in answer to President Hoover's "virtual demand" for evidence of prohibition law violations in the national capital he has given facts obtained from the files of the prohibition enforcement office.

"I gave those facts Sept. 24 in the senate, but for some reason this data did not get much publicity," said the senator, who had laid the blame for alleged lack of prohibition enforcement in Washington to President Hoover.

"Even the Ohio Issue, an Anti-Saloon league publication," he added, "charged me with loose talking. This was in the face of the fact that I named a steamship that recently delivered in Baltimore, after traversing territorial waters, 1,444 quarts of liquor for use in Washington, named the trucking concern that transported the beverage liquor to Washington and the chauffeur and helper operating the van.

"I also furnished detailed evidence of violations in one of the great hotels there, obtained under official orders by two special dry agents and two policemen."

The senator said he had been refused permission to look at state department files on a quest of prohibition law information.

CHICAGO CLAIM FOR TAX REFUND REPORTED AWRY

City Attorneys Hurriedly Leave Capital.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Prospects for recovery by the city of Chicago of the $648,444 in income taxes paid by four of the Thompson real estate "experts" in 1921 and 1922 appeared more remote today following reports that something has happened in Chicago to hamper prosecution of the refund claims.

Three days ago Jay A. Schiller, special assistant corporation counsel, and Attorney Samuel P. Gurman, supposedly representing the city, appeared before James A. Miller, assistant general counsel for the bureau of internal revenue and presented a brief sustaining applications for the refunds. The two attorneys were to have made oral arguments today, but when, suddenly this afternoon, they left for Chicago, their departure gave rise to a rumor that the case, for some reason, had gone awry.

City Hall Offended.

Just what, if anything, occurred in Chicago to put a crimp in the activities of the two lawyers was not disclosed, but the presumption was that the city hall powers took offense at their brief, which labeled the "experts" as "burglars" and "embezzlers," and quoted Judge Friend's decree in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE suit, holding that Mayor Thompson, Michael J. Faherty, George F. Harding, and others conspired to defraud the city. Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Ettelson was reported to have written to Mr. Miller repudiating and declaring unauthoritative the statements in the brief.

Schiller and Gurman declined to discuss this theory, explaining that any statement would have to come from Mr. Ettelson.

Should it turn out that Mr. Ettelson had anything to do with a move to withdraw authority delegated to Schiller and Gurman, it is believed that an accounting may be demanded by the city council due to the fact that the city treasury is depleted and $648,000 would probably receive a welcome reception. Further, Mr. Schiller's employment was authorized by a council ordinance, and whether he is subject to orders from the corporation counsel or the city council is a debatable question.

Payments Are Listed.

The income tax payments which the city is seeking to recover are as follows:

Arthur S. Merigold, $164,222; Frank J. Mesce, $155,000; Ernest H. Lyons, $164,222, and Austin J. Lynch, $165,-000.

Mr. Schiller was selected to handle the case despite the fact that politically he had been at odds with the Thompson administration. Mr. Schiller was an assistant corporation counsel in the Dever régime and ran for alderman of the Fortieth ward last spring on the Democratic ticket.

Schiller, after engaging Gurman as his assistant, plunged into the case at once and drew up the 100 page brief, which he submitted here Wednesday.

Officers Termed Unworthy.

Contending that the four "experts" earned no taxable income from the city whatsoever and that "conspirators" could never be taxpayers," the brief urged the government to make the refunds. In emphasizing the city's claim, the brief painted the picture of municipal conditions under the former Thompson administration in vivid phraseology, closing with this appeal:

"The taxpayers of Chicago are in an unusual receptive position to appreciate the grant to the city of Chicago of any of its rights, even though doubtful. It has been infested with a group of faithless and unworthy public officers who gave the citizenship the benefit of none of its right; the favorable consideration in no case is in doubt. The integrity of the public mind has been shamefully violated."

Chicagoan to Become Parisian's Bride

MRS. GLADYS ROSENTHAL BYFIELD.

Will Wed in Europe

Mrs. Gladys Rosenthal Byfield, former wife of Ernest R. Byfield, president of the Hotel Sherman company, is to be married soon to Raymond Tartiere, a Parisian who spends most of his time in London, according to an announcement made yesterday by Mrs. Byfield's mother, Mrs. Bejamin J. Rosenthal of the Ambassador hotel. Mrs. Rosenthal said she had received a telephone message from her daughter in Paris informing her of the approaching marriage. The couple will visit Chicago upon their honeymoon.

Mr. Byfield obtained a divorce a year ago on the ground of desertion. He testified that Mrs. Byfield wanted to live in Europe while he preferred Chicago. The couple have two children, Ernest L. Jr., 14, and Hugh Ward, 7, who were awarded to the mother by the decree.

Mr. Byfield was married recently to Mrs. Kathryn Prest Rend.

VOLUNTEER DRY DOES SNOOPING ON PARTY LINE

Woman Gets Evidence on Another.

Muncie, Ind., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Telephone evidence, obtained by an inquisitive neighbor who listened in on that ancient snooping device, the "party line," was used here today in a liquor case against Mrs. Grace Hopping. Judge L. A. Guthrie of the Indiana Circuit court listened to the evidence and then placed the woman on probation for six months. Her husband is in jail for a like term for selling booze.

"I didn't miss a single conversation on that line for two months," testified Mrs. Ora Odle, wife of a farmer living close to the Hoppings. "And I know what went on.

"Sometimes it was the barber shop or the hotel or the filling station or even a private home that called up. Some of them asked for 'a red chicken' or 'half a black chicken' or something like that, but once in a while they'd come right out and say 'a pint' or 'a quart.'

Never Had Chickens.

"When they hung up I'd run to the window and always I'd see Mrs. Hopping come out, get into her car and drive off to town. But she never had any chickens with her."

Mrs. Odle identified her neighbor as the recipient of the "chicken calls" by the sound of her voice. She did not call the purchasers by name.

Technically, Mrs. Hopping was haled into court on a contempt action growing out of her alleged failure to padlock her home under an order issued three weeks ago when her husband went to jail. The padlock was issued under the stringent Indiana dry law. A week ago yesterday deputy sheriffs visited her home and found two pints of whisky and a jug of blackberry juice, which, it was presumed, was there for the purpose of making brandy.

Her Child in Court.

The woman protested the liquor was some officers had overlooked when they made the raid that sent her husband to jail weeks ago, but she was brought up for contempt notwithstanding. Her 3 year old girl was in court with her. Prosecuting Attorney Joe H. Davis presented the evidence.

In her testimony Mrs. Odle said she remembered many instances when the would be "chicken" purchaser would place an order and Mrs. Hopping would answer that she "would take care of him." Mrs. Odle was familiar with the ring of the Hopping place and left her work immediately when it sounded to lift the receiver quietly and listen while the conversation took place.

'MARRYING J. P.' OF CROWN POINT ASKED TO COURT

Sought When 2 Brides Ask Annulments.

Justice of the Peace Howard Kemp of Crown Point, Ind., who boasts of performing an average of 2,500 marriages a year, will appear before Superior Judge Joseph Sabath next Tuesday to explain why he officiated at two weddings in which the brides are seeking annulments. One of the brides, Beatrice May Kimmett, 28 years old, 1032 North Dearborn street testified she was so drunk she didn't remember her marriage to Henry Louis Debus last June, and the other, Mayme Underwood Fout 4350 Lake Park avenue, said she was only 14 years old when she was married a year ago.

"That's the man who is giving me a lot of business," Judge Sabath exclaimed when Miss Kimmett named Justice Kemp as the officiating justice. "I would like to meet him. He will find it to the best interests of his reputation to appear before me."

Justice Glad to Come.

The judge instructed his clerk, David Hartigan, to ask Justice Kemp to appear. The justice, a short, stout man with full ruddy cheeks and a bald head, who because of these characteristics jocularly refers to himself as "a modern Cupid" during marriages, acquiesced readily.

"I perform between 2,500 and 3,000 marriages a year," he said after learning of the cases before Judge Sabath. "I can't remember them all.

"But I don't marry any drunks. I'm sure of that. There's a steep flight of steps up to my office without railings. If they can get up those stairs—why, they're sober and I marry them."

Miss Kimmet testified that she was married last June 26 after a surprise birthday party given by a number of her friends. She said the party had lasted eight days and that during the celebration liquor flowed freely. Some one suggested that they have a marriage and a party of six journeyed to Crown Point.

Doesn't Remember Wedding.

"I don't remember the wedding at all," she continued. "I woke up the next day to find a strange man beating me in my room. When I became indignant he said he was my husband and had a right to beat me. I have never seen him since."

Judge Sabath continued the case until next Tuesday after Miss Kimmett's story was supported by a number of witnesses who had attended the party. The next case on the call was that of Mrs. Fout and brought up the justice's name a second time.

Mrs. Fout was married Nov. 24, 1928, to Robert Fout, 29 years old, a driver for the Greyhound bus lines. She told the judge that she is an eighth grade student and that she had met her husband while she was riding the bus line between Chicago and her sister's home in Michigan. Her husband proposed marriage on one of these trips. They eloped to Crown Point. She was deserted last June.

Judge Sabath granted her plea for an annulment on condition that she does not marry until she reaches her majority.

DORR AND O'BRIEN WIDOW PLEAD NOT GUILTY TO KILLING

Mrs. Genevieve O'Brien and Samuel Howard Dorr, insurance agent, said they were not guilty of the murder of William O'Brien, husband of Mrs. O'Brien, when they were called before the chief justice of the Criminal court yesterday to enter their pleas. The case was assigned to Judge Harry B. Miller for trial.

The defendants are charged with having conspired to kill O'Brien. Dorr shot and killed O'Brien in his own bedroom, according to his confession to the police. Mrs. O'Brien also made a confession.

Back Young Debt Plan, Begs New German Foreign Chief

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 29.—Dr. Julius Curtius made his maiden speech as foreign minister of Germany in the reichstag today. He outlined the policy of the German republic and energetically vowed to carry on the policy of international reconciliation of his predecessor, the late Dr. Gustav Stresemann.

The reichstag was to read for the first time today the so-called "liberty law" directed against the Young plan, which the Nationalist leader, Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, is trying to force on the government. Opposing Dr. Hugenberg's referendum against the Young plan, which is to take place on Dec. 22, Dr. Curtius eloquently denounced "the foolishness of asking the farmer or the worker whether he wants to pay or not."

Must Pay to Ascend.

"Naturally he does not want to pay," he said, "but the fact is that he must pay. Only through the loyal fulfillment of the obligations we have contracted and those we shall contract can we find a guarantee for the further ascent of our nation.

"The reichstag's refusal to vote for Dr. Hugenberg's anti-Young plan law does not necessarily mean the reichstag's acceptance of the Young plan. It will be up to the reichstag to approve of the plan after the final conference at The Hague.

"The German government, which accepted the Hague agreement in principle, is not blind to the burdens that will continue to weigh on the shoulders of Germany. But compared to the Dawes plan the Young plan provides a new political basis with a reduction of the burdens which are of advantage to German economics and the German people. Above all, after the final acceptance of the Young plan the final evacuation of the Rhineland will be achieved. In The Hague a definite date was set for the evacuation, and there is no doubt about the international validity of this data."

Majority Supports Cabinet.

In the name of the majority supporting the government, the Center Socialists, German People's party, Democrats, and Bavarian People's party, a Centrist member of the reichstag, Herr Esser protested against the policy of "sabotage and provocation preached by Dr. Hugenberg."

"We request the reichstag," he said, "to reject Dr. Hugenberg's law in full. We ask the government to continue negotiations on the Young plan with all energy and do everything for its final enforcement."

Dr. Hugenberg listened mouselike, hidden by big folios on his desk, while the entire house called for him to come up and defend his actions. He let the Hitlerite, Dr. Ernst Feder, defend his policy.

ITALIAN FAIR SEX SIGNS MONSTER 'DECENCY' APPEAL

ROME, Nov. 29.—War to death on short skirts was declared by Italy's women today. Fifty thousand of them in all parts of the kingdom signed a document which is to be presented to Queen Elena by Comtessa Anna Alighieri di Verona, lady in waiting to the queen.

The 50,000 signatures were contained in two huge albums in which the women solemnly promised to "war against indecent fashions as the sad instruments of incalculable individual and social disorders." Nearly every woman in Cremona signed the album, which makes it an overwhelming plebiscite for longer skirts and less transparent materials in that town.

N. CAROLINA RIOT JURY IS LOCKED UP FOR NIGHT

Marion, N. C., Nov. 29.—(AP)—The jury in the case of four men charged with rioting and resisting officers in connection with a strike in the Clinchfield mill village last Aug. 30 was locked up shortly after 10 o'clock tonight unable to reach a verdict in deliberations that started at 5:30 p. m.

The defendants are Alfred Hoffman, organizer of the United Textile Workers of America; Lawrence Hogan, Del Lewis and Wes Fowler.

DRY AGENTS SEIZE STILLS.

Prohibition raiders led by Deputy Administrator Charles H. Hurlburt seized three 100 gallon stills and arrested the operator, Alfred Pigrola, in the basement of a deserted house at 10633 Calhoun avenue last evening.

BASIC ILLINOIS INDUSTRIES FIND OUTLOOK IS GOOD

Line Up 1930 Prospects for Hoover Report.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Twenty representatives of leading Illinois industries laid it down yesterday that after studying various trade barometers they had reached the following conclusion: Business and industry in the middle west can reasonably expect that 1930 will be as good a year as 1929.

The conference was held at the Union League club with the purpose of giving a comprehensive view of conditions in Illinois to the delegates which the Illinois Manufacturers' association will send to the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the U. S. to be held in Washington next Thursday at the instance of President Hoover. The delegates selected are James D. Cunningham, president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association; James L. Donnelly, its vice president; Edward N. Hurley, Charles Piez, and George R. Meyercord.

Earning Power Unimpaired.

Basic groups of industries participated in the meeting. Several of them had made business surveys of their own. Declarations were made that they were going ahead with expansions and saw no reason in the business outlook to curtail their programs. They set forth that the slump in the stock market has simply served to let out the gas, and that the fall in stock quotations has not affected the earning power and the dividends of industries.

"Last week," said Mr. Cunningham, opening the session, "officers of the Manufacturers' association visited six downstate cities, Streator, Moline, Monmouth, Quincy, Springfield and Decatur. We made inquiries as to business conditions and found in no cases were there any complaints of falling off in trade, but on the contrary, a hopeful outlook.

"It led us to believe that business is going on as usual downstate, and that rural communities are less affected than the larger cities."

Merely a Speculative Slump.

"Our business is normal," said Samuel M. Hastings, of the Dayton Scale company, "This is not an industrial slump, but merely a speculative slump. The New York and Chicago stock exchanges do not constitute the United States. The purchasing power of the great agricultural districts is going on. I'm satisfied we'll be well out of the woods in ninety days."

E. L. McCarthy of Montgomery Ward & company, said his company is going ahead with a great expansion program.

"We have just finished a survey by our twelve research men and our nine branch managers throughout the country," he said, "and we were particularly impressed with the satisfactory and stable condition of the agricultural industry. The farmers have as much money on hand as they have had for several years.

"The survey showed that inventories were low and the country in satisfactory condition with the possible exception of certain textile industries.

Percentage Is Small.

"A relatively small number of people were affected by the stock market depression. The survey indicated from 8 to 10 per cent of the entire country and from 4 to 5 per cent mail order house customers were affected.

"We expect to proceed with our expansion to establish new stores. We have not relaxed our advertising program, and we are moderately optimistic over 1930 business. If we could get over the message that the quickest way to start a panic is for people to stop buying a great deal would be accomplished. There is no reason why people should stop buying as long as they are employed. Failure to produce goods creates unemployment. We feel there may be a moderate depression, not severe."

R. L. Fowler of Sears, Roebuck & Co. said: "Our six factories in Illinois show a 10 per cent increase over October of last year, and our budget for the first six months of 1930 appears conservative. It is based on a belief that business in 1930 will be equal to, if not ahead of, 1929."

Utility Industries Active.

The public utility group reported its surveys showed no reason why its great expansion program should be shortened. Both electricity and gas industries reiterated that they were going ahead with programs laid out long before the tumble in stocks and as if nothing had happened in the stock market.

"The electrical business has shown a gain of 6.7 per cent in kilowatt hours over a year ago," said J. F. Gilchrist of the Commonwealth Edison company. "We are going ahead with our expansion program without shortening it one bit. Our manufacturing and jobbing business is now running neck and neck with what it was a year ago."

"Our surveys have shown," said B. J. Mullaney of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, "that there is no reason why we should stop our expansion program. Our latest report for the first nine months of 1929 shows a 9 per cent increase over 1928."

"Building is apparently to experience an increase," said W. S. Bennet of the Edward Hines Lumber company. "There will now be more money available for real estate, and building, which has fallen off, should see a growth of activities beginning in February."

Low Inventories a Factor.

A favorable situation existing in low inventories was discussed at some length. There is much less stuff on the shelves of country merchants than in 1920, much less raw materials and goods in process and finished products on hand in the manufacturing plants in proportion of volume of sales than in 1920. Improved transportation has had much to do with this, as the country retailer who orders goods now gets them in a day or two by truck express, and increased freight speed on the railroads has reduced the amount of materials kept in the factories.

It was pointed out that there is no overaccumulation of high priced goods on the shelves as in 1920, and this was rated as a stabilizing factor for industries.

Survey Is Made.

The Illinois Manufacturers' association has compiled data in inventories from a questionnaire sent to its membership in all industrial groups. It shows the percentage of raw materials on hand in respect to annual sales is only about one-half what it was in 1920. Mr. Meyercord presented the tabulation which is believed to be fairly representative of the country as a whole. The tabulation follows, the first two columns of numerals showing the percentages of new materials on hand in various basis industries, in proportion to the volume of annual sales, and the last two columns show the percentages of total inventories compared with annual sales:

Iron, steel	7.97	3.35	12.83	11.56
Food	7.76	4.23	9.40	7.13
Metal	11.00	5.37	27.49	15.91
Machinery	19.00	9.51	26.54	19.67
Lumber	24.37	14.37	27.37	17.31
Printing	7.40	4.37	15.76	13.49
Clothing	12.20	3.20	19.04	13.71
Electrical	8.23	3.08	26.86	14.08
Chemical	4.31	0.56	15.51	5.45
Miscellaneous	11.00	6.45	21.91	13.85
Average	11.40	5.46	20.20	13.23

"These are significant figures," said Mr. Meyercord, "In many lines the so called hand to mouth buying of recent years, has greatly improved the situation as regards inventories on hand.

"I've got some more significant figures. As an example of the strong financial condition of American corporations they show the declining portion of outstanding securities represented by funded debts. It is demonstrated by the steady increase of bonds called for redemption before date of maturity. In 1930 bonds called in before their maturity amounted to $134,000,000. In 1928 they amounted to $1,842,000,000. Business enterprises are being financed more generally by stock issues. Dividends on stocks in 1929 have amounted to $2,541,000,000."

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Holbrook Blinn, the actor, who died June 24, 1928, left an estate of $80,128 gross and $50,577 net, according to a transfer tax appraisal filed today. Mrs. Ruth Benson Blinn, the widow, of Croton-on-Hudson, receives the entire estate, valued at $51,525. This included Mr. Blinn's interest in his home, Journey's End, in Yorktown.

BAR COMMITTEE AWAITS CALL FOR INQUIRY ON DAVID

The Chicago Bar association marked time yesterday on its proposed investigation into the judicial conduct of Judge Joseph B. David, who presided over the stormy trial of Lieut. Phillip Carroll and his detective bureau squad for the murder of Octavius Granady, which ended Wednesday when Special Prosecutor Frank J. Loesch entered a nol pros.

Charles O. Loucks, chairman of the judiciary committee, said he would call a meeting, probably next Tuesday, if the board of managers asks an inquiry. No official request was made yesterday.

President Francis X. Busch refused to make any comment other than the investigation was an association matter and that he was not at liberty to discuss it. Judge David said that he has no objection to an investigation.

SCHIRESON SUED BY WOMAN FOR SCARRING FACE

Asks $25,000; Tells of "Beauty" Operation.

Miss Yvonne Harmon of Madison, Wis., suffered mutilation at the hands of Dr. Henry J. Schireson, "beauty surgeon," according to charges in her suit, filed in the Superior court yesterday, in which she asks $25,000 damages from Schireson.

The declaration in Miss Harmon's suit, prepared by Attorney Louis L. Piben and the law firm of Socrates A. Davis, declares that she had heard Dr. Schireson's claims as a beauty surgeon and consulted him about a slight defect in her nose. Not until she read of the action instituted before the state board by First Assistant Attorney General Harry A. Ash, seeking to revoke Schireson's license to practice on the ground of malpractice and fraud, did Miss Harmon learn of Schireson's true reputation, she stated.

Able to Fix Nose.

Schireson, according to Miss Harmon's suit, declared he would make over her nose in "symmetry with her other features," and boasted that he had performed wonders with many famous patients. Schireson told her, the suit states, "that he had re-created the features of Mary Pickford, who was at that time 46 years old, and that as a consequence of such re-creation the defendant (Schireson) had caused the said Mary Pickford to have the appearance of a girl 19 years old."

She has since learned these claims were utterly false, Miss Harmon declared in her suit, but upon hearing the quack's promises she agreed to the operation. Schireson declared he would remold her nose by transplanting living tissue to it, but, instead of that, the suit charges, Schireson injected a quantity of "plastine," a form of paraffin, under the skin with a hypodermic needle.

Soon after the operation a large lump appeared in her forehead and she fell victim to violent headaches, Miss Harmon relates. Going back to Schireson, she permitted him to operate on her forehead, and thereafter he repeatedly cut into her forehead, removing the plastine which he had first injected. The operations left a large, unsightly scar on her face, Miss Harmon says.

After the last operation, the suit relates, a deep depression appeared in the center of Miss Harmon's forehead with livid scars.

Chorus Girl Asks $100,000 for Breach of Promise

Patricia Moore, a chorus girl, now appearing in a loop show, yesterday filed that precipe of a $100,000 breach of promise suit against William N. Telgman, vice president of the Curtiss Candy company. Mr. Telgman is married. According to Miss Moore's attorney, Philip R. Davis, Telgman met her at a New York night club in June of 1928 and proposed marriage the following October. When she learned that he was already married he explained that he was about to get a divorce, but later refused to do so, the attorney said.

Australia Mining Row Is Settled by Wage Cut

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 29.—[U.P.]—A conference between mine owners today settled the labor dispute in the Newcastle coal fields, on the basis of a reduction of 12½ per cent in hewing rates and of 12 cents a day in wages. The mines will probably reopen on Dec. 12.

Auto Kills Woman

MISS FRANCES NICHOLAS.

Miss Frances Nicholas, 19 year old Northwestern university student, and daughter of E. V. Nicholas, an oil man living at 1604 Hinman avenue, Evanston, was exonerated by a coroner's jury yesterday investigating the death of Miss Flora Ross Thompson, 50 years old, a private secretary living at the Drake hotel. Miss Thompson was fatally injured Thursday night when she was struck by an automobile driven by Miss Nicholas at Lake Shore drive and North avenue.

Miss Evelyn Smith of Ottawa, Kas., and Louis Talmage, 210 East Pearson street, companions of Miss Nicholas, testified that she had swerved her automobile in an attempt to avoid striking Miss Thompson, who appeared suddenly in the path of the car. Miss Nicholas said she did not see the woman until she was eight feet from the car.

An unidentified woman was injured, probably fatally, when she was struck by an automobile yesterday in front of 3600 Fullerton avenue. She was taken to the Belmont hospital. The driver, Herbert Scheffner, 6065 Navarre avenue, assistant cashier of the Kimball Trust and Savings bank, was not held.

With no deaths reported yesterday, the 1929 Cook county motor toll remained at 904.

LABOR DISPUTE THREATENS TIEUP OF BIG BUILDING

Jurisdictional strife between the steamfitters and machinery movers is threatening to halt construction work on the Merchandise Mart at Wells street and the river, the largest building of its kind in the world. Builders say the machinery movers, headed by Mike Artery, lay claim to work that has been done for years by steamfitters. Patrick F. Sullivan, head of the Building Trades council, has been trying to iron out the claims of the two groups. It is expected some settlement will be reached before the controversy will impede construction. The mart is a $30,000,000 edifice and is supplying employment to hundreds of building workers.

BOY, 4, DIES OF SCALDS.

Spurgeon Haynes, 4 years old, colored, who was scalded on Wednesday when he upset a kettle of boiling water in his home at 255 South Sangamon strete, died yesterday at the county hospital.

PAULEY SLAYING AND SUICIDE LAID TO DERANGEMENT

Jewels and Stocks Found in Hotel Apartment.

Jewelry valued at close to $40,000 as found last night in the apartment of the Ambassador East hotel where on Thanksgiving afternoon James B. Pauley, wealthy coal merchant, killed his wife and himself. Friends of Mr. Pauley, sitting as a coroner's jury, decided yesterday that he was temporarily insane when he shot his wife and himself.

No evidence was presented of any stock market losses by Mr. Pauley, who was chairman of the board of directors of the Miami Coal company. Some of the witnesses testified that Pauley was undergoing monthly physical tests after an operation a year ago for stomach ulcers and removal of the gall bladder. But all statements agreed that he appeared to be in good health and in a cheerful mood almost to the hour of his death. Nothing was said of any infirmity of Mrs. Pauley, but it was recalled that Pauley said recently his wife was not well.

Finds Stock Certificates.

To offset one belief of friends of the Pauleys that they were in straitened financial circumstances, Coroner Bundeson displayed to the jury a sheaf of stock certificates found in Mrs. Pauley's desk. They consisted of 662 shares of Transcontinental Oil, 32 shares of United States Steel, 35 shares of Florida Land Trust, 5 shares of Hampton Springs Improvement company and 60 shares of Standard Oil of Indiana.

No attempt was made to search Mr. Pauley's desk or his private vault at the coal company's office yesterday. Public Administrator Coffin applied to Probate Judge Horner and was appointed administrator of the estates, but later Attorney Byron E. Bronston notified Coroner Bundesen that both Mr. and Mrs. Pauley had left wills naming the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company as executor.

Business Men on Jury.

The coroner had impaneled a jury of business men, some of whom were were acquainted with Pauley. They were George F. Getz, president of the Globe Coal company and member of the state boxing commission; Grant Pelton, a manufacturer residing at the South Shore Country club; William F. Bode, retired, 2608 Lake View avenue; L. W. Conover, 2300 Lincoln parkway, member of the live stock commission; George Tramel, 181 Lake Shore drive, who is in the insurance business, and J. W. Fowler, 1540 Lake Shore drive.

Mrs. Elinor Vorys of Columbus, O., a niece of Mrs. Pauley, furnished the family history of the dead couple. Her aunt was formerly Miss Elinor Ludlow of Springfield, O., niece of the late Gov. Asa Bushnell of Ohio, and was noted for her beauty, Mrs. Vorys said.

After the inquest it was agreed that representatives of the coroner, the public administrator, the executor and the hotel would go to the Pauley's rooms at the hotel and search for the jewels Mrs. Pauley was known to have owned. They were found and will be impounded by the coroner pending disposition by the Probate court.

RABBIT HUNTER KILLED.

Marion, Ill., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Carl B. Cavitt of Marion was shot and killed Thanksgiving afternoon while hunting rabbits south of here. Richard Huntley of Herrin fired at a rabbit as Cavitt stepped in front of his gun.

DRY RAIDS IN LOOP AREA NET AGENTS 2 TRUCKS OF LIQUOR

Raiding in and near the loop, E. C. Yellowley's dry agents fell upon six speakeasies and the Wabash grill, 517-19 South Wabash avenue, early last evening, arresting eleven men and making liquor seizures sufficient to call for two trucks to haul the contraband to the government warehouse.

On the basis of three "buys" made previously, the agents first called upon the Wabash grill and took Roy Jones, the manager, and another employé, Harold Spancer. Patrons eating in the place were not disturbed, but four barrels of beer on tap were trundled out.

One block north the drys burrowed through a narrow passage in a basement under the Lorraine hotel, 411 South Wabash avenue, arrested two men tending bar in the underground speakeasy and seized a quantity of whisky and beer. The largest seizure of the evening was obtained next in a secluded bar above the Roma restaurant, 117 North Clark street. The entire space in one truck was reserved for a great pile of whisky bottles and beer kegs. Walter Wilson was booked as proprietor.

A speakeasy at 12 West Lake street was visited, whisky seized, and two arrests made. The agents then doubled back to 427 South Clark street, where they found Raymond Arris tending a bar laden with two barrels of beer, a quantity of uncolored spirits and moonshine. At 1111 South Wabash three men were arrested and some liquor seized and at 339 South Wabash avenue George Cochrane and James P. Duffy were taken to jail and two dozen bottles of whisky placed upon the trucks.

M'GURN AND EIGHT OTHER POLICEMEN ARE REINSTATED

Capt. Charles McGurn and three policemen who served under him while he was in command at the Fillmore street station were reinstated in the police department yesterday after the police trial board had dismissed charges of neglect of duty placed against them. Similar charges against Lieut. James B. Kerr and four policement of the Des Plaines street station also were dismissed.

McGurn and his men were suspended by Commissioner Russell after Lieut. William V. Blaul of the state's attorney's office had raided an alleged gambling den at 3245 Grenshaw street. McGurn's men had raided the place several days before Blaul without detecting any evidence of gambling, the trial board was informed.

Charges against Kerr and the four other Des Plaines street policemen grew out of a raid by the state's attorney's police at 520 South Halsted street. Evidence was presented yesterday showing that those arrested in the raid had been dismissed in the Municipal court.

9 St. Louisans Held Up in a Garage by 3 Youths

St. Louis, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Nine persons were held up today in the office of William King and Associates, Inc., and the Associated Motor Terminals, a garage, by three young men who escaped with $769.

Evanston Has 5th Robbery in Block of Police Station

The fifth burglary within a block of the Evanston police station in the last ten days was reported last night by J. K. Patterson, owner of the Patterson Music store, 1565 Sherman avenue, who was robbed of $50 during the half hour in which the store was closed yesterday afternoon. The burglars jimmied a rear door and carried away the cash box a few minutes after the place was closed. Patterson discovered the theft when he returned to check over the day's receipts.

DAVIS' SINGING PROVES BOON TO TELEGRAPH LINES

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Secretary Davis' Welsh singing proclivities are netting the telegraph companies considerable money.

He sang in Welsh last night over the radio. At the White House cabinet meeting today he said apparently most of the 2,000,000 Welshmen in the United States heard him.

"And every mother's son of them sent me a telegram," he added.

WANZER ON MILK IS LIKE STERLING ON SILVER

Pioneers in the art of butter-making

IZAAK WANZER and his famous team of matched oxen, with which he hauled butter from the Fox River Valley District to market in the early fifties

SIDNEY WANZER & SONS Est. 1857

The art of making good butter has not changed through the years. Today, as in the past, good butter can be produced only where there is a careful selection of fine, sweet cream and a strict supervision over its preparation for churning.

It is significant that the Wanzer family has been identified with the making of the finest butter for three generations.

Izaak Wanzer, an elder brother of Sidney Wanzer, was one of the pioneers who helped make the Elgin district of the Fox River Valley famous for its butter. Early in the fifties he established butter factories all over this territory and even in those early days, Chicago was receiving this fine dairy product, much of it being brought into the city by teams of oxen.

Records show that later on, President Grant was supplied with a cask of Wanzer butter at the time of his first inaugural—a tribute to the craftsmanship of the Wanzer buttermakers.

Today Sidney Wanzer & Sons are still supplying Chicago with a butter of superlative quality. It is churned fresh every day from rich, sweet cream. You will like its distinctive and delicious flavor.

RECLAMATION IS PROVING COSTLY U. S. INVESTMENT

Annual Report Seems to Veil Some Facts.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Governmental investment in reclamation in far western arid areas continued to mount during the last year at a more rapid rate than reimbursements.

The annual report of the reclamation bureau of the interior department, made public today, shows that while settlers on irrigation projects during the fiscal year 1929 made construction payments to the government aggregating $4,387,813, there was expended for new construction $7,898,304. Payments by settlers for operation and maintenance totaled $1,920,500, which a little more than balanced expenditures for these purposes.

The report, which is signed by Dr. Elwood Mead, commissioner of reclamation, seeks to paint a rosy picture of reclamation development, stressing increased acreages and crop production and increased construction payments.

Shortcomings Veiled.

It omits the story of constantly lengthening periods for reimbursement, buries in a maze of figures losses charged off and glosses over conditions on a number of irrigation projects where only a handful of settlers have taken advantage of improvements for which the government has expended millions.

Under the program for the future as outlined in the report about $80,000,000 additional is to be expended for construction work during the next eight years.

Just when the government will get its money back on projects which under the original scheme were to pay for themselves in ten years, which period later was lengthened to twenty years and then to forty years, is left a mystery in the report.

According to the bureau's own figures as presented to the appropriations committee repayments in one project will not be completed before 2007, 103 years from the date of the first expenditures by the government.

Deferred accounts not yet due were figured on June 30, according to the report, as amounting to $152,754,416. Current accounts which were past due amounted to $1,915,450.

2,677,100 Acres Irrigated.

The area irrigated in the calendar year 1928, with water from government works was 2,677,100 acres, an increase of 149,995 acres over that of 1927. The area cropped was 2,681,270 acres. The total value of crops was $143,573,070, an increase of $10,365,860 over 1927.

Won $40,000 from Rothstein on Turn of Single Card, but He Didn't Collect

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—A swarthy, well dressed "speculator" from California, "Nigger Nate" Raymond, and Mrs. Marian Putnam, a fair skinned, gray haired widow from Asheville, N. C., today enlived the hitherto dull Rothstein murder trial. Both were witnesses for the state in its effort to convict George McManus for the murder of Arnold Rothstein, the gambler. Mrs. Putnam is said to be the state's star witness.

Raymond told his story of the famed stud poker and high card game. It is this game which the state contends furnished McManus with a motive for the killing of Rothstein, who lost upward of $360,000 on paper during the play, while McManus was losing $51,000 in cash. The state contends that McManus became suspicious that the play had been crooked, with Rothstein having had an "understanding" with one of the other players.

Tells of $500,000 Card Game.

"Nigger Nate" nonchalantly testified how he had cut the cards with Rothstein for $40,000. He said Rothstein cut himself a deuce and lost. Then Raymond explained that he had won $219,000 on paper in the $500,000 poker game, but never collected a cent of it.

Q.—What is your occupation? asked Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora. A.—Speculator.

Q.—You gamble, don't you? A.—If you call it such.

Raymond said that he had reached the apartment of James Meehan, at 161 West 54th street, where the big game was staged, at 4 a. m. on the Sunday it began. He remained until 6 p. m., when the play ended.

The stud game—it was simply that at the start—got "monotonous," said Raymond and he, for one, "wanted to quit." Thus, the stiff betting on the high card of deals began.

In telling of the various debts and plays, Raymond said that McManus had owed $15,000 at one stage to Rothstein. This debt, he added, had been transferred to a man called "Charley."

"I won in paper and I lost in cash," testified Raymond. "In all I won $219,000 in paper from Rothstein. In addition, I let him have $19,000 in cash. I gave him $11,820 at one time; later when I went to sleep on some chairs he shook me and said, 'Wake up Nate.' When I did so he asked me to let him have $5,000. I did.

Got Rothstein's I O U's.

"When the game was over I asked Rothstein for the money I had won, or for I O U's. I guess I made a faux pas. The others laughed at me and said, 'O, he's all right for it.' I was a stranger from the west and I didn't know. I never collected a quarter of the money."

Raymond disclosed that McManus had owed him $3,300 at the end of the play. The debt had been settled in cash. He was asked what had been the range of the bets placed on the high cards. He put it at between $1,500 and $3,000.

Q.—What were your bets with Rothstein? A.—O, there was one of $40,000.

Q.—A bet of $40,000 on a single card? A.—Yes; you see, he owed me $40,000 at that time. I was anxious to get to the baseball game. I was washing my face. Mr. Rothstein said to me, 'Will you give me a bet?' I said, sure. 'How about that $40,000 on the next card?' I said that I would take the bet. Rothstein took the cards from the dealer who had shuffled them. He asked if it would be all right to cut the cards. The cards had not been cut before in the game, but I said it would be all right for him to cut himself. He cut himself a deuce.

Q.—Did he win? A.—No, he lost.

Raymond testified that he and his wife had been guests of the Park Central the night Rothstein was wounded.

"Did you see the defendant at the hotel," asked Mr. Pecora.

"Never in my life," replied Raymond.

Terrible Look on His Face.

Mrs. Putnam, who had a room on the same floor of the Park Central hotel in November, 1928, when Rothstein was shot, testified she had seen a man in the corridor of the hotel holding his stomach and with a "terrible" look on his face, the night McManus is alleged to have killed Rothstein there.

On cross examination Attorney James D. C. Murray, for McManus, delved into the private affairs of Mrs. Putnam. Particularly he wanted to know why, if her husband died in 1913, she was registered at the Park Central hotel as "Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Putnam" and who "Mr. Putnam" might be.

"He is a friend of mine, a man to whom I am engaged to be married," she replied.

Mrs. Putnam, heralded as the state's "surprise witness," was asked by Assistant District Attorney George N. Brothers to tell what she saw and heard the night Rothstein was shot in the Central Park hotel and she turned her thin face to the jury and folded her hands, asparkle from four diamond rings. Quietly she told how she had heard a "crash" and had seen a man walking down a corridor on the third floor, leading from room 349.

Kept Mum for a Year.

She looked at the man's face. It bore the imprint of agony or anger. He had his hands clasped over his abdomen as he followed her down the carpeted passageway. Mrs. Putnam said she locked the door of her room and said nothing about the episode, even the following morning when she learned of the shooting.

On through the events of the evening Mr. Brothers led the witness. She told a straightforward story under the prosecutor's questioning.

Then James D. C. Murray, attorney for the defense, began his cross-examination.

Mrs. Putnam admitted that she had been registered at the Park Central with her fiancé at the time of the shooting.

She admitted she could not identify a photograph of Rothstein as a likeness of the man she had seen in the hall. She also said she was unable to identify McManus.

Mrs. Putnam said she had lied to County Judge McRae of Asheville and Assistant District Attorney P. Francis Marro last January when she denied she knew anything about the Rothstein case. She explained that she did not wish to be drawn into the limelight.

Mrs. Putnam's replies to questions put her as a Park Central hotel guest beginning with Oct. 30 and brought out that she had been assigned to room 320. This is at the extreme end of the hotel, away from McManus' suite.

Q.—Were you in the hotel on Sunday, Nov. 4, 1928? said Mr. Brothers. A.—Yes, all day.

Q.—That evening did you leave your room? A.—Yes.

Q.—When was that? A.—To the best of my knowledge and belief it was before 11 o'clock that night. I wanted to go downstairs to buy a magazine or some papers to read before I went to sleep. I left my room and instead of stopping at the elevators nearest to my room I walked down the long hall and to the other elevators. I waited for a car to come down. Then I heard voices, loud voices. I was all alone and was afraid the men might come out, so I turned to go back to my room. Then I heard a crash.

Q.—Did you distinguish any words when the loud voices were overheard? A.—Yes. "God damn," and then the crash.

Q.—Where were you when you heard these voices? A.—On the other side of the hotel, away from my room.

Where Noise Came From.

Q.—And from what place did the sound of the voices come? A.—From the lower end of the hall, from my right.

Q.—You say you heard a noise—will you describe it? A.—Well, it seemed as if some one had thrown something in temper.

Q.—Are you familiar with the sound of firearms? A.—Only as I have heard them in the theater. I can't say that it was a gun I heard. I looked back as I went along the hall. As I turned the corner of the hall leading to the end where my room was, I saw the man. He was bent over. I saw that his hands were on his front. He looked up and gave me a terrible look. His face was twisted into a knot. He was in agony or terribly angry.

I was already on my way back to my room.

Q.—What then? A.—Instead of stopping at the elevator near my room I decided to go to my room. And as I turned the key in my door I knew that he still was coming down the hall, although I did not look back.

Q.—Was he a man whom you knew? A.—No, sir.

75 Men, 14 Women Seized in Raid on Hand Book

A police squad under Lieut. William Hoffman yesterday arrested seventy-five men and fourteen women in a raid on an alleged hand book in a lodge hall at 306 East 43d street. Louis Silver, Edward Cohen, William Ryan, Toddy Stevens and Frank Devine were booked at the South State street police station as keepers of the alleged handbook.

CHILD SLAVERY IN LONDON BARED BY COMMONS BILL

M. P. Says Youngsters Work 14 Hours a Day.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 29. — A poignant story of child slavery in England was told in the house of commons today by the Rev. Robert Sorenson, Labor member for Leyton, a London working class district, when he introduced a bill for the protection of infants, children and young persons. The bill is chiefly devoted to rigorous control of conditions in the employment of adolescents.

Dr. Sorenson told the house that in his boyhood days he was an errand boy and that he still suffered from the effects of that employment.

Tells of Scrubbing Floors.

"When I left school I got a job in a factory near this house and had to work twelve hours daily," he said. "On Saturdays we were supposed to leave work at 1 o'clock, and well I remember the first Saturday heaving a sigh of relief as the hour of 1 approached, looking forward to fresh air and a game of football, only to be told by the foreman at 1 o'clock to get down on my knees—not to say prayers, but to scrub floors."

Dr. Sorenson told of the fate of the little van boys, only 15 per cent of whom, he said, grow up to be drivers. They often work thirteen and fourteen hours a day, he said.

He's Out for Revenge.

In London's luxurious hotels, he said, page boys work from 6 a. m. until 8 or 9 at night.

"This bill is my sweet revenge for the experience I went through," he said. "It is short, it is true, and I do not regret it. But it was 'little hell' while it lasted."

LIFE IN BALKANS CHEAP; LIBERTY IS ALL THAT COUNTS

Thousands Sacrificed in Macedonia.

BY ROBERT SAGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Nov. 29.—Known abroad principally as a race of cold blooded assassins, the Macedonians are in reality congenial idealists, who regard their own lives and those of their opponents as of little consequence in comparison to their ideal of freedom. A people without a country, they are perhaps the most fanatical nationalists in the world.

Whoever their nominal masters—Turks, Greeks, Bulgarians, Albanians, Serbs, Roumanians—they have never admitted domination. They have always been a law unto themselves, with the battle cry of "Liberty or death"—and thousands of them have already donated their lives as testimony to the sincerity of their slogan.

Melting Pot of Near East.

Macedonia is the melting pot of the near east. Its people are composed of Bulgarians, Turks, Greeks, Serbs, Roumanians, Albanians, Gypsies and Israelites. Their political beliefs are scattered in every direction and their faith is divided between Catholicism and Protestantism, Israel, and Islam. To trace their racial roots is almost impossible, so great has been their intermixture.

The hypothetical country of Macedonia—planted squarely in the center of the badly subdivided Balkans—presents the phenomenon of an invisible government, efficient, dauntless and far reaching in its power. It possesses its invisible ministers and functionaries, its invisible army with its officers and soldiers and its invisible secret service, with highly capable agents dispersed throughout the Balkans, strategically placed in the capitals of central and western Europe and even distributed here and there in the United States.

Two Propaganda Units.

There are two powerful propaganda organizations in Macedonia, the national committee of organizations of Macedonia emigrants in Bulgaria, and the famous interior revolutionary organization. The national committee, under the presidency of Dr. Konstantin Stanicheff, is a legal group and confines its activities to the dissemination of propaganda exposing the woes of the Macedonians and attempting to keep the question before the public.

It is the interior revolutionary organization, founded in 1893, which has been wielded by the Macedonians with such cunning and power that no one has ever been able to subdue them.

Long String of Killings.

The long string of shootings for which the revolutionaries have been responsible has earned them the reputation of being professional killers, but in order to understand their mentality it must be realized that scarcely a Macedonian family exists which has not given from one to half a dozen members to the cause.

For this reason the spirit of vengeance is bred deep in them. Within the law or without the law, peaceful appearing or avowedly hostile, they are all fundamentally united in a single aim—the creation of an autonomous Macedonia. The majority realize that they are fighting for a hopeless cause, but they have debts to settle and they hold human life cheap, and there is no likelihood of them putting away their guns until they have gained their end.

ROMANTIC LATINS STIRRED BY TRIAL OF 'MISS MEXICO'

Mobs Storm Court to See Murderess.

BY JOHN CORNYN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 29.—An army of curious men and women stormed the old convent prison of Belem today in an effort to gain attendance to the trial of Maria Teresa Landa de Vidal, who won the title of "Miss Mexico," and represented her nation in the Galveston 1928 beauty contest. Another army of police were stationed about the prison and in the adjoining streets in an effort to keep order.

Out of the 8,000 to 10,000 would be spectators of the trial only about 100 were allowed in the little courtroom where the young widow, still under age, is facing trial for the murder of her 37 year old husband, Gen. Moses Vidal, some two months ago. All court fans apparently were in favor of an acquittal for the girl. Even prominent daily newspapers here have come out flatfooted for her acquittal.

Fragile Looking Slayer.

As "Miss Mexico" appeared in court this morning, accompanied by her attorney, Jose Maria Lozano, the most famous criminal lawyer in Mexico, she looked more like a little schoolgirl than a woman who has been in the eyes of the public for the last 20 months. Although the suffering has weighed upon her she still has the grace and beauty of form which made a bigamist of Gen. Vidal and led to the tragedy which made Maria Teresa Landa a murderess.

The two widows left by Gen. Vidal sat so close together in court that they could have touched one another.

Wife No. 1 Testifies.

As the first wife, Maria Herejon, unfolded the story of the desertion of Gen. Vidal from the moment he came under the charm of "Miss Mexico," the latter never took her eyes off the witness.

Maria presents a curious complex. Professing undying love for the husband she murdered, she declared today that she would keep his memory green by never marrying again. In the next breath she justified the murder on the plea that Gen. Vidal had committed bigamy by marrying her and had outraged all the decencies of life. She expressed confidence that the jury would free her. If not she said she would commit suicide.

MacDonald to Ask King to Create More Labor Peers

CHINA AND RUSSIA AGREE ON PARLEY TO END DISPUTE

End of Manchurian War Appears on Horizon.

GENEVA, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The opening of direct negotiations by Nanking and Moscow over the Manchurian situation has rendered the reported Chinese appeal for intervention to the league of nations unnecessary for the time being.

Dr. Wu Kai-seng, permanent Chinese delegate to the league, received a telegram from his government tonight informing him that Russia and China had agreed to thrash out their dispute about the Chinese Eastern railway by direct negotiations.

Dr. Wu affirmed that the agreement was without any provisional conditions affecting the present status of the parties. He believed that the negotiations had already actually begun, although the message from Nanking did not state any time or place.

The message said that preliminary negotiations between Russia and Gov. Chang Hsueh-liang of Manchuria had been authorized by Nanking.

Moscow Sends New Note.

MOSCOW, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Acting Commissar of Foreign Affairs Litvinoff today handed the German ambassador a note for China saying that Gov. Chang Hsueh-liang of Manchuria already had agreed to the soviet terms for peaceful settlement of their conflict and that Nanking's offer of negotiation was, therefore, "superfluous," and only delaying settlement.

(The Russian note mentioned above was believed to be in reply to Nanking's note reported Thursday, in which China proposed a Sino-Russian joint commission to investigate the Manchurian situation or that both sides withdraw their troops 30 miles from the borders to await a settlement. Rejection of this proposal, China intimated, might mean war.)

Believe Settlement Near.

MUKDEN, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Despite denials and counterdenials of the negotiations reported to have been initiated by the Russian government and the Manchurian authorities, it is generally believed here tonight that settlement of the Chinese-Russian controversy is near.

Authoritative sources in close touch with Manchurian affairs said today that the Mukden authorities had not yet fully accepted Moscow's terms for settlement of the Chinese Eastern railway dispute.

The same source also said that the Nationalist government at Nanking was not a party to the preliminary telegraph discussion between Moscow and Mukden now proceeding.

Little Chance of Intervention.

TOKIO, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Edwin L. Neville, American chargé d'affaires, conferred today with Baron Shidehara, foreign minister of Japan. Although the nature of their conversation was not divulged, it was learned authoritatively that there was little chance of international action in the Chinese-soviet situation.

This is because of Japan's conviction that prospects of an early settlement between Manchuria and Russia makes intervention by the world powers unnecessary and undesirable. This conviction, it is understood, is shared in other capitals.

Information from Mukden asserts that Nanking has given Chang Hsueh-liang, governor of Manchuria, full power to negotiate a settlement of the controversy. A dispatch to the Japanese Rengo News agency from Mukden says the coming Sino-soviet parley will be conducted in the name of the Nanking government, but actually by Mukden, with Tsai-Yun-Sheng as chief negotiator.

Planes Resume Bombing.

HARBIN, Manchuria, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Soviet airplanes today were reported to have resumed bombardment of the town of Buchatu on the Chinese Eastern railway, 250 miles from the border. The bombs damaged the railway station and threw the inhabitants of the town into a panic. Many of them fled.

Soviet airplanes were reported to have flown over Tsitsihar, dropping a few bombs upon the city, which is 300 miles within Manchuria and 200 miles from Harbin, central city of Manchuria and one of its most important railroad junction points and trading centers.

S. R. McCORMICK IS INTERVIEWED BY TRIAL JUDGE

Guardianship Case Jurist Visits Estate.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Santa Barbara, Cal., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—A strange interview took place in the foothills prison estate of Stanley R. McCormick, 54 year old millionaire, near here late this afternoon when Superior Judge William D. Dehy suddenly adjourned court and visited McCormick to observe the latter's disputed mental status.

Upon his return after dusk, Judge Dehy's comment to newspaper men was that "Stanley McCormick acted much like any normal person would act, and carried on an intelligent conversation. Football games and motoring were discussed. It was a pleasant and rather matter of fact visit." The judge, however, declined to comment on any conclusions he had drawn about Mr. McCormick.

Two Issues Raised.

The judge has been asked to rule on these issues:

1. Hearing on petition by Harold F. McCormick and Mrs. Anita McCormick Blaine, to be continued in supervision of their disordered brother's course of treatment in order that they may retain Dr. Edward Kempf as Stanley McCormick's psychoanalyst and doctor in chief. This petition is opposed by Mrs. Stanley Katherine Dexter McCormick with a counter petition to remove her husband's brother and sister as supervisors of medical treatment, and to be empowered to discharge Dr. Kempf.

2. Secondly, Mrs. Stanley McCormick has a petition to remove Harold F. McCormick and Mrs. Blaine from a three cornered board of co-guardians of his $50,000,000 estate, and to retain the conservation of the vast estate in the wife's hands alone.

Interview Is Semi-Legal.

The interview at the estate was a semi-legal session, with eight attorneys, four for each side, court stenographers and other attachés from the courtroom in the background, along with Stanley McCormick's physicians.

Kenneth McKillip, head of Stanley McCormick's male nurses and his constant attendant since 1906, was on the witness stand when Judge Dehy adjourned court and paid his visit.

McKillip, a witness Wednesday for Harold F. McCormick and Mrs. Blaine, supplied a number of admissions under the cross-questioning of Newton D. Baker.

Ask About Condition.

Mr. Baker asked: "Will you compare Mr. McCormick as he is now, with him in 1926, before Dr. Kempf took charge? Is he as well now, or better, or worse?"

McKillip said, "We consider two sides, the mental and physical. As to the mental, I cannot see much change. As to the physical, I can see a softening out or leveling of the man's behavior, noticeably his attitude toward receiving visitors. He is not so tense. He used to be inclined to show off. That is, he used to make a rush at us, or a rough and tumble time of it to impress visitors. He does not do that much now."

Previously the witness had testified that Mr. McCormick had struck him several times, and had been accustomed to lash out with a blow at his nurses, "sometimes striking one with both his fists and his elbow."

Attorney Lawler, counsel for Harold McCormick and Mrs. Blaine, launched an immediate attack about the force of McKillip's conclusions when Lawler took the witness for redirect questioning on behalf of Dr. Kempf's employers.

Aviation Notes

Robert H. Gast, veteran flyer who is now piloting the Sikorsky amphibion of John D. Hertz, will arrive in Chicago from his home in Louisville today to make preparations for an extended southern flight of the Hertz plane. Gast expects to fly from here to Jacksonville, Fla., to meet Mr. Hertz the latter part of December and from there will fly to Miami, Fla., the first leg of a proposed flight around the Caribbean sea. The outlined 5,000 mile tour will take them over practically the same course followed by Col. Lindbergh in September when he inaugurated the United States air mail route from San Juan, Porto Rico, to Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana. The party bay fly into South America and return to America by way of Central America and Mexico.

Dr. Joseph R. von Hoffman-Ostenhof, director of the Austrian Air Traffic company, who is studying air line operations in this country, flew into Chicago yesterday and departed over the Stout Air Lines to Detroit. American development of night lighting for air routes especially interested him, he said.

A live sheep, brought here for entrance in the International Livestock show, was a passenger on a Stout Air lines passenger plane on its flight from Detroit to Chicago yesterday

CITY CAR FUND MILKED DRY OF CASH BY LOANS

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The construction of subways from the citys' traction fund—if ordered today—could not begin immediately.

The fund has $57,088,899, but little or no cash. It consists of securities and these are chiefly tax anticipation warrants. These warrants represent money the city has borrowed from the car fund to meet pay rolls and other operating expenses.

Treasury Cash Tied Up.

Theoretically there was $124,655,823 in the city treasury yesterday. Much of this cash was collected for a specific purpose, for which it is held in trust by the city. For example, $25,111,666 of the total represents cash obtained from the banks by the board of education with which to conduct the public schools. The board gave tax anticipation warrants to get that money and it cannot be borrowed without further crippling the schools.

Another $11,576,272 is cash collected to pay off bonds and interest due on Jan. 1. The city cannot borrow that sum, or any part of it, without defaulting on its bonds. There are other moneys of like kind, the total of which is $53,408,413. But of the $124,655,823 theoretically in the treasury only $52,450,967 is in cash. It follows that $957,446 of the cash which should not have been borrowed under the city's theory of operation has been lent by the city to itself.

$72,204,855 in Securities.

The result is that of the $124,655,823 there is an aggregate of $72,204,855 in securities, which is $15,115,000 more than the total in the transit fund.

This is the first time in 21 years that there has not been some cash in the car fund, if indeed it has been depleted completely.

A rumor was current yesterday that an appeal will be made to the Illinois commerce commission to force action on a settlement of the Chicago transportation problem. It is claimed that the commission can compel joint use of facilities and prescribe the conditions under which transfers shall be issued from one system to another.

JOLIET BRIDGE PROJECT GETS U. S. APPROVAL

State May Ask Bids on Five Structures.

Joliet, Ill., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—The task of building bridges on the deep waterway channel between Lockport and Utica was placed directly up to the state today when the war department approved plans for the Jefferson street bridge here.

In approving the plans, the war department demanded a double lift span instead of a single lift span as designed by the state, and made the clearance 9½ feet instead of 5 feet as the state had originally designed the structure.

Five bridges must be built in Joliet at a cost estimated at $2,500,000.

Approaches Must Be Changed.

A. S. Calkins, city engineer, was of the opinion today that the approval of the plans would not mean any change from the single water level between the Lockport lock and the Brand Road lock, as originally planned. He said that the raising of the bridge clearance from 5 feet to 9½ feet meant an elevation of 4½ feet for the center pier, which he said would necessitate some slight changes in the bridge approaches.

With the approval of the plans by the war department, the state department of purchases and construction is now in a position to advertise for bids on the structure.

$5,000,000 for Waterway.

The bridge project is one of the serious problems in the completion of the waterway here. The state will require at least $5,000,000 to complete the waterway.

The state might have sufficient funds to complete the channel work, but not enough to build all of the bridges required on the water course. Suggestion has been made that the channel work be turned over to the federal government and the bridge work be carried on by the state. Action toward obtaining a federal appropriation for the completion of the waterways will be taken when congress meets in December.

DEBT OF FOSHAY UTILITIES IS SET AT $10,500,000

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Involved business transactions extending over the North American continent were shown today in a preliminary report by Joseph Chapman, as receiver for the Public Utilities Consolidated corporation, a holding company for public utility properties.

The report was filed in the federal court here which appointed him as receiver for the W. B. Foshay company and its subsidiaries on Nov. 1. The preliminary check shows an indebtedness of $10,500,000 discovered thus far against the Utilities Consolidated corporation.

Many Utilities O. K.

Assets of the holding company include a claim of $6,000,000 against the W. B. Foshay company, the parent concern. This claim was said in the report to be "of somewhat doubtful value."

A substantial group of utilities, directly owned by the Consolidated corporation, are in good financial condition, the report says, and are well managed. On the other hand, several properties on which contracts of purchase had not been completed, hold an involved status at this time, according to the report.

Same Debts May Be Illegal.

Mr. Chapman's report says, in discussing the indebtedness of the W. B. Foshay company to the utilities holding concern:

"It may be an investigation of the affairs of the W. B. Foshay company will disclose that certain indebtedness of the company is illegal and unenforceable. If that should prove to be the case, a number of securities owned by the W. B. Foshay company and pledged as collateral security for such indebtedness would be released and made available for general creditors of that company, including the defendant."

Fat Man Walks Ten Miles

I don't care how fat you are or how much you hate to get out and walk a couple of miles.

If you will take one half a teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning for 30 days—

You will feel so good—so energetic and the urge for activity will be so great that you will immensely enjoy a daily walk of several miles—and lose fat.

Why will Kruschen Salts make this great change for the better in me—it is natural for you to ask.

Because Kruschen is a blend of the 6 vitalizing salts Nature says your body must have to keep every organ, gland and nerve in the body buoyantly healthy.

While you are losing fat you will be gaining in energy—in endurance—in ambition. Your skin will grow clearer and your eyes will sparkle with the good health that Kruschen brings.

Just try one 65c bottle of Kruschen Salts; it will last you 30 days. After you have taken one bottle the old arm chair won't hold you any more—you'll want to be up and doing—you'll enjoy work and active recreation and you'll sleep like a top.

You'll lose fat and probably live years longer. Get Kruschen at any live druggists in America.

BREAK GROUND FOR YACHT CLUB BUILDING TODAY

Ground breaking for the new $2,500,000 quarters of the Chicago Yacht club will be accomplished at 1:30 p. m. today when one of the flukes of a great navy anchor, pulled by a steam engine, will dig through a strip of earth at Monroe street and the lake and officially mark the beginning of construction.

The ceremony will be witnessed by members of the club, Rear Admiral Walter S. Crosley, commandant of Great Lakes, and his staff, and probably by the famed English yachtsman, Sir Thomas Lipton. Sir Thomas wired Secretary Richard G. Jones from New York yesterday saying he would fly here this morning if his health permitted. The new clubhouse should be ready for occupancy on Jan. 1, 1931.

The ground breaking comes after years of litigation during which several Michigan avenue corporations, including the Stevens Hotel company, attempted to have the then proposed new building declared illegal on the grounds that it would reduce the value of the opposing properties by obstructing their easement of the lake front.

MOTHER OF GIRL PASTOR ACCUSER TELLS OF AFFAIR

Parent Testifies Daughter Confided in Her.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rockford, Ill., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—A woman whose life was closely interwoven with that of the Methodist Episcopal church of Durand, Ill., who taught a Sunday school class on Sundays and went to midweek meetings of the Dorcas society, and whose husband was church janitor and a board member, told a court today that her daughter had confided in her that she had had an affair with the pastor of their church.

When Mrs. Mary E. Lamb, frail little woman with wrinkled cheeks, testified for the defense in the $50,000 slander suit brought by her former pastor, John A. Warren, against seven of his former parishioners, she was asked why she did not make a complaint to church authorities on behalf of her daughter, Hazel.

Her hands in their black silk gloves fluttered upward, then fell in her lap.

"On account of its being my daughter," she said faintly.

Girl's Evidence Used.

It was on the evidence of Hazel's statement, sworn to May 18, 1927 that Mr. Warren was ousted by his congregation the last part of that month and unfrocked the following October. He charged in his suit that Judd Van Hickle, Albert E. Swinson, George Fritz, Mrs. Sylvia Sodaman, Wallace and Edgar Best and Henry Graham with malicious intent procured the Lamb girl's statement to ruin his reputation and obtain his dismissal.

Charges against Mrs. Sodaman, who is superintendent of the primary department of the Sunday school and a member of the Dorcas society, and Wallace Best, farmer, were dismissed early today through a directed verdict. Direct evidence on both sides was complete late in the afternoon, and closing arguments will be given tomorrow.

Mrs. Lamb Questioned.

"When did you first know Mr. Warren?" R. K. Welsh, defense counsel, asked Mrs. Lamb.

She hestitated, then with an evident effort forced herself to reply.

"When he came to preach," she said; her voice barely audible.

A question put by defense counsel asking if it was a fact that Hazel's husband opposed her testifying, was objected to, and the objection sustained.

The mother told of her daughter's return home Jan. 14 about 9 o'clock. She had been working "at Mr. Warren's." About 7 o'clock the telephone rang. Mrs. Lamb picked up the receiver. A confusion of noise was heard, she said, and then she heard the operator saying, "There's Mrs. Lamb on the wire." No one answered. Half an hour later she called the parsonage and Mr. Warren said, "We'll talk to you later," she said.

"Mrs. Lamb, did Hazel talk to you when she came home, and did she tell you that she and Mr. Warren had been intimate?" defense counsel asked.

"She did," the woman said, her faint tones nevertheless distinct in the hush of the crowded courtroom.

As to her daughter's statement, she "made it herself sitting there at the dining room table," she said. Hazel married William Lathery in October and moved to St. Louis. She now is in Kansas City, her mother said, and her parents write to her in care of general delivery.

Lamb Is Witness.

N. E. Lamb, 79 and whitehaired, testified in a trembling high pitched voice that later in the day, Jan. 14, 1927, he had come home and his wife had met him at the door with the words, "There's trouble up at Warrens'."

Earlier in the day the five remaining defendants in the suit testified. As each in turn took the stand, the life of Durand, a town of 500 persons, stood out in bare relief. The quiet little town, proud of its new red brick Methodist church costing $30,000, the men who were the backbone of the community and pillars of the church, men who had lived hard lives and settled down to unaccustomed comfort in their later years—it was an unmistakable picture—in each life the church played an intimate part.

AL SMITH SUCCEEDS LATE J. J. RIORDAN AS TRUST COMPANY HEAD

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith was today elected chairman of the board of directors of the County Trust company, whose president, James J. Riordan, committed suicide following heavy losses in the stock market. Mr. Smith is vested with power of president of the company and eventually will head the company.

The following statement was issued by Mr. Smith at the bank following a meeting of the board of directors:

"At the meeting of the board of directors of the County Trust company, held at 4:30 Friday afternoon, Nov. 29, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith was elected chairman of the board of directors.

"The former governor has been a director of the County Trust company ever since his retirement from the governorship in January of this year. He will now take an active part in the management of the bank's affairs.

APPOINT SEVEN DAIRY ADVISERS TO FARM BOARD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Seven dairymen, creamery executives and officials of milk producers' cooperative organizations were named today as the dairy advisory commodity committee of the federal farm board. Among them was P. L. Betts of Chicago, president of the Chicago Equity Union exchange.

Others selected were Harry Hartke, Covington, Ky.; John Brandt, Litchfield, Minn.; Clifford E. Hough, Hartford, Conn.; George W. Slocum, Milton, Pa.; A. G. Ziebell, Marysville, Wash., and Emerson Ela, Madison, Wis., of the National Cheese Producers' Federation of Plymouth.

The farm board announced today that it had approved the application of the South Dakota Wheat Growers' association of Aberdeen, S. D., for a commodity loan not exceeding $1,000,000.

PRESSURE TOWARD THE WORLD COURT.

The persistence of American influences seeking to put the United States into the world court by one way or another is an enigmatical contradiction of sound American instinct and a violation of correct policy which expresses the instinct. In part it may reveal a groping for some machinery which will be automatically effective in controversies and in part a not admirable wish to conform with European demands and win a pretense of esteem in that manner.

It is a contrary desire to tie America up in bonds from which the historical urge of the American people, from earliest colonial days, has been to escape. Americans took flight from these associations and have regarded it as their peculiar good fortune that they were able to do so.

It is the illusion back of the desire that the world court will be or can be a judicial body. In truth it is merely an agency of dominant governments whose aggressiveness and acquisitiveness are not less now than at any other time. Self-interest is the first rule of these governments, to which no rational objection can be made providing it is not hidden behind altruistic pretense. Nothing in recent European history reveals a makeover of national purposes. Each nation has sought its advantages and has pressed them to the utmost, at times with perfect candor and at other times with dissimulation.

The world court represents these ambitions and designs and upon occasion it will serve them. Mussolini is not a mystery. His purposes are as plain as he can make them and the Italian judge in the world court must be as thoroughly nationalistic as Mussolini himself. The French judge will represent the same point of view as Poincare. Primo de Rivera, as Spanish dictator, has a court voice in the Spanish judge. And so it goes. The British judge could not reach a judicial decision remotely affecting a British interest adversely. The court is not a court, but an instrument of the most effective foreign offices when they can pool their interests or conciliate one demand with another.

The United States cannot join such an international group with any security or to any good purpose. Developments have made it the country against which combinations will be formed because it is regarded as inequitably possessed of more than a just share of the world's goods and good fortune. Other countries have not thought it advisable to threaten openly or to try to balance the account by aggressions, but they have united in endeavoring to bring the United States into agreements to which it is naturally alien. In these agreements it would be the hope that America could be used for purposes contrary to its own interests and manipulated into positions disadvantageous to it.

It is absurd for the United States to yield to such transparent stratagem and thus desert its good policy of avoiding contact with European affairs.

THE VOICE OF THE AMERICAN STEPPES.

We are indebted to a Kansas periodical for the information that the United States "will recognize Russia before long," probably within a year. This important piece of news has been withheld from the rest of the country, but is revealed first to the Kansans. The fact suggests that there may have been some wishful thinking on the American steppes.

It is a curious fact that much of the demand for recognition of Russia comes from Kansas and points west. Communism is a creed which is supposed to appeal chiefly to the industrial proletariat, but it is seldom that a spokesman for an industrial constituency regards it as politically expedient to advocate the resumption of our Russian relations. In Kansas the recognition of Russia is a political issue, and advocacy of it produces votes.

Why this should be we cannot be sure, but we are prepared to venture a guess. The Russian government is a tyranny. How tyrannous it is was suggested in a recent interview cabled by Donald Day from Riga. He quoted an American engineer who had had all he could stand of dictatorship in three years of residence as a technical expert in Russia. The communist régime, in the words of this engineer, "not only can fine, imprison, and execute, but also discharge a man from his position, confiscate his bread card, compel him to purchase at government stores, seize his living quarters, expel his children from the schools or exile him after confiscating his meager personal property and evicting his wife and children into the street."

Naturally such a régime will seem worthy of our support and even our emulation, once devoted to individualism and its liberties, but of late strangely indifferent to their heritage and misled by sentimentalists and false prophets of delusive reforms in backward areas of this country. Kansas, among other states, regrets that it has only one constitution with one bill of rights to give up for prohibition. Kansas regrets that the populous states of the Union have any voice in the government, however inadequate that voice may be. Kansas, thinking itself progressive, is reactionary by true American standards, and seems to have developed a sympathy for the Russian experiment in official tyranny.

THE RETIREMENT OF MR. LOESCH.

The termination of Mr. Loesch's gallant enlistment in the campaign against the plundering of criminals and politicans leaves this community without a successor. Mr. Loesch at 76 undertook to rescue Chicago from the thugs who had taken over the machinery of election, usurped the government, and who were looting it officially while their criminal associates were working without molestation. The true citizens were helpless. If Mr. Loesch hadn't assumed the leadership when he did another protagonist might have been discovered, but there was none other in sight then and there seems to be none now to carry on the fight which Mr. Loesch started.

Mr. Loesch confesses that he is not completely satisfied with the results which he has obtained. Measured in convictions and in severity of convictions, it is true that the city did not obtain full justice from the men who corrupted by fraud, violence, and murder the elections and the men who ravaged the public treasury after their election. But there were some convictions; enough, we believe, to inspire a fear of consequences at least among the smaller boodlers, whose operations are vital to the success of the leading conspirators. Above all—and this is Mr. Loesch's own estimate of his service—the elections since the frightful primary in April, 1928, have been honestly conducted. That is a tribute to the courage and devotion of Mr. Loesch, and that is his greatest conquest. This is not to overlook or disparage the service of Judge Jarecki, which has been another first rate contribution to election reforms. But the aggressive prosecutor's sometimes successful and sometimes apparently unproductive investigations and inquisitions have contributed formidably toward a restoration of the ballot box to the honest voters. With a greatly strengthened assurance of fair elections the good citizens have almost an equal opportunity to hold the government against their enemies.

The forces of good government must be dynamic. Mr. Loesch has brought us valuable reforms. His was the most difficult task, because he had to overcome the balance of power held by criminals and their political sponsors. He has brought strength to the defense of society, but without the conservation and increase of that strength by the perpetuation of the Loesch spirit the plunderers will claim supremacy. We have no man competent, aggressive, and willing to take the place of Mr. Loesch. We must find one or the services of Mr. Loesch soon will be negatived by the men who are constantly seeking an opportunity to steal the municipal government and destroy the prosecution.

BUREAUCRACY REBUKED.

The rebuke administered to federal bureaucracy by a United States Circuit Court of Appeals in the prosecution of officials of a joint stock land bank in Minnesota is an encouraging portent. We need evidence that federal courts do not regard it as a duty to support federal administrative policies and activities regardless of the rights guaranteed to the individual under the American system of ordered liberty.

One of the developments of politics and government in this republic which has given grave concern to every thoughtful friend of freedom is the growth of bureaucracy, with its probably inevitable concomitant of official intrigue and oppression. As a phase of this development the support of violent and unlawful action in the federal administration of the dry laws by the department of justice and in the federal courts has been conspicuous and alarming. But the evil is more inclusive, arising from the inherent character of the bureaucrat. It is a true perception of this danger that has brought about the demand for less government in business, and since government, under the pressure of dry bigotry, has thrust itself with impenitent violence farther into the private life, the demand for constitutional protection has become more urgent.

We are confident enough of understanding and of devotion to the American principles of ordered liberty remains to resist successfully these tendencies to aggrandizement of the state, the inordinate extension of its functions and powers, and the establishment of a bureaucratic tyranny in place of the carefully restricted government devised by the farseeing and deepseeing founders of the American constitution. But in this resistance we ought to be able to rely confidently upon the watchful and unflinching guardianship of the federal courts, whose chief duty is to support the constitution and the constitutional rights of the individuals. There has been nothing more ominous than the weaknesses revealed from time to time in the federal courts, including the highest, in the performance of this paramount duty, and we are glad to find a federal court of appeals fulfilling its duty and exerting its authority vigorously on behalf of the individual. Cooperation of the federal courts with either political pressure or official policy inconsistent with constitutional rights would be intolerable.

A SIGN OF RIVER INTEREST.

[Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.]

The tenders that will be asked soon for fifty steel barges each of 300 tons capacity by a Mississippi and Ohio river carrier is another indication that the revival of activity which was expected to follow the completion of the Ohio canalization is arriving. When the order is placed it will follow a commitment for five steel tow boats, each to cost $400,000, three to be built in Pittsburgh and two in Charleston, W. Va. Extensive activity of this nature, with a single concern intending to place several millions in money in freight carrying capacity, cannot but be filled with significance. The boats and barges will operate between Cincinnati and New Orleans. If Pittsburgh were to gain the order for some, if not all, of the barges it would be in accordance with recent experience in this market.

IT COULD BE PREVENTED.

MUCOUS colitis is a highly prevalent disorder. One physician reports having had an opportunity to study more than two hundred cases. Since it is a chronic disorder, lasting for years, and with no tendency to destroy life nor to completely disable, one case provides experience for several physicians and many other people. Since persons with mucous colitis have many symptoms and also a yen to talk about them, there is much dialogue on the subject. Should any one ever discover a short cut, a royal road to quick and easy recovery, there is ample machinery for spreading the good news. The disease has a good underground telegraph system. As matters now stand the way to cure which the doctors offer is long and rocky. It consists in persistent, rigid dieting and patient education out of a neurotic state. Each a different patience—a trying job.

Dr. M. A. Bridges diets cases of mucous colitis with what is known as a soft diet. Plenty of milk is given and foods in which milk is an important ingredient. He allows acidophilus milk and various other sour milks; cottage cheese, puddings, milk with fruit juice, well pureed vegetables, but preferably those with low starch content; fruit juices, but no raw fruits; few vegetables, and then only tender ones, those that have a minimum amount of fiber; oils and fats rather freely; tender meats, some bread, but not a great deal; a limited amount of starchy and sweet foods and none with much musk or fiber.

In almost every instance people with mucous colitis give a history of long neglected constipation. Therefore both diet and medicines are regulated with a view of overcoming the habit.

In Dr. Bridges' experience people with mucous colitis give a history of having taken purgatives promiscuously, tried out almost every kind of a diet, and experimented with internal baths. Most of them have found that taking saline purges made them worse and have discontinued them.

TEN INQUIRIES ABOUT BABY.

Mrs. M. G. writes:

1. I have a baby 23 months old. He weighs 24 pounds and 12 ounces. Is that weight right for him?
2. He gets up at 7:30 a. m. Should he have a morning nap or just an afternoon nap? He sleeps from 1 p. m. to 3:30 p. m. Is that enough rest for him?
3. He goes to bed again at 8 p. m.
4. He is very active. Will it weaken his heart if he is so active?
5. Would you advise having his heart examined to see if it is strong?
6. He eats nicely, drinks his milk and eats almost everything we do. I would like him to be a little stouter. He gains 4 ounces every week. Is that a good gain?
7. Should I give him cod liver oil?
8. How can I secure a book on training children by Watson or Thom, such as advised another mother?
9. He seems to have a film on his teeth. He has all of his teeth but the last four molars. When should he cut those?
10. What is a good solution to use to brush his teeth with? Should I use a baby brush or absorbent cotton?

REPLY.

1. 26½ pounds.
2 and 3. He is almost ready to omit the morning nap. Probably he would not sleep if you tried to make him, but try.
4. No.
5. No.
6. Yes.
7. Yes.
8. You can get a booklet on child training from the children's bureau, U. S. department of labor, Washington, D. C. You can buy the larger books in bookstores.
9. You refer to the teeth due at about 24 months of age. The next teeth after that are the permanent molars, which come at six years of age.
10. Use no solution except simple, clean water. Apply with cotton or soft cloth.

EAT PLENTY OF POTATOES.

A. B. H. writes: What causes uric acid and what can be done to cure it? What can one eat?

REPLY.

Eating plenty of vegetables, especially plenty of potatoes, is the best way to eliminate uric acid. The harm done by uric acid is a matter of speculation.

IN BLACK AND WHITE.

Beneath a blotch of bleak, tumultuous skies,
Distorted, dim, the winter landscape lies:
Dune phantoms, specter-haunted valleys, fetching
To far horizons, where, like giants stretching
Their tortured hands to heaven, Prometheus-wise,
Stark trees, in grim, fantastic profile, rise,—
In black and white—a futuristic etching.

The landscape lies, a thing of sullen doom,
No hint of life, no hope of life, revealing,
Till suddenly (a master stroke of gloom!),
Evil and ominous, comes weirdly stealing
From out the north, across the waste of snows,

My Friends and Felon Citizens—

Judge Louis Fitzhenry said if you see a felony (or smell one) you have to tell, or you're a felon yourself. Well, somebody presented us with a fruit cake for our Thanksgiving dinner. It looked suspicious, so of course we wouldn't eat it. Oh, the very idear. So we fed a piece to our little Welsh hound, Tylwyth Teg, and he staggered down the hall and socked his little playmate, another Sealyham, right in the snoot, and tried to stand on his head, and then gave the canine version of "For Heash a Jolly Good Felon."

Now, do we tell on the hound or on the kind friend who gave us the fruit cake? Sen. Brookhart, please write.

DICK BYRD was off for the South Pole yesterday. Which means, of course, that he'll get there or we don't know Dick Byrd. And when he's there we wish he would let us know if it's anything like as cold at the South Pole as it was on the Boul Mich yesterday. But, no, it couldn't be.

BEANS, SAYS I TO ANTONIO.

RHL: When me and Antonio and the burro walked outa Tombstone we was broke. But nobody had nothin on us, and all we has on the burro was one pack saddle, two empty coal oil cans, some mining tools, a piece of canvas and a diamond hitch. We passed a mountain and a mexicans dobie house. The mountain had nothin for the eye except horizon, but in the door of the mexicans wickiup was a red pig and a string of chili. . . . That was a nice pig we saw, says Antonio two hours later. It was, says I. Well, then we walked some more and comes upon a man in new laced boots who says his name was one E. Percival Jenks of Boston. E. P. sells copper stock certificates—and theres no harm in that if you dont think youre getting half interest in Anaconda when you buys. E. Percival, seein we was mining men of some perspicacity gives me an Antonio a contract to sink a shaft sixty feet in what he called the Back Bay Company—and so we forgets the red pig. . . . At sixty feet we will strike the mother load dontcha see, says he, and the common and preferred stock of the Back Bay corporation will then begin to soar. Now I dont know much about it but I guess thats what they calls the sore spot on the Boston commons. Well me and Antonio been bustin hard-rock in these parts with forty percent a long time, so we passes up opportunity a knockin at the door and tells E. Percival Wildcat of Boston we will take eight dollars the lineal descendant foot in United states money of the realm instead of fancy green certificates of the Back Bay institution, and we, the party of the second part, to furnish all embellishments, groceries, beans and a windlass. Allright. All hands subscribed and sworn, and the picks and drills bein duly deposed and sharpened we begins next day at paragraph one of said legal document, which was on the surface and pretty soft. We went good till the fifteen foot level when we comes to blue limestone, and the last of the grub which was beans for breakfast, and a light lunch of beans for lunch, and then at supper time a great big substancial meal of beans. That was about the time somebody put a round of shots in wall street and they comes to the original pleocene granite. Coincidental as it may seem, Percy Copperstocks disappeared from the mountain side, leaving nothin what looked like legal tender wherewith to restore our canned goods and enthusiasm. The situation was adamant and precarious. Antonio went to throwin rocks at rabbits in the mesquite brush, and I took to what philosophy I had garnered from lookin at the mountains and the stars and old newspapers so long. . . . Beans, says I to Antonio,—its nothin but beans beans beans—how would you like a roasted pig with a red apple in his mouth? O, si, señor, says Antonio, that would be good, señor, but where will me and you, señor, get the red apple? ORACLE.

THEY FOUND a prehistoric tooth out in Oklahoma that was five inches long and four inches wide. 'Snothin'! The last tooth we had pulled must have been fourteen inches long and nine inches wide and with a double hook on the end.

ONE SLUMP THAT HITS EVERYBODY

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 30, 1864.

NEW YORK.—The Tribune's Army of the Potomac correspondent says that an uninterrupted cannonade was kept up yesterday from Forts Davis, Hill, and Rice, which was vigorously responded to by the rebels.

NASHVILLE.—Rumors of all kinds are flying about concerning the military situation. The reports published in Louisville papers of heavy fighting near Columbia are unreliable. The rebels made an assault on our lines on Nov. 26 and were repulsed with some loss. There was only desultory skirmishing yesterday. We still hold Columbia and all our fortifications on the south side of Duck river are still in our hands, reports to the contrary notwithstanding. We have abandoned Shelbyville and the rebels occupy the town. It is probable the rebels will attempt to cut our communications with Chattanooga. We have received reinforcements, and whatever chances Hood originally may have had for a successful invasion of Tennessee are now sadly demolished.

NEW YORK.—The World's Baltimore letter says Gen. Lee has sent 20,000 men to Georgia to meet Gen. Sherman and filled their places by two divisions of Gen. Early's army. The writer claims rebel authority for saying there will soon be 40,000 men in Georgia to oppose Sherman.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—The official vote for President is now in and it shows 189,507 for Lincoln and 158,736 for McClellan, thus giving Lincoln a majority of 30,777.

CHICAGO.—The lecture of Bayard Taylor before the Young Men's association at Metropolitan hall was very largely attended.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 30, 1899.

LONDON.—A dispatch from Gen. Buller at Cape Town gives a report from Gen. Methuen at Modder river in which he states that on Nov. 28 he fought a desperate ten hour battle with the Boers, 8,000 strong, at that place, and drove them from their strongly entrenched position. A dispatch from Windsor says that Gen. Methuen reported to the queen as follows: "The battle was the bloodiest of the century. The British shelled the enemy out of the trenches, then charged. The result was terrible." No figures on the casualties are given.

CHICAGO.—Football will run a race for popularity with Thanksgiving turkey and cranberries today. In Chicago, Michigan and Wisconsin will battle this forenoon at League Baseball park, Lincoln and Polk streets, and in the afternoon Chicago and Brown will clash at Marshall field.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY.

NOVEMBER 30, 1919.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.—Truman H. Newberry, United States senator from Michigan, thirteen of his campaign lieutenants, and 126 lesser political lights were indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of election fraud, corruption, conspiracy and misuse of the mails. Two blanket indictments were returned dealing with the primary and election campaigns of 1918 in which Henry Ford was Senator Newberry's chief opponent.

WASHINGTON.—Resolutions directing the administration to intervene with armed forces in Mexico as a result of the murders of American citizens will be brought before the senate immediately after congress convenes tomorrow.

CHICAGO.—Governors of a dozen states were summoned to a conference in Chicago to consider the coal situation. Called by Gov. Gardner of Missouri, the meeting will be attended by Gov. Lowden of Illinois and the governors of Ohio, Kansas, Oklahoma, Tennessee, Kentucky, and other coal producing states.

TOPEKA, Kas.—Eighteen hundred state and federal troops have been ordered into the Kansas coal fields in connection with the proposed plan to reopen the mines next week under a state receivership.

WASHINGTON. — Deportation of Emma Goldman, the anarchist, was ordered by the department of labor. The bureau of immigration, it was stated, will recommend that she be sent to Russia.

A PROHIBITION INCIDENT.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—I have just returned from Tennessee, where I was born and reared, and while there learned of the death of an old Negro who lived on my father's farm and his father before him, and we all loved and respected him, for he was one of the best of Negroes, as honest and respectful as any man living.

I was down south last year and saw him and he told me that he had just returned from a six months' jail sentence for selling whisky, but he said he really did not sell any whisky, and when he told me he did not it means that he did not sell it, as he would not tell me a lie. He stated that a prohibition agent had stacked up on him in order to improve his arrest records or because he was a Negro, he did not know which. He said that the agent had in his pocket a bottle of whisky which he claimed he bought from Bob, and offered it as evidence against the old Negro. He also stated that the class of men holding the positions of prohibition agents were of the white trash type, and you know they hate the Negro and often testify against him falsely.

The arrest and confinement in the jail crushed the old Negro's pride and caused him to develop rheumatism which hastened his death, for he was in good health and only 60 years of age when he went to jail.

I write you this as one of the many cases which are suffering unjustly as a result of the prohibition law which is being enforced by a bunch of crooks and fools upon good, redblooded persons.

MARK WHITE, M. D.

THE CURSE OF PROHIBITION.

Chicago, Nov. 26.—Why so much noise about farm relief? If they will repeal the Volstead act that will do more for the farmers than all the other legislation they will get at Washington.

Prohibition is the farmers' suicide, the grafters' meal ticket, taxpayers' death knell, and prey for the snooping Toms.

This old 18th amendment will keep the country in a state of chaos as long as it is on our statute books. For the good of the country the general public should demand its repeal.

Why experiment any longer with a law that has proved itself a failure and a curse to the nation?

Before this law was enacted the prohibitionists said it would reduce crime, policemen, judges, empty our jails, penitentiaries, asylums, etc., all of which it has not done, instead has greatly increased all of them.

Millions of our money is going to Canada, Mexico, and other foreign countries, which should remain at home, giving employment to thousands, also creating a demand for our farmers' products, which Canada is now reaping.

U. N. O.

FIGHTING EVOLUTION.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—Again this morning you use a couple of columns attacking the Russian soviets. Do you imagine any one believes anything you publish about Russia? Your newspaper is owned by capitalists. People who are interested in what is going on in Russia get their news from some independent source.

Your readers can remember back to the days when you had Trotzky dying on us every other week and you assassinated Lenin many times before he died a natural death.

Stop wasting your space on Russia, for no one believes you any more. All intelligent people know that the Russian workers' republic is developing splendidly, well into its twelfth year, and getting more and more communistic all the time. Russia is not recognized by the U. S. yet because of the influence of capitalist-thieves in the councils of our nation.

But all students of race development know that the change from capitalism to communism is part of the natural evolution of the human race. Before capitalism was feudalism. Before that slavery. Why make yourself ridiculous by fighting natural evolution?

BARNEY O'NEILL.

THE NOUN AND THE ADJECTIVE.

Chicago, Nov. 26.—Without any desire to be captious, and fully confident that no offense was intended, may I call your attention to what I believe is the improper use of the word Jew in the headline in THE TRIBUNE, "Cheka Despoils 15 Jew Families Leaving Russia"? It should have read "Cheka Despoils 15 Jewish Families Leaving Russia." The use of the noun Jew where the adjective Jewish should be used, though not deliberately offensive, seems queer, to say the least, especially for a metropolitan newspaper. The Talmud says, "Wise men, be careful of your words."

RABBI MORRIS TELLER.

BEYOND THE "L."

Chicago, Nov. 27.—The utilities might expend a few thousand of the billion and one-half which they are to use for improvements to extend the Rapid Transit lines in Chicago south from 63d street and Stony Island avenue, where they stopped in 1892. Many citizens of the south side have died in the last thirty-eight years with the promised Rapid Transit still a promise only.

CITIZEN.

TRANSPORTATION: 1892 AND 1932.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—Now that Mr. Insull has assured Mr. Hoover of his spending ability in the national program of construction, it would not be amiss for Mr. Insull to purchase new modern trains and run twice the number that are now in operation. Most of the present equipment operated during the last World's Fair and is uncomfortable, to say the least, and should have been junked years ago. Mr. Insull, the state, and the city owe the public better, more, and safer elevated transportation at 10 cents a ride, which you get in New York for only 5 cents. Are the people coming to the 1932 fair going to ride in the same old trains they rode in at the last World's Fair? If so bring back the steam engines and hook them up to the coaches.

ROBERT E. HOLMES.

TEMPERAMENTAL CLOCKS.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—At 11 o'clock this morning the three dials on the big Morrison hotel clock told different stories. The east face was six minutes slow, the north face was two minutes slow, and the west face was five minutes fast.

A conspicuous clock which gives correct time is a blessing to the public and wins the good will of the people for the owner. But when any one undertakes to broadcast the time of day he should be required to keep his clock approximately right. W. B. M.

STOCK SHOW IS ON; $5,000,000 IN FARM EXHIBITS

"Chicago Day" Launches International.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Exhibits valued at more than $5,000,000, the most elaborate showing of agricultural progress and prowess seen anywhere, will be opened to the view of a great pilgrimage to Chicago's International Live Stock show for the thirtieth time, this morning. The specimens of live stock, grains and hay this year will surpass any previous showing in quality and numbers, a survey of displays last night indicated.

B. H. HEIDE.

Thirty-five states, five Canadian provinces, England, Scotland and Australia have sent their best for this competition. Beginning this evening with a horse show, and the presentation of the colors by the Stock Yards post of the American Legion, the exposition opens with "Chicago day." According to O. T. Henkle, chairman of the horse show committee, reduced prices will prevail.

Prominent among the entrants in the evening horse show classes are:

Mrs. M. Vanderbilt Church, Newport, R. I.
Aaron M. Frank, Portland, Ore.
Charles E. Ballard Jr. and Miss Mary Ballard, West Baden Springs, Ind.
John R. Thompson, Chicago.
Miss Frances M. and Daniel G. Dodge, Rochester, Mich.
Charles E. Fisher of Fisher Brothers, Detroit, Mich.
William E. Dee, Chicago.
Nathan L. Jones, Salina, Kas.
Mrs. A. G. Thompson, Chicago.
Miss Helen J. Ashbrook, Beverly Hills, Upper Darby, Pa.
R. H. Brown, Indianapolis, Ind.
Mrs. H. B. Sherman, Long Beach Farms, Augusta, Mich.
Alfred G. Wilson, Detroit, Mich.
Mrs. N. E. Carter, Indianapolis, Ind.
Hamilton Stables, Eau Claire, Wis.
Dr. and Mrs. Daniel A. Orth, Chicago.
Harold Palmer, Grosse Point, Mich.
Maurice Weinberger, Nashville, Tenn.
Miss Eva Taggart, French Lick Springs, Ind.
Gen. Frank Parker, U. S. Army, Chicago.

An added attraction at the evening show tonight will be a polo game between teams representing Ohio State university and the University of Chicago. It is the final match in a series that has extended over several weeks.

Notre Dame university has entered a carload of fine Hampshire swine, along with cars of prize hogs, sheep, cattle, and horses from nearly every leading agricultural school in the United States and Canada.

An important feature of today's events will be the junior feeding contest in which farm boys and girls will show baby beeves fattened and fitted for show ring entirely by themselves. More than 200 such entries have been made, a record for this competition. The grand champion is sold at auction after the ribbons are tied and usually brings a large price.

Walter Biggar of Dalbeattie, Scotland, noted judge of beef animals, and W. J. Grant of Buenos Aires, Argentina, were among the visitors at the show grounds yesterday watching the finishing touches being put on exhibits and animals. Mr. Biggar for the fifth time will select the grand champion beef animal of the exposition, while Mr. Grant is a judge in the Aberdeen-Angus classes.

Expect Crowds at Show.

The sight of sleek, well fed animals being curried and groomed for the show ring and daily evenig parades is expected to draw the usual wondering crowds.

Manager B. H. Heide, who has had a part in every exposition here since the international was started in Chicago, made a final trip last night through the hundreds of exhibits, stalls, and arenas housed in a series of buildings adjoining the International amphitheater at the Union Stock yards and reported everything in readiness for the show.

While the show opens officially this morning, in reality it got under way yesterday with the noncollegiate judging contest, in which 61 boys representing 19 states competed. Today the feature event of this nature will be the intercollegiate students' judging contest in which 21 agricultural college teams are entered.

BOYS AND GIRLS FROM FARM HERE FOR STOCK SHOW

Farm lads and lassies, proficient in the arts of livestock raising, farming, gardening, sewing, cooking, canning and such, began arriving in Chicago yesterday from all over the United States. For a week they will attend the eighth annual 4-H club congress to be held in connection with the international livestock exposition.

More than 1,000 young people, representing the 750,000 enrolled throughout the country, are scheduled to visit Chicago. The club congress activities will begin in earnest on Monday when members will start competition in the 4-H club contests.

During the week the boys and girls will be entertained by business organizations. Monday night they will be guests of Thomas E. Wilson, chairman of the national committee on Boys' and Girls' club work at a dinner at the Wilson & Co. plant. A vaudeville show will follow. During their stay they will visit the packing houses at the Union stockyards, the Corn Products Refining company at Argo, the International Harvester company, Chicago mail order companies, Field museum, Art institute, Lincoln park, and other places of interest.

FLYING REPORTER HITS MOUNTAIN; ESCAPES DEATH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Austria, Nov. 29.—After a 10,000 mile air jaunt through the near east and northern Africa in a tiny Moth plane Larry Rue, Vienna correspondent of THE TRIBUNE, crashed into a mountain side 35 miles from Vienna this afternoon while attempting to return home through heavy fogs. Mr. Rue is unhurt but the propeller and both wings of the plane are smashed.

Mr. Rue arrived in the town of Udine on the Italian-Austrian border a fortnight ago but was unable to complete the last lap of the long voyage due to a continual fog. This morning, however, he was informed by the weather bureau that visibility was good and thereupon hopped off, landing across the border in Klagenfurt.

A short time after leaving Klagenfurt he was suddenly surrounded by a fog. Sighting a clear space in a narrow gorge near Stixenstein he made a forced landing, crashing the plane into the side of the mountain.

LINCOLN PARK OUTER DRIVE TO BE OPEN SOON

Cold Holds Up Repairs on County Roads.

BY HAL FOUST.

The outer drive of Lincoln park will be opened to traffic about next Saturday if the weather moderates sufficiently to permit road work next week. This important north side route, which accommodates 50,000 cars a day when in service, has been closed since it was damaged by last month's storm on Lake Michigan.

The lateness of the season makes all road construction dependent upon the weather. Low temperatures freeze paving mixtures.

The paving of North avenue between 25th avenue, Melrose Park, and Thatcher avenue has been delayed by the cold, but the thoroughfare will probably be opened late next week, weather permitting. In the meantime traffic is routed north in 25th avenue to Grand avenue, east to Thatcher avenue, and south to North avenue.

About the same time Lawndale avenue will be opened between Joliet road and Archer avenue.

Five Detours Remain.

Other detours that will be encountered by motorists this week-end include the following:

NINETY-SIXTH AVENUE—Closed between 163d street and Lincoln highway. Traffic is directed west in 163d street to Wolf road, south to Lincoln highway, then east to 96th avenue.

WESTERN AVENUE — Closed between Southwest highway abd 79th street. Traffic is directed southwest in the Southwest highway to 79th street, then east to Western avenue.

HARLEM AVENUE—Closed between Grand avenue and North avenue. Traffic is directed east in Grand avenue to Sayre street, south to North avenue, then west to Harlem avenue.

DEMPSTER STREET—Closed at the sanitary district canal. Traffic is directed south in McCormick boulevard to Main street, east to Dodge avenue, then north to Dempster.

WASHINGTON BOULEVARD—Closed between Thatcher avenue and Forest avenue. Traffic is directed north in Thatcher avenue to Lake street, east to Forest avenue, then south to Washington boulevard.

The summary of road conditions and construction developments was prepared by the recently organized central traffic bureau, in which state, county, and municipal highway officials of the metropolitan area are cooperating.

KIDNAP MANAGER, ROB STORE.

The police yesterday were seeking three gunmen who kidnaped E. W. Judwin, 7002 Prairie avenue, and forced him to return to a Walgreen drug store at 6301 Kimbark avenue, of which he is the manager, and open a safe containing $900. They left him tied in a rear room. The bandits forced Judwin into their automobile as he alighted from a street car at 69th street and Prairie avenue.

YANKS WHO DIED IN RUSSIA HOME AFTER TEN YEARS

75 Bodies Given Heroes' Honors.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Seventy-five of America's war dead came home today from the frozen plains of Russia. They came home to a flag-draped pier in Hoboken from distant graves in the white Russian tundra, where they had died ten years ago of wounds or disease in a war against the bolshevists that never was officially declared.

Tonight these men of the A. E. F. who fell in the Archangel expedition are resting in coffins wrapped in the flag they fought for, aboard a train which will carry all but four of them to Detroit. Three bodies will be taken to Arlington and a fourth will be buried in a Brooklyn cemetery. Stops will be made in North Philadelphia and Harrisburg, Pa.

All of the returned dead were members of the 310th Engineers, the 337th Ambulance company and the 339th Infantry. When the funeral train ends its journey early Sunday fifty-six of the bodies will once again become "Detroit's own" and the others will be returned to their homes scattered throughout the central states.

Chicago Will Bury Two.

Two of the bodies are of Chicago soldiers and will be taken to Chicago for military burial. They are those of John T. Henly and Sylvester Paprzycki.

Private Lawrence Wadsworth will be buried in his home town of Aurora, Ill., and Corporal William J. Lehmann will be laid to rest in Danville, Ill.

The funeral train, consisting of four special baggage coaches, will steam out of the Pennsylvania station tomorrow at 10:50. Upon arrival at Pittsburgh at 10:15 tomorrow night the bodies destined for Chicago and other points besides Detroit will be removed and sent on by the first convenient connecting trains. Authorities in charge of the train could not say tonight just when the bodies of the Chicago veterans would reach there.

When the liner President Roosevelt steamed into Hoboken through the morning mist and a strangely stilled harbor 300 members of various service and patriotic organizations were waiting on the pier to tender the fullest military honors to their brother soldiers.

Comrades Greet Tehm.

The rank and file which stood shivering in the November wind presented a touching scene. There were wounded veterans in shabby uniforms and others in well-worn civilian clothes. Some wore carefully tailored business clothes. But every one there had come to pay tribute to their fellows who had died—some of them after the armistice—in far away Russia. None knew how most of them had died, as the fighting took place at isolated outposts.

After the coffins had been placed on the pier, memorial services were held. A single coffin—that of one of the 31 unidentified bodies—was moved to the center. Standing with bared head, the Rev. Wallace Hayes of Rutland, Mass., national chaplain of Veterans of Foreign Wars, spoke a brief eulogy. A priest and a rabbi prayed. A soldiers' band played "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and the honor guard from the 16th infantry followed with a three volley salute. A row of buglers, standing at attention, sounded taps.

Flags at Half Staff.

As the coffins were borne up the bay to Hoboken flags in the city were dropped to half staff. A seventeen gun salute shattered the stillness as the liner passed Governor's island. Twelve planes formed an escort overhead and the United States destroyer Kane and the city's official boat, the Macom, steamed slowly alongside.

Tales of difficulties and hardships in locating the graves of the fallen veterans were told by Capt. Edward Bettelheim, Michigan member of the American graves registration bureau. The bodies were brought back to the United States by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, coöperating with the graves registration bureau and a similar organization in soviet Russia.

Of the 121 men missing in Russia, the bodies of 86 were located and thirty-five are yet to be found. Eleven of the bodies were left in France for burial.

Seventeen of those brought home today were found in a single grave. Russian peasants said they had been ambushed by the Reds in the night.

Love Story Revealed.

The story of Lieut. Ralph Powers and the Russian nurse was told. It was a story of love seeking to keep the body of a veteran behind. In the village of Sletskoe the searchers, after three trips, found the nurse who had attended Lieut. Powers after he had been wounded. She was poor and hungry, but they could not pay her to tell where Powers had been buried. She had loved the officer and had dug an empty grave and marked it with his name in the hopes of keeping his body near her.

At last she relented and showed the commission members the grave. It was a well kept mound, decorated with flowers and an icon.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Administration plans to discipline the three shipbuilding companies which hired William B. Shearer, "naval propagandist," by withholding contracts for building war ships until they make peace with the White House, threaten to misfire as a result of the recent boom in American merchant ship building.

Assuming that the companies, which sent Shearer to the Geneva 1927 three power naval conference, would be anxious to obtain cruiser contracts, administration officials let it be known following the senate investigation that the three concerns would have to "clean house" before they could expect government work.

The apparent indifference of the shipbuilding companies to this threat is largely attributed to the new impulse given American shipbuilding by the Jones-White merchant marine bill, which provides profitable mail contracts to shipping lines. According to Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, so much new merchant ship construction is in prospect that every shipyard in the country will be running full blast by the middle of next summer. Fifty-two new ships may be built within the next few years.

As a result of this boom in private shipbuilding the building companies are now said to be in a position where they can afford to be independent of government contracts.

PACIFIC COAST SENATORS RISE IN COMMITTEES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Control of several of the most important committees in congress by three Pacific coast states was clinched today when Senator W. L. Jones [Rep., Wash.] decided to avail himself of his right to take the chairmanship of the senate appropriations committee, left vacant by the death of Senator F. E. Warren [Rep., Wyo.] last Sunday.

The announcement by Senator Reed Smoot [Rep., Utah], ranking Republican member of the appropriations committee, that he would retain the chairmanship of the finance committee, opened the way for the Pacific coast group to entrench itself more firmly in an already commanding position in the senate.

Senator Jones, next in line after Smoot, for the Warren vacancy, immediately let it be known that he will surrender the chairmanship of the commerce committee to take the appropriations committee post. In the shakeup, the commerce committee chairmanship will fall to Senator Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.], now chairman of the immigration committee.

Senator Charles L. McNary [Rep., Ore.], who will step aside in the commerce committee to let Johnson become chairman, is chairman of the agriculture committee and will become assistant Republican leader.

AD AGENCY CASE NOW RESTS WITH U. S. TRADE BODY

Commission Takes Matter Under Advisement.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Determination of whether national associations of advertising agencies and newspaper publishers have been engaged in unfair competition through an alleged conspiracy to compel advertisers to do business through selected agencies rested tonight with the federal trade commission.

The closing presentations on the matter, which has been studied by a commission examiner for some time, were made by Eugene W. Burr, attorney for the commission, and by counsel for the American Association of Advertising Agencies, the American Newspaper Publishers' association, the Southern Newspaper Publishers' association, the Six Point league of New York, and the American Press association. Thereupon the commission took the case under advisement.

Called Interstate Commerce.

Burr maintained the national advertising business was interstate commerce and that the listing of approved agencies, the refusal of publishers to give advertisers placing their copy directly a rate less the commission normally paid to the agency, and the demand that agencies not split the commission with their clients constituted unfair competition in restraint of trade.

Clark McKercher, counsel for the A. A. A. A., said the practices complained of had been in vogue since long before the formation of the defendant organizations and that only a "handful of special interests" were attempting to upset the established system. The commission to advertising agencies, he said, was paid legitimately because the agencies had created a large portion of the great volume of newspaper advertising now published, while the advertisers themselves rendered no service to the newspaper.

Goods Not Transferred.

J. F. Finley, attorney for the S. N. P. A., argued that no illegal combination existed between the groups and that advertising was in no sense subject to the regulation governing interstate commerce, as it did not involve transfer of goods.

Robert C. Beatty, counsel for the American Press association, contended that "rebating" of the whole or any part of commissions to the advertiser was an illegitimate practice which had been condemned in other lines of business by the trade commission. Members of the commission, however, questioned the parallel, indicating they considered entirely different elements involved.

Elisha Hanson, representing the A. N. P. A., closed for the respondents with the contention that his association did not compel its members to confine the payment of commissions to advertising agencies recognized by the association and that no coercion of any sort existed.

In rebuttal Burr argued that coercion was practiced by the publishers' associations upon the advertising agencies through demand that no rebating be indulged in and through stigmatizing rate cutters as "unethical, immoral, and crooked." He said also that the agencies in turn exerted pressure upon individual publishers who gave direct advertisers net rates, and read letters from several newspapers to substantiate his charge.

Poison Fumes Kill 3 in Abandoned Liner's Hold

COBH, Irish Free State, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Poisonous fumes which had accumulated in No. 4 hold of the wrecked and abandoned liner Celtic today killed three salvage workers. The men were overcome and fell into the hold.

BOOKS

Short Stories Bring Praise to British Author

L. A. G. Strong Scores Another Success, Critic Says.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—Several of our rising young authors have published volumes of short stories this season; and the best of these volumes to come my way is that of L. A. G. Strong, the author of "Dewar Rides," by common consent one of the best first novels of the year. Its successor is delightful, and is a collection of sketches rather than short stories. Sketches, however, so rich in vivid human material that each one of the seventeen lifts the imagination as none but the best work does. If Mr. Strong, as I believe, is a young man, he should have a great future; for his work is simple, varied, full of vigor, tender, and beautiful. I rank his book very high indeed.

OSBERT SITWELL.

Less highly I rank the book of short stories by Martin Armstrong, called "The Fiery Dive!" This book consists again of short stories, very well written, but a little lacking in strength. Where Mr. Strong gets great effect in a sentence, Mr. Armstrong needs more space. This is not to say that his work is verbose. It is full of beauty and sympathy. Nor do I mean that Mr. Strong is [even by contrast] a "snappy" writer. He is not. But the openings of his sketches are swift and vigorous, and they give the impression of being very condensed emotional studies from life.

Both books are worthy of attention from connoisseurs; but especially "The English Captain," which is the title of the final story in the collection, and which gives a name to the whole book by Mr. Strong.

Osbert Sitwell is advertising that he hopes he has recovered from his recent indisposition, and he offers to paint portraits at fixed prices. He also announces that an exhibition of his paintings will be held early in the New Year at a well known West End gallery.

Mr. Sitwell's new novel, which bears the title "The Man Who Lost Himself," is just out here. I have it, but have not yet read it, so that beyond knowing that it describes a great emotional experience in the life of its chief character I can at present give no account of the book. Mr. Sitwell expressly declares in his preface to the novel that it has not been easy to write; and he has a little note to the effect that "the author begs humbly to point out that all the characters in this book, including himself, are fictitious. He can no more now take the responsibility for his own views in the future, should there be one, than for those of the other persons he has created." Characteristic Sitwellian blague; but the book may be a fine one, nevertheless.

Collectors should hasten to acquire a copy of a book called "The New Forget-me-not; a Calendar!" This book will be worth its weight in notes within twenty years. It is a small book, but its contributors include some of the most distinguished writers of the day, as well as some of the most popular [Max Beerbohm, Siegfried Sassoon, H. M. Tomlinson, Hugh Walpole, Maurice Baring, Clive Bell, J. C. Squire, etc.], while the illustrations are the work of Rex Whistler.

In case news of Mr. Whistler has not yet reached the United States, I will add that he is an artist of genius, that his illustrated edition of "Gulliver's Travels" already is at a premium, that his paintings presently will be the rage, and that these delicious illustrations to "The New Forget-me-not" are among the most amusing things, and the most beautiful, that I have seen for years.

[Note: "Dewar Rides" is the December offering of "Paper Books."]

Harriet Monroe's "Travel Poems" will be the topic for discussion at the meeting of the Bookfellows this evening at 6 o'clock at the Central Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street.

On Monday evening at 8:15, at the Emil G. Hirsch center, Maurice Samuel and James Waterman Wise will debate the subject, "Is Modern Youth Irreligious?" and on Thursday at the same time and place Prof. Frank Hurburt O'Hara will lecture on "The Worker in Contemporary Literature," illustrated by "The Hairy Ape," by Eugene O'Neill, and "Of Human Bondage," by W. Somerset Maugham.

"The Development of Education in Chicago" will be the topic of Prof. Charles Hubbard Judd's lecture this week at the Art Institute on Friday evening at 6:45.

Abbe Dimnet of Paris, author of "The Art of Thinking," will lecture on that subject on Monday afternoon at 2:30 and on Monday evening at 8:15 at the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street.

14 Years' Motoring Brings Book on Varied Quilts

"Old Patchwork Quilts and the Women Who Made Them," by Ruth E. Finley [Lippincott], is the result of a fourteen years' thirst. Mrs. Finley and her husband began fourteen years ago taking trips in their car all over the country. Whenever she saw a quilt hanging on a clothes line, she was seized with such a thirst that she invariably had to ask the lady of the house for a drink of water. She says, "The amount of water I've drunk in the cause of quilts would float a rum runner," but, anyway, she gathered first hand information about the patterns and their histories. There are 96 illustrations and 100 diagrams in this extensive volume on quilts.

SPENT $1500 TRYING TO GET WELL

Then Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brought Relief

This startling letter from an ex-service man will interest every one who suffers from constipation:

"I was discharged after the World War with heart trouble and bad stomach. I had saved about $1,600. Since then I've spent that sum and a lot more on doctoring and operations and medicines. I always was bothered with constipation.

"I told my wife to get some kind of light breakfast food and I would try it. She came home with a small package of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. I ate it for breakfast, lunch and dinner, about a common tea-saucer full with milk at each meal. I have been doing this for about a month. I have stopped taking dope (medicines). I work 9 to 12 hours. I have a good appetite. And now I am gaining flesh and believe I am getting well."—GEORGE C. O'CONNELL, Barker, N. Y.

Cleanse your system of constipation's poisons. Thousands have regained their old-time vigor and vim, stopped constipation forever, by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Relief is guaranteed. ALL-BRAN is 100% bran. 100% effective—doctors recommend it. Ready-to-serve with milk or cream. Use in cooking. See the recipes on the package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Sold by all grocers. Served in leading hotels and restaurants—dining cars.

Woman's Era Just Beginning, View of Author

So Virginia Woolf Tells Girls in England.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"A Room of One's Own," by Virginia Woolf. (Harcourt-Brace.)

"A Room of One's Own" is one of the most stimulating books of the year to any one really interested in creative writing, whether as an eager reader or as a mute and inglorious Milton or Emily Brontë. In it Virginia Woolf bares her mind about why women have and have not written books, and the processes of that mind, quite as much as the conclusions which it draws, are fascinating; for, to most of us, Virginia Woolf has one of the most alluring minds in present day literature.

She has a clarity of thought that is delightful beyond words, and she is such an artist in the manipulation of words that her ideas are not lost or dissipated in syllables as she sets them down. Too often good thinkers lose their ideas in a maze of "style" when they attempt to put them to paper. Virginia Woolf's style is almost photographic of her ideas. It neither embroiders them nor throws them out of perspective.

"A Room of One's Own" was given, one takes it, as a lecture before a group of English college girls who were (perhaps) interested in writing as a profession for women and who had asked one of the most outstanding of English women writers to guide them. They asked her to speak on a subject which obviously interested her very much but about which her reactions were not immediate and definite, and she leads them through the lanes of thought which brought her to the conclusions which she presented to them.

Those bypaths are delightful. They begin with a visit to "Oxbridge," as she calls a men's college where she was invited to luncheon. She unthinkingly walks on the grass and is reprimanded by the beadle; the grass is for gentlemen only. Next, remembering a manuscript which allured her and presenting herself at the library which treasured it, she was refused admission on account of her sex.

She consciously refrained from entering a church from which she feared she would be again repelled forcibly, and finally went to a luxurious luncheon with bird pies and other succulences, and with wine. From there she went to dinner at a women's college. There there was no wine. There there was no luxury or even comfort of service. The food not only was not alluring but extremely depressing. At the men's college the young Miltons (potential) lived in luxury and had a room alone. In the women's college "a room of one's own" was an ideal rather than a reality. That day of contrasts led her to the comparison of the lives of men and women. She began studying the time of Elizabeth. She found to her dismay that there are no records whatever of woman's life in that period ruled so autocratically by a woman; no records, that is, other than that women were the property of their husbands, their fathers, or whatever male fate chose to possess them legally.

That women wrote nothing remarkable under such circumstances she finds not at all startling. In a later period, the common sitting room as a retreat and a life devoted to mending and stewing and brewing did not offer women much leisure, or independence, or quiet for creative work. It did, however, offer them unlimited opportunities for the observation of human relationships, and it made inevitable their writing novels when they came to write anything. Once woman had proved—it was Aphra Behn who first in the English speaking world earned money by writing—that she could be economically independent through writing, women of all sorts and kinds began it. They were afraid at first to sign their own names. They signed men's names in tremulous fear of detection. Currer Bell, George Eliot, George Sand are only the well known names which fame rescued from the thousands.

It has only been within the last two generations or so that women really owned what they earned, she says. Now women can be independent. They can earn their five hundred pounds a year and have a room of their own, and what they can do in the future is limited only by their own desires.

Retold by a halting admirer, it all sounds a good deal like what has been said before. But, in Virginia Woolf's words, her thesis is not only alluring but extremely stimulating. It would make any young woman want to rush to her typewriter. It has the quality of zest in it, and a zest that is imparted to the reader. Virginia Woolf has a brilliant but very subtle sense of humor. There is an ironic quip every few pages that is delicious. The book is a delight! And delights can only be labeled, not dissected.

Radcliffe Grad and Fighting Marine Divide $25,000 for Novels

Although the two winners of the $25,000 war novel contest, sponsored by Houghton Mifflin company and the American Legion monthly, have the fact of American birth and citizenship in common, they are by training and experience as dissimilar as their two books which caused the judges to divide the award after a heated five hour debate.

MARY LEE

WILLIAM T. SCANLON

Mary Lee, whose "It's a Great War!" is a sweeping survey of war behind the lines, was born in Chestnut Hill, Mass., descended from a long and sturdy line of merchant ship owners. After a brilliant college record in scholarship athletics, and extra-curiculum activities, she was graduated from Radcliffe in 1917, and soon afterward sailed for France with a base hospital unit for several months in Bordeaux. This was followed by a position with the air service in Paris, and later by affiliation with the Y. M. C. A. in the zone of advance and with the army of occupation in Germany.

Such variety of service and wide geographical distribution of activities enabled Miss Lee to obtain a panoramic view of the war, and her novel is a series of hundreds of episodes held together by an unobtrusive but sufficient thread of plot. Soon after her return to America Miss Lee took up newspaper work and covered the arrival in America of distinguished foreign visitors for the New York Evening Post. She went as correspondent for the Post to Greece and Italy and has more recently been doing special articles for the New York Times.

William T. Scanlon was a fighting marine during the war, and his novel, "God Have Mercy On Us!" is a reflection of his day to day experiences under fire. At the age of 15 he left school and got a job in the Chicago stockyards painting lard pails. Successively bellhop, messenger, yard clerk and yardmaster, he ultimately became chief clerk in the yard offices of the Illinois Central railroad. When the war broke out he was with the Morton Salt company in Chicago, but left to join the marines and went immediately to Paris Island to wheel sand and oyster shells. He went overseas as a member of the 97th Company and saw service in various sectors, including Verdun, Chateau Thierry, Soissons, Champagne, and the Meuse-Argonne.

Back in America, Scanlon felt the inevitable wanderlust of the returned soldier, and spent some time knocking around the south and west before he finally took a position as cameraman with the A. B. C. studio in Chicago. During this period he had read widely in psychology, all the way from William James to Freud, in an endeavor to rationalize his own war conduct before setting pen to paper, and, as a result, his novel, "God Have Mercy On Us!" is a study of the mental and spiritual development of an average man and not the conventional war diary.

Poetry Prize Divided

The Witter Bynner undergraduate poetry prize, of which Eunice Tietjens and Witter Bynner were the judges, is divided this year into three equal parts and awarded to Elder Olson of the University of Chicago, Miriam Cosand of Butler university, and Dorothe Bendon of Mills college, according to a recent announcement.

The prize again will be offered in 1930 under the auspices of Palms, of which Mr. Bynner will be sole judge of the contest.

The list of winners of awards of earlier years discloses the fact that among them are some whose work has attained significance; Eleanor Carroll Chilton, Donald C. Peattie, Countee Cullen, Langston Hughes [both Negroes] and Sterling North.

City's Leaders Prove Chicago's Right to Fame

In Trade, Schools, Art, Transit, Sciences.

"Chicago, the World's Youngest Great City," is the title of the latest, and in some ways the most impressive, book ever assembled about our city. It was an interesting idea to get the best known man in each field of Chicago's progress to write a short essay about that phrase.

R. C. BUTLER JR.

Every one who ever thought of such a book would have had such an ideal in his mind. But it was sheer genius getting them all to do it! And if, as one suspects from a modest "compiled and arranged by Rush C. Butler Jr." on the last page, it was young Mr. Butler, he should be rewarded with loud huzzahs from a delegation of Chicagoans.

The articles are succinct, they contain enough information to intrigue readers into searching passionately for more news of that particular part of Chicago's progress, but they do not have so many statistics as to discourage the very lay minded. There are handsome photographs, reproductions of etchings [there are two of the famous Pennell etchings of the stockyards] and drawings exactly enough to illumine the text and not enough to make the book look like a pictorial history.

The first article by Col. Robert R. McCormick sets the pace of the volume. It is a scholarly, but popular, statement of the reasons why Chicago is geographically and economically the "Natural Capital of the Continent." An article on "A Scientific Plan for Chicago's Growth" by James Simpson, chairman of the Chicago Plan commission, follows.

Then there is a section devoted to art, literature, and science in which Stanley Field writes of the Field museum, Walter J. Sherwood of the Art institute, Melvin A. Traylor of the Shedd aquarium, Charles B. Pike of the Chicago Historical society, Philip Fox of the Adler planetarium, Benjamin H. Marshall of architecture in Chicago, Daniel H. Burnham of the plan for a greater Chicagoland, Edward L. Ryerson Jr. of the work of the social agencies of Chicago and human welfare, Herbert M. Johnson of the Chicago Civic opera, and Frederick A. Stock of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and Louis Eckstein of the Ravinia opera.

A group of essays on education in Chicago is made up of the words of Walter Dill Scott, Clifford W. Barnes, Robert Maynard Hutchins, and H. Wallace Caldwell.

Those writing of their special fields of commerce or industry are James D. Cunningham, D. F. Kelly, Frederick H. Scott, Lester Armour, George B. Everitt, B. J. Grigsby, Alfred Decker, Bernard J. Mullaney, Eugene J. Buffington, V. L. Alward, Homer J. Buckley, Edward Hines, Claude A. Welles, William V. Kelley, J. K. Blatchford, and Frederick M. Babcock.

Rufus C. Dawes writes on the plan for the World Fair of 1933. There are essays on the five methods of transportation by Fred W. Sargent, Orville S. Caesar, Maj. Reed G. Landis, S. W. Tracy, and Edward N. Hurley. Mr. Hurley writes on "Overseas Transportation as it Pertains to the Future of Chicago." Banking, the Board of Trade, the stock exchange, and insurance are discussed by George M. Reynolds, Samuel P. Arnot, R. Arthur Wood, and H. A. Behrens.

A final article on athletics by Walter H. Eckersall ends the book with such interesting retrospects as in 1893, "Rowing was indulged in, but not on an extensive scale," and "Golf was introduced in Chicago soon after the World's Fair," making our modern athletic culture seem very recent, indeed.

An introduction states the policy of the book clearly. "This book," it says, "is a study of Chicago by men who know the spiritual and material resources of an indomitable community, who know its history, its resolution, its mission." They put all of those things into "Chicago."

Edith Ogden Harrison Has Stories About New Orleans

"Gray Moss" by Edith Ogden Harrison [Seymour] is a collection of short stories, for the most part about New Orleans and the old south, where Mrs. Harrison was born and reared. "Brief episodes," she calls them, "some true, some with only a semblance of truth for a basis," she says in a foreword.

She defied the world

Love and luxury beckoned to Emma Lyon at that age when in the heart of every beautiful girl there slumbers a Manon Lescaut. From love to lover she flitted, yet she was not merely a butterfly, not merely a wanton. Each man who loved her . . . and there were so many . . . loved her not alone for the glorious body, the face divine; but for herself . . . for the Emma whose spirit was a rich chameleon thing; whose mind was clear, whose heart was human. With artistic mastery of the heart of woman, Albert Flament has drawn against a colorful background of court-ermine and powder-stained uniforms and the blue Neapolitan skies, this picture of a woman among women. Venus and Neptune stand side-by-side, Lady Hamilton and the great Lord Nelson. $2.00

Machine Era Affects Poets, Briton Declares

Bertrand Russell Talks to Chicagoans.

Bertrand Russell elaborated a very interesting theory in his lecture on "Literary Style and Social Psychology" the other day. He began by saying that Alexander Block, one of the greater Russian poets, was detailed by the communist government to lecture on rhythms in poetry, but he was ordered to do so from a Marxian point of view, that is, from the point of view that economics influence rhythms.

While, as Mr. Russell said, such a premise seems at first slightly incongruous, there really is a great deal to be said for the influence of economics on style, both in prose and poetry. The literature of the Elizabethan era was free, flowing, aristocratic, self-assertive, blustering, and adventurous, just as the life of that day was all that. There was a government by a new and boisterous aristocracy. The literature of that day had all of the characteristics of the national consciousness.

The age of Queen Anne was quite as aristocratic, but less adventurous. England of that day was governed by an established aristocracy of mind as well as of matter. The prose and poetry of that period were leisurely and graceful, although still filled with the consciousness of aristocratic power.

With the French revolution there arose the mob. Never since then has it been possible to disregard the mob.

Literature lost its aggrandizement. No one possibly could feel as important as an important person had felt before. Literature lost its flowing rhythms, its long sentences full of grand gestures. It became sadder. So, too, became the pens of a world growing in the consciousness of the lot of mankind as opposed to that of the fortunate few.

With the machine age, there came a new rhythm in literature. Only in America and (Mr. Russell believed) Russia is there a new style in writing, expressing that new rhythm.

It is, as much as anything, a rhythm of rage against man and his lot, and a fear (on the part of the author or the poet) of the herd and its passion for killing any one who does not conform.

Mr. Russell was impelled to these thoughts by reading Ernest Hemingway's "A Farewell to Arms," which, he said, seemed to him superb in its method, although mid-Victorian in the point of view of the last third of the book.

The death of the heroine was exactly the death of Dora in "David Copperfield," he said afterwards at luncheon, when he was questioned. Hemingway, he said, had only added many obstetrical details to make that death seem modern.

Only in America could one hope for the new rhythm—unless in Russia, perhaps—because English writers were the product of a more fully established social and economic system, he said. He talked about the work of Virginia Woolf, who, he said, was the best the British have.

"Her writing is like incandescent death," (using the most striking phrase I ever had heard in describing a style). "It is so finished that there is nothing left for it to grow into. Lytton Strachey is the same. Hemingway and other American writers, even those who are adolescent, still are growing," was his comment.

Mr. Russell ended his lecture by an amusing elaboration of the theme that Hollywood is governing the world as no government in any time has ever done. He gave a picture of a future in which man and the machine may be so completely one that neither can be distinguishable one from the other. Then, he held, all art will cease to exist.

Mr. Russell's talk was a modern improvisation on a well known theme, brilliantly clarified by one of the best minds in the world.

Mary Borden, who was a Chicagoan before she became the wife of Gen. Spears of London, and who is visiting in her home town, recalled the first time that she had ever heard her friend Bertrand Russell lecture. She had told him that she would like to hear some of his lectures at Cambridge if she thought she could understand them.

"Why, they're very simple," he replied. "I'm lecturing now on the philosophy of mathematics and it's elemental."

"So," she said, "I took a train to Cambridge. He met me at the station and took me to his rooms and gave me one of those large English teas. Thus fortified, I went with him to a lecture room that was filled with gray air and young men. I had taken a note book with me in which to put down the wisdom which I was to acquire and I held my pencil poised. But for half an nour he said not one single word that I could understand, not even such a word as 'properties' or 'meaning.'

"It was as if he were talking in Sanskrit. Then suddenly I heard a phrase 'the meaning of the symbol alpha' and I thought 'at last,' but he said 'That is a subject which we have taken up before and we shall not resume it' and went on again frightfully learnedly. When it was all over and I told him that I had not understood one word of anything that he had said he was terribly hurt, really hurt. I suppose it never had occurred to him that there were people in the world who simply did not know the language of the philosophy of mathematics."

He is one of the most learned, really learned, men in England, we all agreed, and for that very reason he speaks with the greatest clarity and lucidity of thought.

"That was many years ago. He has long since forgiven me," she said.

It was the same type of clarifying anecdote that she told of Marcel Proust, whom she considers the greatest genius of our time. "Andre Maurois once told me," she confided, "of Proust's last literary act. He knew he was dying, of course, and he called his brother to him and told him to take down every word he said, and he described, with the same detail with which he had described every phase of life, the sensations of a dying man. 'That will serve,' he said, 'for the death of the hero of the book.'

"One time, during the war, he rushed from his desk and out into the street to find a cab to take him to an entertainment which he knew was being given on the other side of Paris. There was an air raid on and not a cab on the streets. He was a very sick man, but he walked to the other side of Paris, entered the house, left his hat and coat, went upstairs to the drawing room, looked about until he found a man he knew, and went up to him and said, 'Will you please say for me in Italian,' I don't remember just what words, but they were words which he knew perfectly well, for he spoke the language perfectly. He had come to a place in his writing where he wanted to describe how an Italian spoke certain words and until he could hear those words spoken by an Italian he would not go on writing."

That, of course, was the secret of Proust's colossal genius. He never set down anything on paper that was not a complete and accurate description not only of the fact but of the attendant emotional reactions. Mary Borden's story emphasizes that most clearly. She knew him, she said, but only slightly.

"I used to hate to look at him," she added. "He always looked so sick. He had an enormous head and a ghastly white face, and under it a frail body, and he was torn by sights and sounds and people whom the rest of the world would merely accept or not notice.

"Sacheverall Sitwell has just published a novel in England that is tremendously influenced by Proust. In fact, I think that Proust has had a greater influence on writing in England than any other writer of the last few years. And it is a very bad influence, because no one can write like him, and they think they can. No one can, probably because no one would take the infinite pains which he took to record his emotions and few men in the world have had the background or the temperament which would produce such emotions."

Mary Borden's latest book is "Jehovah Day." Bertrand Russell has published two books this fall, "Mysticism and Logic" and a firebrandish discussion of "Marriage and Morals."

THE BIG BIOGRAPHY OF THE SEASON

FRANKLIN

The Apostle of Modern Times

By BERNARD FAŸ

Notable, because in it a Frenchman presents Franklin for the first time not as an idealized historical figure but as a real man; because it gives a magnificent picture of 18th-century Boston, Philadelphia, London and Paris; and because of the breadth, depth and Gallic wit of its style. In this vivid biography the reader will find the good Doctor "a perfect friend, cheerful and fond of good living, a hearty drinker and a good story-teller" as well as an unforgettable personality.

Here is an extraordinary book value—made possible by the large printings totaling 75,000 copies in advance of publication. It is a large octavo volume (6½ x 9½ inches) of 547 pages, containing 20 illustrations and maps.

Travel's Lure Provides Cities, Also Jungles

With Strange Peoples or Stranger Beasts.

BY AGATHA L. SHEA.

"Marco Polo Jr.," by Harry S. Franck. [Century.]

"Alice in Elephantland," by Mary Hastings Bradley. [Appleton.]

"Where It All Comes True in Scandinavia," by Clara E. Laughlin. [Houghton-Mifflin.]

"Two Boys in South American Jungles," by Grace J. Jekyll. [Dutton.]

What could offer more of interest and adventure to a wide awake young American lad than a two years' stay in China, traveling from place to place, one day living amidst the civilization of a thousand years ago, the next, perhaps, finding himself in a modern city with its tall buildings and electric cars?

Such was the experience which Bobby Haworth, young hero of Harry A. Franck's "Marco Polo Jr.," was privileged to enjoy, and which boy readers are going to enjoy with him. The author, a famous world traveler who has the happ faculty of passing on to his readers the thrill of his adventures, has written, in this, his first travel for young folks.

It is a book that will hold the interest of boy or girl from the opening sentence to the closing one and that is saying a good deal for any book.

Another traveler who always is successful in bringing to her reader the spirit of the adventures which have been hers is Mary Hastings Bradley. Children who enjoyed her earlier book, "Alice in Jungleland," will not want to miss her recent account of little Alice's later trip as it is told in "Alice in Elephantland."

Alice is now 9 years old instead of 5 and this time her trip takes her to a much wilder part of Africa than did her former one. She meets the strange forest people and the mountain cannibals, joins the elephant hunt and looks on at the weird witch dances, and makes friends with the natives and animals. A thrilling life, indeed, was it for a little 9 year old Chicago girl and one which children [10-12] will find most enjoyable reading. The illustrations throughout the book are made by Alice herself.

Clara E. Laughlin has added two new titles to her travel books for children. "Where It All Comes True in Scandinavia" and "Where It All Comes True in France" are written in the same vein as her earlier books in this series. The author's aim is to record the impressions made upon her two young nieces in their travels through various countries. They are not guide books, but reflections of the life and customs of the people which will appeal to young readers.

The volume on Scandinavia will probably be welcomed by adults as well as children, as this country is not one of those included in the author's "So You Are Going" series. All the facts are interestingly presented and the incidents which the children include in their accounts are entertaining.

Older boys [12-15] will enjoy Grace J. Jekyll's "Two Boys in South American Jungles," which is the story of the building of the Madeira Mamore railroad through the jungles. It is an adventure tale founded on a basis of facts and has all the elements of a most popular book for this age.

Three Famous Books for Children Appear De Luxe This Year

E. P. Dutton & Co. have made de luxe editions of three of their juveniles, thus making them gift books for adults as well as children. "The Christopher Robin Story Book," by A. A. Milne, with decorations by E. H. Shepard, is published in an edition of 350 numbered copies, signed by both the author and the illustrator. It is a golden gift book, indeed.

The large paper edition of "Alice in Wonderland," illustrated by Willy Pogany [in which Alice is a little girl of today, with short hair] is limited to 200 copies, each one signed by the artist.

"The Snow Queen," by Hans Christian Andersen, illustrated by Katherine Beverly and Elizabeth Ellender, is published in an edition of 200 copies signed by both artists. They are all, of course, printed on special paper and specially bound.

MESSALINA
ROMAN TEMPTRESS
MAURICE MAGRE

Bacchanals and beauty mingle strangely in this astonishing book. Messalina became virtual tyrant of the Roman Empire when her dolt-like husband, Claudius, succeeded to the throne; but she sought only to rule the men of her desire, distorting their destinies in the flame of lust. Rome of the Caesars rises from its ashes in all its beauty, in all its riches and power: Messalina lives . . . a mad, sensuous, grotesque life surging through a vista of rare beauty.

Issued for subscribers. First impression, 960 copies. Typography by S. A. Jacobs. Printed in two colors throughout, on deckle-edged paper, finely bound. Place your order now. $5.00. Prospectus on request.

Freedom's Saber Glints in Hand of La Fayette

Brand Whitlock Depicts America's Friend.

BY WILLIAM E. DODD.
[Chairman of the department of history, the University of Chicago.]
"La Fayette," by Brand Whitlock. [Appleton.]

When Gen. Pershing declared at the grave of La Fayette in the Pictus cemetery in Paris, "La Fayette, we are here," there were millions of so-called educated persons in the United States who wondered who La Fayette was and what he had done.

From that day there has been a growing interest in the career of Washington's young French friend. Brand Whitlock, himself a notable liberal in a world of reaction, an ardent fighter in the hot campaign of 1912, and afterward minister of his country in Belgium, has felt the call to do justice.

These beautiful volumes represent his effort—a magnificent work, a book that is apt to be read and quoted for years to come. Perhaps the reader will bear with me if I offer a brief abstract of the story.

Gilbert Motier, lord of Chavaniac in the province of Auvergne and marquis de la Fayette at the age of 16, married to the charming Adrienne, daughter of the great d'Ayen family, chartered in the year 1777 the ship Victoire at a cost of 110,000 livres, and sailed across the Atlantic to give his services and perhaps his life to the cause of the struggling American democrats then beating about Pennsylvania and almost at the mercy of the British commander in New York.

On a hot day in August the slender, fastidious aristocrat sat down to dinner in Philadelphia with George Washington, and the two became lifelong friends. At Valley Forge the next dreary winter the young Frenchman, then commander of a division in the American army, shared, like Washington, the hardships and the privations of the common soldier.

In spite of the lettre de cachet of Louis XVI. commanding all good Frenchmen to bring the wayward young man to the Bastille dead or alive, the people of France admired their valiant young countryman in Washington's army. The people of the thirteen rebellious colonies likewise made a hero of the Marquis de la Fayette, who was spending his great fortune in behalf of a forlorn hope. And when the shrewd Franklin and the Compte de Vergennes, the canny prime minister of France, agreed in 1778 to the treaty of offensive and defensive, so long as time lasted, between the two countries, the 20 year old marquis was regarded as the very soul of the entente.

Ambitious and aristocratic to the very fingertips, La Fayette hardly blundered once in all his difficult and delicate relationships with Washington, the continental congress, or the unruly French adventurers about him. Few men have ever been more sincere and none has been more generously discreet.

When La Fayette's thirst for glory was fairly satiated at Yorktown he made his way back to France, the hero of two worlds and the representative throughout France of the practical philosophy so soon to be embodied in the constitution of the United States. In the great revolution of 1789, which La Fayette and the "Americans" had done much to bring on, he was so powerful that he could attack by name the conscienceless brothers of Louis XVI, and denounce to all the world the sins of the ancient régime.

When men twitted him with being one of the titled and privileged grandees of France he promptly advocated the abolition of all titles and privileges. As the turmoil of the summer of 1789 tended to subside the lecherous and corrupt duke of Orleans was head of a powerful party which aimed at the dethronement of the king. At the same time Honoré Mirabeau, the pock marked libertine of the great convention, emerged as a champion of the royal family.

La Fayette organized or created the National Guard and was at the same time the most popular figure of the revolution. La Fayette felt an ineradicable dislike for the unscrupulous duke and he never was able to overcome his aversion for Mirabeau, and both the duke of Orleans and the great orator of the convention intrigued and bribed right and left in the hope of ruining the "American."

La Fayette might easily have become the master of France. He saved the lives of the king and queen more than once and he sought every day during the stormy years and months of 1789 to 1792 to give France a stable government with king, responsible ministry and a popular assembly as the dominating institutions.

There was hardly another man in the world, except Thomas Jefferson, for a time a daily consultant in Paris, who saw so clearly what kind of government would fit the needs and preferences of the coming century.

But the high tide turned and La Fayette went to the front as a general of the revolutionary army in the spring of 1792. In August he learned of the wild Jacobin coup d'état; on Aug. 17 he heard that he had been arraigned as a traitor before the revolutionary tribunal in Paris, and on Aug. 18 he and one or two close friends abandoned the army and sought refuge in Holland. There he thought the minister of the United States might claim him as a citizen of that country. William Short did not bestir himself and La Fayette fell into the hands of the Prussians, who in a little while turned him over to the Austrian government. He lay long, weary years in a dungeon at Olmütz while Madame de la Fayette besought Washington and the American minister in Paris for help—losing the while what remained of their family fortune.

The minister of the United States in Paris was not an eager friend of the prisoner at Olmütz, and George Washington was more careful of his diplomatic relations than he was of the life of his friends.

But the guns of Bonaparte taught the Austrians a gentler attitude and the La Fayettes, wiser if not happier, settled down upon a modest estate at La Grange where henceforth blooming fields, contented sheep and flourishing orchards occupied the ex-prisoner's attention. As Bonaparte merged into Napoleon, the "American," still powerful in France, gave earnest warning; when Louis XVIII. set back the clock in the summer of 1815 the farmer at La Grange warned again and took a seat in the national assembly; when Charles X. undertook to annul the constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press the romantic general of the American revolution heeded the call of the barricades and put himself at the head of the shouting masses of Paris, and once more refused to become president of a French republic which he had all but created.

Still insisting that France would prosper best under a limited monarchy, he made the son of the old duke of Orleans citizen king and called upon the vast armies of his friends to support him. In a year the "citizen king," Louis Philippe, denounced him and undertook once more to play an arbitrary rôle. The end came in 1832 and the "hero of two worlds" went to his grave in Pictus cemetery where Pershing found him in 1917.

Such is the dramatic story. Mr. Whitlock has traced it in faultless English and with absolute loyalty to truth.

British Novels Exploit Varied Family Tangles

View Modern Marriage in Many Ways.

"Windlestraws," by Phyllis Bottome. [Houghton Mifflin.]
"Chariot Wheels," by Sylvia Thompson. [Little, Brown.]
"The Uncertain Trumpet," by A. S. M. Hutchinson. [Little, Brown.]
"The Sleeping Fury," by Martin Armstrong. [Harcourt, Brace.]

All of these novels deal with marriage from the English point of view. In each case the scene is laid in the "tight little island" and the characters are as British as muffins and tea.

PHYLLIS BOTTOME.

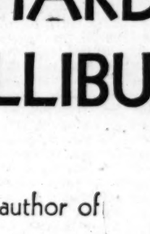
Miss Bottome, whose "Dark Tower" was singularly poignant and lovely, has written a much harder, less romantic, more cynical and sophisticated story in "Windlestraws." Her chief situation is the unusual one [one imagines] of a house into which the wife has introduced a charming young secretary as a sort of decoy duck to keep her husband interested so she may continue her own affair with his cousin, a dark and enchanting young chap who seems to have a perfect mesmeric attraction for every woman alive.

It's hard to believe that four human beings could continue long in such a complicated entanglement as results in "Windlestraws." In real life some one would snap under the strain. But it makes intriguing reading and toward the end of the book the reader is held in an almost breathless suspense.

Mr. Hutchinson, of "If Winter Comes," gives another picture of English country life from vicarage to castle in "The Uncertain Trumpet." Although his style is often so cumbersome, his sentences so long and involved that it is impossible to see the woods for the trees, still he succeeds in creating some not un-Dickensonian characters. Miss Mention, with her muffin hat and her propensity for writing memoirs, will be remembered, as will Father Absolute, the wise and understanding rector, and David Quest, the young vicar with a vision, and Sir Pelham Heritage, who might be first cousin to Soames Forsyte. Dawn Heritage, about whom the story revolves, is, oddly enough, the most shadowy person in the book. Mr. Hutchinson knows his men better than his women, and when it comes to drawing a caricature, as he does in the portraits of the Flogg-Wallopers, he is at his best.

A. S. M. HUTCHINSON.

"Chariot Wheels" is a pretty good answer to the common query: "Why are so many modern young people less interesting than their parents, and far inferior to them in character?" It shows you that parents clung to the old standards of loyalty, honesty, honor, virtue—words declared hollow by the children.



SYLVIA THOMPSON.

Cressida Midge is dragged at the chariot wheels of her egoistic author-husband and finds disillusion early in her life with him, but she sticks and never tells of her secret love for Robin, a man her own age and who could have made her happy. Her own daughter falls in love with him and only then does he reveal his love for Cressida, kept hidden all the years.

The last chapters are full of dramatic situations and the author fulfills the expectations aroused by "The Hounds of Spring" and "The Battle of the Horizons." She has the art of making the whole Victorian era as living and real as if we were in it at the present moment.

MARTIN ARMSTRONG.

You find in Martin Armstrong's "The Sleeping Fury" a leisurely novel, which nevertheless is not lacking in interest. This story of the everyday life of a fine group of English people is full of movement and tense feeling, although the events are ordinary enough. The life of Charlotte Mardale, in whom smolders the sleeping fury of love which bursts into flame for a few short moments, is one of remarkable beauty both in character and charm.

The powerful influences of training and convention stamp their mark upon the Mardales and the Hadlows, although nothing can subdue the force of love which appears in the daughter. There is a fearful struggle of love versus convention in her. "The Sleeping Fury" is an artistically realistic book and one you will long remember.

Use Opportunities to Come Close to Your Children

By Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans

A "Play Booklet" by Mrs. Bevans for mothers of pre-school children will be sent free on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

I've just torn up my introduction to this letter for lack of space. I'll give you the letter instead:

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: A thought occurred to me which might interest you: I welcomed two rainy days recently. Mary and Lou are 5 and 3 years old, and I had an opportunity to be much closer to them than I can when they are out all day long. Children seem to want to be outdoors all the time whether the weather is good or bad, and they want to stay out till the last minute, till they come in so tired there seems to be no time for a story, sometimes.

"So on those rainy days we had lots of fun. We read stories, and sat around the piano and sang, and I wrote the numbers from 1 to 120 on a big piece of paper, and Louise copied them beautifully, and we called up grandma and we all talked to her, and the children put some of the dining room chairs together, and brought pillows and played Pullman train.

"After awhile they made a house by putting the living room furniture together, and brought their doll furniture and put it in it. Before bedtime they took off their shoes and did stunts on the bed. I could go on and on. Mary likes to draw pictures, color them, and cut them out, and Lou tries to do the same. And Mary is intensely interested and inquisitive about spelling, geography, and addition.

"And so we had two busy and happy days and there were no children coming calling for mine before they were dressed, and I didn't have to run out and settle half a dozen scraps, and the extremely active boy next door didn't have a chance to frighten Lou, and the little girl on the corner who won't play unless she can be the mother or the teacher and have everything her own way had no chance to do so, and I didn't have to send the neighbor children home at lunch time, nor go out and hunt mine up to know what they were doing.

"I just wanted to pass along this thought of 'happy rainy days' to you."

Possibly, if I might be said to have a hobby in the fascinating subject about which I write and think so much it is that of having time for your children. This means not only having time for them, but seeing to it that you have some of that time truly with them. I hardly needed to write this which is already between the lines of the letter.

Bobby's mother had become a member of the eighteen day diet club and consequently this was the chief topic of discussion in the house. Christmas was near and Bobby was taken down to a local department store toy section to see Santa Claus. The man impersonating Santa Claus was rather slender in comparison to the usual picture of him.

Bobby looked at him in silence for a moment, and then popped up with: "Gee, mother, Santa Claus must be on the eighteen day diet, too."

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

J. N.: RAPID EATING IS IN many instances the cause of red, blotchy rashes on the face. When the digestion is overtaxed skin disturbances will result. Where there is imperfect mastication one is apt to wash the food down with water. More food is taken than is necessary, consequently overeating results.

Daily Massage Keeps the Hair Looking Its Best

A number of reports of falling hair have been coming in late—but as it is a characteristic of hair, like leaves, to do its falling in the autumn, unless the loss is heavy there is no particular reason for worry. New hairs will be in again in a short time. They are constantly growing in, so the loss should not be felt. If it is, though—and seen—some good vigorous scalp massage had better be given.

Of course, one must remember that constitutional conditions affect the hair for good and ill. Anemia, for instance, will cause the falling of hair and it may just be that some of the girls who went too heavily on the recent popular diet are getting a taste of what an ill advised fasting period will do to the general system.

Anything that impoverishes the state of the blood is going to make the hair less attractive, for the scalp and hair roots get their healthy sustenance from good nourishing blood. I continue believing, though, that the falling of hair is more often due to the prolonged periods in between brushings with the delays caused by refusals to upset the marcel or what is left of it after the end of the week.

A healthy scalp must get some kind of massage treatment and as I have said many times before, there is no mechanical form of massage equal to the hair brush with some good old fashioned elbow grease behind it.

One can tell when the hair is losing its vigor by the feel of it, by the way it won't respond to attractive dressing. Massage with the finger tips for five minutes can be done while you are lying down. But it is better to do it sitting up and after the five minute finger treatment give it five more with the brush.

When the scalp is tightly attached to the skull, free circulation of the blood is cut off and the hair suffers for lack of nourishment. Friction with the fingers will loosen it and more friction will set the nerves to tingling. The circulation will then awaken from its sluggish flow.

Accessories Prefer to Contrast with Costume

BY LOLITA.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Once more we have gathered about the old pump. In spite of all the Burbanked shoes which we see on every hand, the simple pump, which may or may not be trimmed with a bow, is the choice of the most fashionable women both here and abroad. In patent leather or kid, in suede or reptile, for daytime and evening, the opera pump is indeed the high power pump, fashionably speaking.

The best dressed women among us take care that hosiery and shoes are of one tone. The advantages of this system are obvious. There is no break in the line of tint to draw attention to any imperfections of limb and foot. It is perhaps for this reason that beige kid is reported to be in such favor with the Parisienne, for beige in every tone, including the deepest sunburn hues, is still the elected mode for hosiery.

Often the gloves, too, match hosiery and shoes. But this is not an invariable rule, for sets of black gloves and black hand bags, notably those in antelope, are worn with many formal costumes in colors as well as in black. Incidentally, the new gloves are long—often six button length. What is more, the button, which has for so long been taking a vacation from our gloves, is back once more. Thus on the new mousquetaire gloves there is often a tightly buttoned wrist.

Today we show a charming frock of beige crêpe de chine trimmed with a detachable fur scarf of brown caracul echoed in the border of the peplum. A brown suede belt indicates the waist line and the hat is in a combination of beige and brown felt. Gloves, bag, kid pumps, and hosiery are all of maroon tint.

Tribune Cook Book

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

On Cooking Celery Root.

Knob celery, or celery root, is a rather coarse and dirty looking vegetable, but it can be cleaned with a brush without any difficulty. It is also an insipid vegetable unless the cooking is peculiarly good. If it is used as a salad, or even as a hot vegetable, it is the little acid that is used in dressing it that changes it from being insipid to something quite agreeable. If one wishes to serve it hot, the best dressing is a rich meat stock with about an equal quantity of vinegar, or instead of the vinegar a French dressing can be added to get a milder and even pleasanter effect. The acid effect takes away any flavor that is near the sickish type.

A rich meat stock contains enough fat to protect a vegetable from the vinegar that might soak into it if it was used plain. High grade white and brown sauces are sometimes used on celery root when it is served as a hot vegetable. When served as a cold vegetable—that is, as a salad—one way to get it to have a nice sour flavor that some people like is to pour a little vinegar over it and let it stand a few minutes, then pour it off and add a mild dressing.

The easiest and quickest way of cooking celery root is to wash and brush it, cut it in slices, peel, and then, in the case of a small root, cook the thin slices whole. When the root is large it is perhaps best to dice the slices and cook them in a little water gently for twenty-five or thirty minutes. It is best to use only a small amount of water, and if any is left over it may be used in the sauce or in a dressing. Two tablespoons of sugar to a pint of diced celery root will soften its characteristic flavor and make it pleasanter.

Cooked celery root may be mashed and used as the basis of a soup, but it is not equal to the stem celery for that. However, it can be combined with carrots or other vegetables to make an excellent purée. A celery root, creamed and cooked whole without peeling, requires an hour or two of cooking, according to size.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

Here is a sports design suitable for classroom, travel or general utility wear, introducing a slender hipline rather suggestive of princess lines. The open neck is finished with a collar, and the sleeves with turned back cuffs. An inset at the front of the skirt is pressed into inverted plaits, forming box plaits, while inverted plaits at either side of the back form a center panel. The crossed arrangement at the back with the button is unusual and jaunty. This design is suitable for the sheer woolens or the heavier crêpes.

The pattern, 2,975, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material with ⅝ yard of 35 inch contrasting and 4¼ yards of binding.

FARM AND GARDEN BY PAUL POTTER

Fall spraying for the control of peach leaf curl, instead of the spring application, is recommended by W. D. Mills, plant pathologist of Cornell university.

This spray should be put on during the dormant period. A spring application, if properly timed, will control the disease, but with the uncertainty of spring weather the critical period may come during rainy weather unsuited for spraying. The fall spray may be put on any day when wind conditions are right and when it is not freezing.

A single application of lime-sulphur solution diluted one part to fifteen parts of water will control leaf curl and San Jose scale. Care should be taken to give the trees a thorough covering, because spores on uncovered twigs will live over the winter and infect other parts of the tree. Bordeaux 5-5-50, five pounds of copper sulphate, five pounds of lime and fifty gallons of water is also effective against curl but will not control scale.

Housebroken
BY PAUL HERVEY FOX

SYNOPSIS.

Tom Davies, football star of a small eastern college, plays brilliantly in his last game. After the battle Bruce Stevens, his roommate, asks him to go to the dance that night to escort a girl who'd been asked down to the college for him. Bruce explains that he wishes to avoid meeting one of the cahperons. Tom agrees to substitute for him. The girl, Suzanne Branch, makes an instantaneous appeal to him. She tells Tom that she is engaged to marry a friend of her father's. After she leaves, Tom writes to her. Before the Christmas holidays Tom meets Suzanne in New York. Suzanne breaks her engagement to the other man when she and Tom realize they love each other, and Suzanne invites Tom to her home to meet her family. Suzanne goes down to the college for commencement.

After graduation Tom's father gives him a small house at Stamford as a wedding present.

Suzanne and Tom are married in November, and for the first few months are perfectly happy. One day Tom stays in town to have dinner with some college friends and on his return Suzanne upbraids him. The storm blows over, and a few weeks later he promises to attend a prize fight with some of the boys. Suzanne creates such a scene that Tom gives up the idea.

About a year after their marriage Bruce Stevens returns from a trip to the orient. Tom is delighted to see him. He asks Bruce to occupy the guest room at their house. Suzanne and Tom quarrel over Bruce's visit. When Bruce tells Tom he will have to stay in town, Tom asks him as a special favor to stay on at Stamford. Then Suzanne becomes cordial to Bruce and later starts a flirtation with him. Bruce realizes that it is all pretense and is done to get rid of him and his influence by making Tom jealous. Bruce confides this to Tom and offers to help him, and together they arrange a plan.

Tom comes home one evening to find Suzanne in Bruce's arms. Tom storms around the house, and then Bruce tells him that he and Suzanne love each other and he is going to take her away with him to his camp in Maine. Tom agrees to let her go, and Suzanne is heartbroken at his willingness to be rid of her. She calls up her friend, Kathleen Mobley, and asks her to go to Maine with them. She agrees, and the three drive up to Maine and manage to make themselves comfortable in Bruce's shack.

INSTALLMENT XXIV.

THE STORM.

Suddenly there was a jagged lightning flash, and the whole face of the water was lit up for a brief instant. There followed one violent crack, and a rumble of descending thunder.

"O!" Kathleen gasped. "I—I didn't know it was going to do this! O, let's get back to the house!"

"Haven't time!" Bruce shouted. "We'll get drenched out in the open. Better get back into the woods."

As he spoke, the first drops of rain began to fall, and he caught her arm, and drew her out of the open. Then he suddenly noticed she was trembling.

"You aren't afraid?" he asked.

"O, no!" She gave an uneasy laugh. There was a second lightning flash and a closer peal of thunder. And suddenly she walled: "O, what will I do, what will I do?" in a tremulous voice.

"Kathleen!" he felt an immense tenderness for her suddenly. "It's all right! You'll be all right!" He put his arm around her shoulders protectively, and she huddled closer.

He had thought her so completely balanced, so perfectly equipped, that he was startled at this new realization. And she seemed to him so helpless, so needing protection, that he was infinitely touched.

Then all at once he drew her still more tightly to him, and kissed her.

"You're all right," he went on, saying whatever came into his head. "I won't let it hurt you!"

Forked tongues split the sky into three sections. She buried her head against Bruce's shoulder. He held her tightly. His lips were close to her hair, her body sheltered by his.

The storm in its violence was not long in wearing itself out. It passed to the southward rapidly, and with one last rumble of thunder, departed. The sky grew gray again, and though the water lashed itself angrily, the wind was already dropping into quietness.

But he still held her. She looked up and met his eyes:

"I'm sorry I'm such a fool. But I—I can't help it. Once, when I was quite small, lightning struck awfully near me, and ever since . . ."

Her voice died away. His eyes held her, and she could not stir. For a long time he stared. Then, all at once, he drew her still more tightly to him, and kissed her.

She pushed him away, stood looking up at him, her lips parted a little, her breath coming hard. Then, "O!" she said: "O! . . ."

The next instant she had turned and run blindly through the pine-woods. He called her name, and she did not answer. After a while he could not even hear the crackling of twigs beneath her feet.

All at once he felt exceptionally light hearted. He wanted to sing, he wanted to shout and laugh. He felt as if he had become another person. He remembered his cynicisms and his dissipations—they seemed to belong to some one else.

He started back for the house. Then all at once he was arrested by another thought.

What must she think of him in reality? Here he was, having run away with his best friend's wife, now making love to her? What could she think of him that was good? No wonder she had run like that!

There came over him an unutterable longing to be free from the false position in which he had placed himself. Why didn't Suzanne return to Tom—how long was she going to wait, andway? She was obviously miserable without him, and yet she wouldn't budge. She acted as if she meant to stay here forever!

He would do something, he would act at once! He strode towards the house. His heart was jumping with an emotion which he had boasted he was free from as he entered, but there was no sign of Kathleen. But Suzanne, who had been reading a book, glanced up.

He did not mean to be so abrupt, but the thought dominated everything else in his mind. He pulled up a chair, offered her a cigaret, and scowled.

"I wonder what Tom is doing now?" he said suddenly.

She winced, but only looked at him from brown, sombre eyes.

He gave a short and bitter laugh and answered his own question. "O, he's probably amusing himself—while you're up here like this! Women like him, you know."

"What do you mean?" she faltered.

"He's probably got his hands full with a love affair of his own by this time," he said bluntly.

She stared at him as if he had struck her. "That couldn't be true," she whispered at last.

It seemed to Bruce he was succeeding. Jealousy and fear were written all over her.

"O," he said casually, "it's true of every man. Tom's no different. I was with him all through college, and I guess I ought to know!"

All the color had gone out of her face. Now, when he was least expecting it, her mouth trembled, she gave a little sob, and burst into unhappy weeping.

He felt suddenly brutal and ashamed. "I'm sorry," he said. "I didn't really mean that. Of course, Tom isn't like the rest of us. There's no truth to what I said!"

But she shook off his protests. "No," she said at last, "it is true, I know it's true! But I don't care! I don't care what happens to him now. I'm glad you've made me realize. Because now I'll never go near him. I'll never even think of him again so long as I live!"

She got up suddenly and went into the bedroom. He remained where he was. Why, he asked himself, had he ever got mixed up in this domestic battle? Tom was able to look out for his own affairs, or should be.

Bruce groaned. He swore at himself. He would have told Suzanne the whole story then and there, if he hadn't realized that that would have ruined Tom and hurt her still more. But he must do something—he could not go on like this! And his attempt had only fortified her resolution.

When, sometime later, Kathleen came in, she would not meet his eyes. She spoke almost entirely to Suzanne, and her voice was quite steady. But when they ate that night, there was little talk between any of them.

Now and then Bruce would look up at Kathleen. How beautiful she seemed with the dim light throwing shadows across her serene and perfect face! He was content just to look at her. And happiness, mingled with a strange sadness, filled his heart. He knew now, beyond all doubt, that he had fallen in love. That was why, in these last few days, his recklessness had fallen in love. That was why, in these last few days, his recklessness had fallen-in love. That was why, in these last few days, his recklessness had fallen-in love. That was why, in these last few days, his recklessness had fallen-

T. Roosevelt to Arrive Today, Talk Tomorrow

BY THALIA

Kermit Roosevelt is to arrive in Chicago this morning to be here just over the week-end. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Field are to have him as their house guest at their apartment at 1550 State parkway. They are to give a luncheon in the president's room of the Field museum for him tomorrow before he gives his lecture at the museum about hunting giant tigers in Tibet, near the Chinese frontier.

The Fields have invited about 70 guests to lunch with the famous hunter, and to hear him talk formally afterward. William V. Kelley is to give a lunch for him today at the Chicago club, and Mr. and Mrs. Kelley are to entertain at supper for him tomorrow evening.

The reason society never tires of debut parties, even if they are all much the same, is, I think, because they're all such pretty affairs. The dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Fitts to introduce their daughter, Martha, at the Saddle and Cycle last night was all flickering candle flames from white tapers in myriads of candelabra. There was lustrous green smilax twined in and about here and there. The debutante was all in white, too, wearing a gown of silver moire with a white tulle skirt, and a bouquet of gardenias which was the gift of her sister, Mrs. John Hinton of Honolulu, who couldn't come to the debut party because she and her husband are army people and won't have their leave until next spring.

Miss Jessica Hambleton's debut tea, given for her by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chalkley Jay Hambleton, at the Fortnightly in the afternoon, was all lovely and flowery with many bouquets. Miss Hambleton wore pale green taffeta trimmed in silver and carried pink roses, and Mrs. Hambleton was in black satin with touches of white.

Miss Betty Williamson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Spencer Williamson of 1517 Dearborn parkway, and Miss Phoebe Logan, daughter of Stuart H. Logan of 2344 Lincoln Park West are today's buds. Both girls are to be presented at teas at the respective residences of their parents, with evening parties following.

Miss Katherine Dudley, one of Miss Williamson's assistants, is to give a supper dance for her at Knollwood, and there is to be buffet supper at the Logan apartment. Henrietta Cuntiss, Joy Fairman, and Grace Dewes are to assist at both teas. Miss Logan's other assistants include Barbara Poole, Christabel Wheeler, Janet Kirk, Anne Small, Frances Wood, Betty Durham, Veronese Beatty, Carol Bourne, Rosemary Sidley, and Emily Pope, and Miss Williamson's will be Cornelia Fairbanks, Marianne Stevenson, Marianne Ruffner, Jessica Hambleton, Betty Parker, Betty Holland, Ruth Fisher, Jane McKinley, Barbara Barrett, and Frances Weary.

The marriage of Miss Amelia Owsley Craig, daughter of the late Rev. Willis G. Craig D. D. of McCormick theological seminary to George Pasfield Jr. of Springfield, Ill., is to be solemnized this afternoon at the residence of the bride's niece, Mrs. Hasbrouck Haynes of 234 Lee street, Evanston.

The Rev. John Timothy Stone is to read the service before a group of members of the families of the bride and groom, and a few intimate friends. Miss Craig is the sister of Bryan Y. Craig of the Pearson hotel. After a six weeks' wedding trip in Bermuda, Mr. Pasfield and his bride will reside in Springfield.

Among those who have taken boxes and tickets for the Rosa Raisa concert at the Civic Opera house tomorrow evening are Mr. and Mrs. John J. Mitchell, Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, Mrs. Edward Hines, Mr. and Mrs. George D. McLaughlin, the Stuyvesant Peabodys, Mr. and Mrs. George J. Cooke, and Mr. and Mrs. John Coleman Jr. Proceeds of the concert will go to the fund to furnish the hospital which the nursing sisters of the Little Company of Mary are building.

Frank McNair and his daughter, Miss Betty McNair, are to give a tea from 4 to 7 o'clock on Monday, Dec. 14, at their residence at 1430 Lake Shore drive. Because of the death of her mother, Miss McNair has not made her debut formally and this will be a sort of informal coming out for her.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer H. Logan (Nancy McNutt), who were married last Saturday evening at the residence of Mr. Logan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan, took a plane from Curtiss field out at Glenview, flew to Terre Haute, and from there motored to Indianapolis. There they boarded a transcontinental plane for Los Angeles. They are planning to return by air.

Mrs. Walter H. Buhlig is to give a luncheon at the Chicago Woman's club for Miss Jean Bain, whose engagement to Charles Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Baker of Marion, Ind., was announced recently. Miss Bain is the daughter of John Bain.

WEDDINGS, ENGAGEMENTS

The marriage of Miss Henrietta Calkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lucius A. Calkins of 5846 Kenmore avenue, to Henry Day Penfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Chapin Penfield of Evanston, is to take place today at the church of the Atonement. Attending Miss Calkins will be Mrs. Louis E. Tilden as matron of honor, Miss Mary Calkins as maid of honor, and Miss Mary Penfield and Miss Katherine George as bridesmaids. Graham Penfield is to be best man for his brother, and the ushers will include Norwood Burch, Donald Schaffer, Robert Stevenson III, Philip M. White and Philip Adams of Dubuque, Ia.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Drayer of Wilmette announce the engagement of their daughter, Jean, to Edward Frederick Potthoff of Urbana, Ill., son of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Potthoff of Cincinnati, O. Miss Drayer was valedictorian of the class of 1927 at the University of Illinois, and is a member of Alpha Phi sorority. Dr. Potthoff holds degrees from Miami university, and the University of Chicago, and is a member of the faculty of the College of Education at the University of Illinois. The wedding is to take place during the Christmas holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Rose of 3500 Sheridan road announce the engagement of their niece, Elsa, daughter of Moses Eisenstark of Insterburg, Germany, to Martin Davidson of Chicago, son of Rabbi and Mrs. A. Davidson of Rastenburg, Germany.

Memorial Exhibit of O. D. Grover's Art at Knoedler Galleries

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

There are few artists whose deaths have meant more serious loss to Chicago than Oliver Dennett Grover, who died two years ago. When we lost him we lost a great painter. A memorial exhibition of his paintings opens today in the Knoedler galleries. A survey of the walls gives ample evidence of his genius. He was an artist to whom the beauty of nature carried a profound message.

In the present exhibition there are several magnificent paintings of the mountains and lakes in our west. "Mt. Grinelle, Glacier National Park," is very lovely. Particularly beautiful, rich with a warm, deep color, is "Nature's Mirror, Emerald Lake." There are other canvases in which the shadows and the light, the water and the trees and sky are harmonious components of varying hymns to beauty.

The Italian paintings are as beautiful. Now and again there is a trial of a manner not peculiarly his own. There is a hint of the pointelliste in one, for example, and another, "Venetian Sails," is impressionistic in mood, but the most of them are characteristic of his own manner, a manner that made for serenity and dignity and beauty. In "Lago Maggiore" and "A Bit of Old Italy" and in "Misty Day, Bay of Salerno," so close is the painting to his spirit that you hold your breath for fear of disturbing the deep delight with which his eyes saw and his soul drank in this mood and tempo and atmosphere of land and sky and sea.

Mr. Grover is represented in many collections. The Chicago Art institute owns a magnificent mountain lake painting of his. Other men are painting this country after him, none with more romance or truth or clearer vision. As a man Mr. Grover was [something a little rare today] a gentleman, courtly and modest; as a painter he was great. Both qualities —his gentleness and his power—are alive in his paintings. They are deathless and the canvas stamped with them will live.

The exhibition is one of the richest to be found in a Chicago gallery today. Water colors by Arthur B. Davies, Frank W. Benson, Winslow Homer, John Singer Sargent, and a whole wall of wash drawings by Rodin enlarge the importance of the Grover display. The Davies group of three landscapes is exquisite, the Bensons are vigorous, the Sargents stimulating, the Homer unusually fine, and the Rodin drawings fascinating. We see the sculptor in the draftsman. These probably are sketches for groups he contemplated; one, almost certainly, is the drawing from which the great Frenchman later evolved his "Eve."

The exhibition will continue through Dec. 14.

Pepper Retires from State Baptist Association

Duquoin, Ill., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—In resigning as secretary of the Illinois State Baptist association, the Rev. J. M. Pepper today said that during his two years' incumbency he had reduced the indebtedness of the association from $135,000 to $55,000. The association controls Ewing college, Carmi Baptist orphanage, and other properties. Mr. Pepper will be succeeded by the Rev. E. W. Reeder of Carbondale.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

Pola Negri, movie star, yesterday filed suit for divorce from her husband, Prince Serge Mdivani, in the courts of Paris, charging incompatibility of temperament. Immediately upon learning of the movie star's action, Mary McCormic, former Chicago Civic Opera singer, called up Prince Mdivani by trans-Atlantic telephone.

"It took two hours to reach him, and we talked $160 worth, but it was more than worth it," the singer said. "We had a lot to talk about that wouldn't interest the public at all—just ourselves. We don't know just when we'll be married. You see, so many Americans have been indiscreet about getting their Paris divorces and Pola may not get hers. It will take from six weeks to three months."

Miss McCormic plans to sail for France on Dec. 20 to start her season with the Opera Comique in January and will see the prince in Paris.

Cable dispatches from Paris said Miss Negri refused to comment on her suit and showed some bitterness at the prince's haste in acquiring new fiancées, declaring he has at least three besides Miss McCormic.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—Vice President Curtis has postponed his dinner in honor of President and Mrs. Hoover to Tuesday evening, Jan. 7. This is the first dinner in the series to be given in honor of the Hoovers by members of the cabinet, in the order of their precedence.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. George Barnett have closed their summer home, Wakefield Manor, on the Rappahannock and have taken possession of the home of Mrs. John Allan Dougherty at 1712 R street for the winter.

Representative and Mrs. Richard Yates received word last evening of the birth of a son yesterday to their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Wishart Henderson in their home near Glasgow.

Police to the Rescue.

This last Halloween eve I had been informed by the lady next door that her two children and four or five others intended paying me a visit in costume during the evening.

In due time there came a knock at the door and I opened it, finding the little girls all in gay array. I pretended great fright, running around inside the house, calling "Police! Police! Help!" Finally they left and there was another knock. Expecting the little boys I opened the door—and to my horror there stood two policemen!

The lady upstairs heard me playing with the children and thinking I was being held up called the police.

E. H.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Radio Would Brighten Hours.

"I am a Sister of Mercy who has been in bed here since June. The last week or two I have been able to sit up, but I cannot read because of headache. It occurred to me that you might be able to get me a radio. I would like to have one without permanent outside aerial fixtures, perhaps a portable or electric set on a direct current. I hope you will not think my request too extravagant.

"S. M. F."

Only the invalid who must lie in bed day after day knows how long and unending the hours can be.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Better Forget Him.

"Dear Miss Blake: My boy friend and I quarreled. I think he dropped me for good, but I still love him. How can I win him back? LONESOME."

Nothing is more dismal than trying to rekindle an old love. Forget him and seek new friendships.

Doris Advises This Girl to Take Parents' Counsel

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"We are in love. The boy is 22, I am 17. He wants to be my best beau. My parents object. They know nothing about him except what they have heard from friends. He is not a drinker—but he will drink once in a while. He promises to stop it if I will go with him.

"My parents say I must wait until I'm 18. But I'm afraid if I wait until then he will form the habit of drinking and so ruin his life. With my help now I could easily prevent that.

"HELEN."

When we are young we do love to feel that some soul's salvation depends on us, Helen. It's really part of the growing pains—the feeling that we and we only can save one from destruction. Then when we are not so young we begin to believe that a soul's salvation depends more upon the individual himself than upon our noble efforts.

Not that we are discouraging good example nor trying to underestimate the value of a good girl's influence. But when young we are wont to exaggerate our power, that's all. In fact, we are wont to exaggerate the threatened state of the soul. Often the case does not call for the heroics we thought at first.

I suppose you mean that the boy drinks with other boys at parties, as so many of the foolish youths do nowadays. It's a weakness rather than a vice with him, in other words. At that, though, parents have the right to be influenced against the chap who has not the moral courage to give a refusal, don't you think, especially if the happiness of their only daughter is bound up with him.

You must try to get their point of view, too, and not be too intolerant of theirs, as you probably think they are of yours. I know if I had the good fortune to have a daughter of 17 I'd be pretty quaky about her taste in boys. And I'd feel uncomfortable, too, if she set her heart upon a boy five years older who seemed to feel the need of a girl to reform him.

GRIFFITH BEATS UZCUDUN BEFORE 15,000

85,000 DEFY COLD TO SEE NOTRE DAME-ARMY GAME

CADETS STAKE ALL IN FINAL EFFORT TODAY

Cagle to Make Last Appearance.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 29.—Notre Dame and the Army will play their sixteenth football game at the Yankee stadium tomorrow afternoon in bitter weather, before 85,000 people, including the entire cadet corps of the United States military academy filling the triple deck grandstands and the bleachers, tickets were being scalped on Broadway this morning at $50 a seat no closer to the field than the ten yard line.

Whether or not there were any takers at this price, this was the asking price, nevertheless, and a fair indication of the crazy enthusiasm with which New York has accepted the visiting football squad from South Bend, Ind., as substitutes for the midshipmen team of the United States naval academy, who used to occupy this date on the Army's schedule.

The Notre Dame team detrained at Harmon, the upriver division point of the New York Central about forty miles from the city, this morning and rolled over the bleak hills of Westchester to the Biltmore Country club, where it held dummy scrimmage in an arctic wind, almost a gale, for an hour late in the afternoon.

Lieb Directs Workout.

Tom Lieb, first assistant to Knute Rockne, directed the work, while Jack Chevigney, who played in the back field until last year, moved about the uneven fairway of the golf course, where the workout took place, assisting the first assistant. They had little to do, however, for the work was mainly defensive, apparently intended to emphasize the need of a close watch over Chris K. Cagle, the army's captain, running back and passer. As the ball was snapped to the back field men of the second team, the Notre Dame regulars yelled "Cagle! Cagle!" and knifed through to stifle the throw or covered the receivers. They were canny and deft, and even in this mock scrimmage they showed a higher degree of know-how and drill than any other team that has marred the turf on the eastern seaboard this fall.

The Army squad left the military academy in the morning, and within two hours the forty cadets and eight coaches of the detail had set down their duffle in the suburban quarters of the New York Athletic club, a small neck of land jutting out into the gummy clam flats of Long Island sound at Pelham, where they were to spend the afternoon and night.

Jones on Inspection Tour.

After lunch Capt. Biff Jones, who is completing a twelve year tour of duty at the academy as assistant coach and head coach, drove down to the Bronx, about eight miles away, to inspect the arrangements in the stadium. It had been his intention to rout out the team late in the afternoon for a half hour's frolic on the club grounds, but when he returned the blow off the ground was so bitter and boisterous that he decided not to disturb the young men. At the word of this huddle ruling the players in the circle about the log fire drew closer to the pleasant blaze and the play livened at the tables in the card room, where action was rife, supposedly on an amateur basis, it being no fair, unmanly, and generally illegal to possess funds in excess of one dollar in the gray realm of the West Pointer.

Full Uniforms Put Away.

The full dress uniforms with the gorgeous brass buttons and gilt decorations which will set off the lads on parade appearance at the theater Saturday night, win, lose or draw, were taken from the hangers in the living quarters upstairs, and they spent the day in slack attitudes, wearing shapeless pants and jerseys.

After dinner, a band of hardy Californians weathered the gale along the shore road and hove to at the Hippodrome Cochere to discourse their proffessional routines free, for the diversion of the Army team on the eve of the big occasion.

Eagle and Johnny Murrel, the four man men of the Army's back field, who is facing Notre Dame for the last time in tomorrow's game, and if both of them has saved any zeal, will all be exploded then, although it will be heard of a football player

NAVY'S PREPARED FOR DARTMOUTH; CHANCES EVEN

Com. Ingram Relieved as Middies' Chief.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Radiating confidence for tomorrow's game in Philadelphia against Dartmouth, the United States Naval academy football team completed preparations this afternoon with formation drills, passing and kicking. In every aspect the Middies appeared shipshape for the season's final game.

The feeling here is that the teams are about evenly matched and that the Navy has a good chance for victory.

Art Spring as the Navy's best running back has not taken any part in the harder practices this week on account of a bad knee, but he was active this afternoon. He will not start tomorrow, but is figured to play a large part later in the game.

The whole regiment of midshipmen will be given leave after the game tomorrow, and will not be required to report until about train time on the return trip.

The football squad will leave at 8:45 tomorrow morning and the regiment, by two trains, shortly after. The return trip will start shortly after noon Sunday.

The selection of Capt. Henry D. Cooke as head of the department of physical training at the Naval academy to succeed Commander Jonas H. Ingram has been approved by the navy department. As soon as Capt. Cooke is relieved of his present duty, probably early in February, the transfer will take place. Commander Ingram has been assigned as executive officer of the U. S. S. Pennsylvania.

The ordinary period of duty at the Naval academy is three years, and Commander Ingram will have exceeded this period by more than half a year, his term extending over four football seasons.

Sox Put 35 on Reserve List; Cubs Name 39

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

If the White Sox should go to camp next February with the men now on the roster there would be 35 playing faces for Manager Donie Bush to look at. That number are included in the reserve list, just issued. Only seven of them, including Smead Jolley, the recently purchased outfield, are absolute strangers to White Sox flannels. It is likely that about half of this freshly picked half dozen will be dispensed with before starting the training jaunt to San Antonio.

Two of the new ones are looked upon as youths of great promise. One is Vic Frasier, picked from Dallas on which team the Sox held an option. He was one of the Texas league's outstanding hurlers. He record last season was 15 wins and 8 defeats. The other is Ernest Smith, drafted from Birmingham of the Southern association. Smith will be given a chance to run Bill Cissell off the shortstop job.

The 1930 reserve list of the Cubs is made up of 39 playing fellows but some of them are doomed for return to Reading or Los Angeles. Coaches Burke and Land also are under reserve. On the playing squad as now made up are two Bells and two Taylors. One of the Bell boys is Lester, recently obtained from the Braves. The other is George, a pitcher, purchased from Mobile. The Taylors are Zack, the catcher and Danny, the outfielder, who was recalled after an excellent season at the Reading farm.

Manager Bush is going to be the only White Sox representative at the minor league convention next week in Chattanooga. Bush probably will find himself the center of interest for the numerous old timers who congregate at such affairs. The Sox pilot is supposed to be hunting for an assistant and there will be numerous applicants. Big Ed Walsh, who was the only coach carried by the Sox last season, is not named on the new reserve list. This may mean he is not going to be reengaged.

It comes from various sources that when the minors got going at Chattanooga they will force Mike Sexton, president of the National association, to rescind his decision by which he banished for one year George Toporcer of the Rochester team. Toporcer was charged with roughing an umpire during the little world series. Most of the baseball people seem to think Sexton overstepped himself in his verdict. The player wasn't given a chance to present his side of the case at the hearing which was hastily called for Chicago.

Frank Carideo's generalship, an outstanding factor in Notre Dame's success this year, will be tested against army trained maneuvering in New York today.

IOWA'S FRIENDS EXPECT BIG TEN REINSTATEMENT

Illini and Chicago May Be Hostile.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 29. — University of Iowa, suspended from the Western conference last May for proselyting and subsidizing boys who make touchdowns and break track records, will be restored to good standing a week from tonight.

EDWARD H. LAUER.

That's the prediction of university officials, students and townspeople. Action otherwise by the Big Ten faculty committee when it meets in Chicago starting next Friday to consider Iowa's case would shock the corn belt.

Iowa is not going before the conference board with its hat in hand. They don't do things that way out here. But it will go equipped with ample evidence to convince skeptics that it has put its house in order.

Dr. Edward Lauer, serving his first year as athletic director, believes reinstatement is the only verdict the Big Ten jury can return. His failure to make any effort to line up basketball or football schedules for next year is advanced as evidence. The board of athletic control is about finished with the preparation of its petition. Contents of the plea are to be withheld from the press until the Chicago meeting, but these are the points Iowa will present:

GEO. BRESNAHAN.

1. It is guarding more vigilantly the matter of scholastic eligibility of its athletes. This has been effected by having the registrar as well as the chairman of the board of athletics certify the list of eligibles. This practice has not been observed here in recent years.

2. It has abandoned its plan to have George Bresnahan, accused of unethical practices in recruiting athletes, serve as director of intercollegiate athletics under Mr. Lauer. Mr. Bresnahan will be retained as track coach.

Athletic Board Changed.

3. The board of athletics has been reorganized to assure faculty control. Instead of an advisory group it has become a supervisory organization. Clement C. Williams, dean of the school of engineering, has become chairman of the board, displacing the director of athletics. Mr. Lauer, athletic director, has been named secretary of the board. Lack of faculty control was said last May to have been the principal reason for ousting Iowa from the conference.

4. It has investigated all charges against individual athletes and has disqualified those against whom accusations were substantiated.

5. The practice of student notes, one of the charges in the bill of particulars last spring, has been discontinued. Every student at Iowa must pay tuition upon enrollment.

Athletic Fund Gone.

6. Assurance that there is no fund existing in Iowa City or elsewhere to the administration's knowledge used to aid athletes through school.

These are Iowa's answers to what it

A TYPICAL POSE

Eckersall Says Griffith Fought His "Best Fight"

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Victory of Griffith stamps him as one of the leading contenders for the heavyweight title vacated by Gene Tunney. By winning from a fighter of Paulino's type the local heavyweight showed his admirers he can take it and still come back for more. While Tuffy was unable to even stagger his heavier opponent, he scored with enough punches to win by a comfortable margin.

Uzcudun has met some of the best heavyweights in the game, with the exception of Jack Sharkey, generally considered the strongest contender for the heavyweight title. Paulino has knocked several down for counts, but he was unable to make Tuffy even go to one knee, although he staggered the local fighter on two occasions.

Tuffy Depends on Boxing.

Griffith depended upon his boxing ability for victory. He repeatedly jabbed his opponent with a left hand as many as four times without returns. All these punches counted and it was apparent that the Basque was trying to connect with one punch. Griffith knew this and either slipped the blows or stepped back out of reach. On some occasions Tuffy purposely took punches to land with either a left hook or right cross.

Paulino covered throughout most of the fight. He assumed a half crouching position with both hands covering his face. He protected his body with his forearms and elbows. In this position he tore in several times and shot wild swings for the head or directed his attack to the body. In the second round, the Spaniard scored with a hard right uppercut to Tuffy's nose and the blood continued to flow for the remainder of the fight. This was practically the only damage inflicted during the entire fight.

Can't Slow Up Uzcudun.

From the start of the fight, Griffith tried repeatedly to connect with his wicked right crosses. On a few occasions, the blows reached their marks but they did not even slow up the husky foreigner, who fought back desperately every time Griffith connected with a hard punch.

Although Griffith tried with his right in every round, it was his left that scored the winning points. Aside from straight jabs to the face, Griffith employed left hooks and uppercuts. As early as the second round, the local heavyweight discovered he could reach Paulino's jaw with a left hook. Time and again, Griffith feinted Uzcudun in such positions that he dropped his right hand, then Griffith shot over his left hooks. The Spaniard, however, was ever mindful to keep his left high to prevent Tuffy from scoring with right crosses or swings.

Following the fight it was rumored around the ringside that Griffith and Jack Sharkey of Boston will be the principals in a fight to be staged at Miami, Fla., this winter.

Tuffy Tears In.

Contrary to expectations, Griffith lost no time to mix with his heavier opponent as the bell sounded for the opening round. Tuffy tore in with head down and there was plenty of head to head and toe to toe fighting. The exchanges were about even and neither had an advantage when the round closed

Shortly after the start of the second round, Paulino shot a vicious left hook to the jaw. The blow knocked Tuffy back on his heels but he recovered in a moment. The Spaniard thought the local fighter was hurt and tore in to land punches around the head and body. As they pulled away from close quarters, Paulino turned loose a right uppercut which landed on Tuffy's nose bringing blood. They were in a rally at the bell and Paulino had the best of the round.

Griffith took the third stanza by clean punching. His left was very effective, and he scored repeatedly with two and three straight lefts to the face followed by rights to the jaw and body in one, two fashion. Paulino kept shooting for the body but Tuffy blocked most of the punches with his forearms and gloves. Tuffy had the edge at the bell.

Honors Even in 4th Round.

Honors were about even in the fourth session. They traded punch for punch to the head and body and were in a furious rally on the ropes at the bell. The Spaniard had a slight edge in the fifth round. Paulino changed his tactics and landed several hard right swings to the jaw. He brought his left into commission near the close

Celebrities Honor Muldoon; 850 Pay $85 Cover Charge

New York, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Celebrities from all walks of life paid tribute tonight to William Muldoon, aged "solid man" of sport, at a testimonial banquet in honor of his 85th birthday. There were 850 guests who paid $85 apiece to gather and sing the praises of the veteran member of the New York state athletic commission.

Speeches were limited to 85 words each. In a somewhat longer speech of gratitude, Mr. Muldoon thanked the celebrants for their thoughtfulness not only to himself but also to the charities which benefited from the banquet subscriptions.

Among the guests, who included prominent bankers, sportsmen, famous industrial leaders, was Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, while Gene Tunney wirelessed felicitations from the liner carrying him back to the United States from Italy.

Although Mr. Muldoon, in perfect health despite his 85 years, has gained his chief fame through his activities at the head of the New York boxing commission, his career has been one of the most varied and colorful in sports history.

Cold Ruins Sellout Predictions.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Tuffy Griffith of Chicago, Sioux City, and other points, last night convinced the referee, one of the two judges, and the majority of the 15,579 customers present at the Chicago Stadium that he had whipped Paulino Uzcudun, the homely Basque, in ten rounds of boxing.

The evening thus furnished two major upsets. Uzcudun had been expected to win and a gate of $100,000 or more had been anticipated. The actual intake, according to the check up of the Illinois boxing commission, was $62,365.89.

It was the first fight under the so called "civic" management of the Stadium, and the fact that it was the smallest gate of any of the important attractions in the magnificent sport emporium was attributed to several reasons, including the fact that the thermometer was flirting with zero at the time the spectators were called upon to assemble.

Uncarded Bout Staged.

Despite the chagrin in the counting room, the spectacle was hailed a success as there was much fighting presented and young Tuffy is highly popular hereabouts. There was very little of the customary booing when Griffith was pronounced the winner. Referee Dave Miller appraised the matter as Griffith triumph and so did Judge W. A. Battye. Judge L. E. Osborn opined it was a draw.

There was a little displeasure at the verdict, however. Some of the betting element got to arguing at the ringside and there was a bit of unbilled fighting. Some of the boys in the debate were known to be toting pistols but did not draw and police eventually restored order without even being forced to wrest a single revolver from any of the debaters. (For aftermath items of this phase, see front page police news.)

There was another unheralded feature which bobbed up on the evening's program. After the first bout a leatherlunged gent arose in the first balcony and besought quiet on the plea he had an important announcement. The man, in a rich stentorian voice, then placed Paddy Harmon in nomination for the presidency of the Chicago Stadium. Of course, there was no balloting but the man sat down, apparently feeling he had accomplished some sort of artistic coup.

Crowd for Griffith.

While the crowd obviously was for Tuffy from the outset there was an apparent nervousness and dread that the Basque might eventually land a series of his wild swings and uppercuts and sweep away the youngster's scoring advantage. This cut down the whoopee business and noisy cheering during the progress of the fight.

But not so during the Salvatore Ruggirello-Hein Mueller semi-windup. This bout gave the noisy brethern a chance to howl their enthusiasm for Herr Mueller, making his American debut, against the giant Italian, who outweighed him 14 pounds and several years of experience.

German Victors Popular.

The victories of Hein Domgargen and Mueller lifted some of the depression in the counting room, for they are considered porteges of Matchmaker Nate Lewis, of the Stadium, who argues that since Schmeling won't fight, the German-American newly become fight fans are entitled to something to arouse their enthusiasm. Mr. Mueller is looked upon as a future drawing card, provided he isn't overmatched before he is enabled to add to his ring experience.

Taffy Abel, Blackhawk defense man who was sent to a hospital because of blood poisoning in his right arm Thursday, was progressing favorably yesterday and was expected to leave the hospital not later than Monday. In fact, a slender hope was held that he might recover in time to don his hockey pads for the Blackhawks' contest with the Boston Bruins tomorrow night. A hangnail on Abel's index finger became infected and the poison spread through the arm.

Though Abel may not be ready to return to the game tomorrow night, Eddie Shore, Boston's battering ram defense man, is likely to get back on the ice despite the injuries which have started an intraleague war. In the battle with the Montreal Maroons a week ago, Shore suffered a broken nose, the loss of three teeth and both eyes blacked. He was unable to play against Montreal at Boston late Sunday.

Incidentally, tomorrow's game between the Blarkhawks and Bruins is another contest in which the players never have been too gentle. It dates back to three years ago when a particularly vicious battle between them led to a couple of slugging matches. In that game 26 penalties were called, Shore being the chief offender, so the Hawks love him no more than Montreal.

One of the freak penalties in the Ranger-Hawk game Thanksgiving night became a little less clear after an explanation yesterday. Vic Ripley drew a major penalty after a foul had been called on him for tripping, for asking the referee, "What the hell's that for?" The rules provide a major penalty for "using foul and abusive language to any official," but there seems to be a question whether a mild "hell" in the stress of a close game is "foul language."

Critic Lauds Tuffy's Fight; Decision 'Just'

Griffith started the seventh round by jabbing with his left hand. He blocked Uzcudun's punches for his body and came back with hard rights to the jaw and body. The Spaniard appeared irritated because he could not land with any of his favorite punches and at times he rushed Tuffy to neutral corners to hammer him around the body.

Eighth Round to Tuffy.

The eighth round went to Griffith by a slight margin. Tuffy began to show the effects of wrestling and tugging with his opponent and his blows lacked the usual force. Griffith won a slight edge by use of his left hand. The Basque was stronger and he knew it.

Paulino held his own in the ninth stanza when he landed with a solid right to the stomach. The blow made Tuffy double up and he held on momentarily. After the break from the clinch Griffith covered nicely and in the stand-off style of milling had the advantage.

The Spaniard won the tenth round by a slight shade. Paulino tossed science to the winds and tried to land with either hand on one of Griffith's jaws. Griffith covered, for he knew he had the fight won and all he had to do was to protect himself. At times he turned loose his left to stab his opponent and keep him from getting set to deliver a solid punch.

German Beats Italian.

In the ten round semi-windup Hein Mueller, the German heavyweight, was given the decision over Salvatore Ruggirello of Italy. It was a fast fight all the way, and the German sent the Italian to the mat for a two count in the opening round. A short right cross upset Salvatore as they broke from close quarters. Mueller weighed 188¾; Ruggirello, 201¾.

Larry Johnson, colored heavyweight, won by a technical knockout from Larry Creighton of New York in the fifth round of the opener. Creighton, who also is colored and was the sparring mate of Uzcudun, was floored in the first and second rounds. Referee Tommy Gilmore stopped the bout after Creighton was out on his feet. The fifth round was one minute and forty seconds old when the arbiter stepped in between them. Johnson, who weighed 177¾ pounds, is a sparring partner of Griffith. Creighton scaled 188 pounds.

In the second fight Jimmy Lundy of Los Angeles and Gaston Le Cardre of France went six interesting rounds to a draw. Lundy weighed 137½ pounds and his opponent 136¼ pounds.

85,000 to See Army Take On Rockne's Men

who saved any zeal. Neither of these two noted athletes has enjoyed much prosperity this fall, and Cagle, for the honor of his own captaincy, seems likely to disport himself with great vigor this time.

Notre Dame's line may be expected to outplay the Army's line and Notre Dame's running game is the model of which the Army's running game this year has been only a struggling counterfeit, but Mr. Cagle, hobbled and hemmed in all season, still knows how to run in widening circles, clutching the football in his strong, chapped, talons and I expect that he will toss that football for a gross aggregate mileage of something astonishing tomorrow afternoon, pitching for touchdowns and praying for one great victory to adorn his record as captain of the team.

The Army has played three major games thus far this fall and the best the imminent officers have been able to do was tie Harvard.

Yale beat them and so did Illinois and now, in the last game of a generally undistinguished season, the Army comes upon the team liberally recognized as the best in the country with only a psychological advantage and that advantage subject to dispute.

Rockne Not Present.

The Army will play with the reckless daring of a man who is tossing his last fifty dollars into the market after losing a fortune. It won't hurt the cadets to lose this game, but if they win it they will take character as a lost battalion of football.

But the Notre Dame boys are thinking of Knute Rockne, a tough, nervous, worried, high strung, half bald he party with a crumpled nose who bullyrags them and croons over them in season and out at South Bend, and Knute is sick back home. Red Grange tells me a good football team always plays for the coach and this Notre Dame team will take the field in the biting cold at the Yankee stadium well reminded that Knute is bolstered up in bed with both of his wide, flat ears twitching to enfold the minutest syllable

Come In, Mr. Skunk! Traps Are All Set

BY BOB [illegible]KER.

Although amateur [illegible]ppers will find the unbaited "den s[illegible]a good one to [illegible]tch skunks, there are several other ways to snag the animals even though many occupied dens cannot be found in a given area.

Here are a few tricks that we have used in the west while trapping for all kinds of animals, from civet cats (or striped skunks) to moles. We would find an old stump, dig a shallow hole under it and place a No. 1 trap in this hole.

Spring trap with no end springs.

After covering it with dry dirt, we drove the stake to which the trap chain was fastened so far in the ground that it could not be seen and then tossed many scraps of tainted meat around the set. It worked perfectly. On one occasion this set caught a fox. Therefore it pays to prepare the above layout very carefully if you know there are foxes in the country in which you are trapping. Sometimes old Reynard comes snooping around and is caught.

Another stunt is to use bait around hole sets, although the holes do not seem to be occupied. If you see a number of these dens which look old and unoccupied, set steel traps just inside the entrance, fastening each one to a stake or a brush drag.

Skunks traveling about will come along and take a look at these holes. If there is no bait they will merely look in and continue on their way. If you have bait plus a trap the chances are good that you're going to snag one. For bait use chicken scraps, fish, rotten eggs, tainted meat of any kind or even table scraps.

Another location for a skunk trap is any natural enclosure such as a hollow log, a hole in a bank or in a stone wall. Fasten the trap to a small log or brush drag so that the animal can't get very far, but a few scraps of bait around and Mr. Skunk will wander into the trap.

After catching a skunk the next trick is to kill the animal without its spraying everything with its obnoxious scent. The point to remember in this stunt is never to shoot the animal in the head or strike the head. If you do they are certain to throw their scent. Perhaps the quickest method is to shoot the animal in the center of the back with a small rifle. This breaks the back and kills the skunk almost instantly without a discharge of scent.

Shires Is Back! Writing Poetry and Fighting--for Coin

Jim Mullen, veteran fight promoter, seems bent on giving his director of public relations, or press agent, a terrific workout with a fight featuring a champion, Jackie Fields, coming up Monday night at White City. Jim yesterday loaded up his literature department with the additional item that the Great Shires, White Sox first baseman, has been retained to fight on the White City card Dec. 9.

Fields' talents as a professional boxer are well known, and when he meets Billy Light Monday night the fans will know that they may expect some fast fighting, so the lit[illegible] department doesn't have to [illegible]y much about the imminent show.

Shires, though he claims to have won 20 disciplined fights in Texas rings in addition to his two informal finish battles with Lena Blackburne, ex-manager of the White Sox, is something of an unknown quantity, and it will be necessary for the experts to study him carefully before warning the fight fans what they may expect.

C. Arthur has gone into private training at Barry's gym and Sunday will come out into the open. He admits he has a good chance to become the heavyweight champion of the world, and expects to start his Chicago ring career at 190 pounds.

Shires says his appearance in ring togs will be a great attraction in itself as he has persistently turned down entreaties of nationally famous sculptors to pose for them.

ART SHIRES.

Great Arthur's been a chump
And now he's lived to rue it.
Fought fights gratis,
It cost him bucks to do it.

Henceforth when Arthur blacks a eye,
Folks'll pay to see it happen.
The kid's a pugilist now

LITTMAN KNOCKS OUT BUSH IN 3D AT MILWAUKEE

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Tate Littman, Cudahy, Wis., football player, knocked out Chester Bush of New Orleans in the third round in the main event before the Antlers Athletic club tonight. It was Littman's ninth straight knockout.

In the eight round semi-final, Franklin Cheek, the Milwaukee high school featherweight, won a decision over Willie Pelligrini of Chicago.

Gust De Salvo, Italian welterweight, earned a decision over Battling Morris of Duluth in four rounds. Leo Spiegel, in another featherweight event, lost to Tony Grayjack on a foul in the first round.

6 NEW JAI ALAI PLAYERS ARRIVE TO PLAY TONIGHT

Six new jai alai players have arrived in Chicago from Spain, Joaquin, one of the original troupe that started playing here over a year ago, Itturino, Gorospe, Eugenio, Bastido and Rementeria, are now at the local Fronton, Clark at Lawrence and will start their first games tonight.

Al Singer Stops Pete Nebo in 4th Round at New York

Michigan Tank Team Swamps Ft. Wayne, 56-8

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Michigan's conference championship swimming team opened the 1928 season here this evening with a decisive win over Fort Wayne, Ind., Y. M. C. A., by a 56-8 score. The Hoosiers won only a single point in each event, except the diving, in which Powell broke through to take a second place. In the water polo game which followed the meet the Wolverine freshmen team forced the varsity regulars to two extra periods before the veterans were able to break through and score a 7-6 win.

MICHIGAN CITY FIVE WINS.

Michigan City, Ind., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Michigan City High school basketball team defeated Horace Mann of Gary, 20 to 11, here tonight. Michigan City led at the half, 6 to 3.

NORTH DAKOTA AND LOYOLA TO CLASH TODAY

Both Stress Passing Attack.

Two strong back fields working behind two powerful lines clash this afternoon at Loyola field when the Ramblers end their home season against North Dakota before a crowd of 20,000.

Both the Nodaks and the Ramblers have had a successful season, the Hickertails winning the North Central conference title, and the Loyolans losing all of their opponents except [illegible]esne.

The Dakotans have a weight advantage, but the Ramblers may offset this by their running game. Both schools have developed great passers, and the air should be full of footballs.

Les Molloy, Tommy Flynn, and Bob Burke will carry the brunt of the north side attack, both in passing and in carrying the ball. Molloy and Flynn are two of the best ball carriers ever to play at Loyola.

With their heavy forward wall which may prove a tough hurdle for the Loyola backs, the Dakotans are equipped with fast and shifty backs in Jarret, Richmond, Kahl, and Smith. Their full back, Burma, is a terrific line smasher, and House, quarter back, can carry the ball.

Probable lineups:

LOYOLA.		NORTH DAKOTA.
Weimer	L.E.	Felber
Lutzenkirchen	L.T.	A. Smith
Poppelreiter	L.G.	MacMillan
Waesco	C.	Lowe
Faul	R.G.	Mjogdalen
Moran	R.T.	V. Smith
McNeil	R.E.	Berg
Collins	Q.B.	House
Molloy	L.H.	Jarrett
Burke	R.H.	Richmond
Flynn	F.B.	Burma

SOUTH BEND WINS.

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—South Bend High defeated Riley High basketball team, 29 to 9, tonight here.

In the Wake of the News

PREP FOOTBALL.

THE WAKE always regrets that we are not able to view more high school and academy football games during the gridiron season. These contests are spirited and often more interesting from the spectacular viewpoint than the college article.

On Thanksgiving day we saw the annual struggle between Evanston and New Trier, old time rivals, which the Wildkits won, 12 to 0. Neither eleven had been a suburban title contender during the season just ended. It was just a football game, except for the tradition attaching. That tradition attracted 10,000 spectators despite the intense cold and they stayed to the finish, although Evanston's superiority was soon established.

These prep schools had their bands, their cheer leaders, and masses of rooters on opposite sides of the gridiron. They gave complimentary cheers to their rivals and observed all the amenities. Evanston even had an injured hero who had broken a leg in an early game, Tackle Carl Davis, who hobbled on crutches to a seat on the players' bench a la Hank Bruder.

High school teams, in general, are well coached. They know football. It is not as finished as the best college teams, usually better on offense than defense, but it is sound and it is fast. Open field running, perhaps, because of less effective tackling, is more common. Football fans who fail to attend one or two prep games a season are missing something worth seeing.

has done to show it means business in conforming to Western conference regulations. The petition, to be presented to the conference board, will make no reference to alumni interference, because Iowa never has admitted alumni meddling. Paul Belting, who resigned as athletic director before Iowa's suspension, charges that it was the dry grads who demanded President Walter Jessup to ask for his resignation.

Friction between Belting and members of his staff is the reason advanced by the administration for his dismissal.

Campus opinion has it that whatever opposition to Iowa's reinstatement develops at the Chicago meeting will come from Illinois and Chicago. George Huff and A. A. Stagg were the athletic directors, who referred the Iowa situation to the faculty committee last spring.

Lauer Sees Inconsistency.

Mr. Lauer points out that it would be inconsistent for Mr. Huff or Mr. Stagg to lead the movement for Iowa's return. He expresses some doubt, however, that the faculty representatives at Illinois and Chicago will support the attitude of the athletic directors. The shifting of plans whereby Bresnahan was to be director of intercollegiate athletics, a position to which he is qualified by experience and personality, is not admittedly a concession to the Big Ten. This arrangement was abandoned for the efficiency of the department, it is said.

When Lauer became athletic director last July he was told that he would have a director of intercollegiate athletics, a director of intramural athletics and directors of men's and women's physical education under his supervision. Complications soon developed demonstrating the impracticability of the plan.

For instance, suppose the financing of the new stadium was delegated to the man in charge of intramural athletics. It obviously follows that he should arrange the attractions which would enable the department to pay off the indebtedness, whereupon he would be encroaching on the field of the director of intercollegiate athletics.

Sees Advantage in Probe.

The various departments are so closely knitted that Lauer decided to accept the direction in its entirety.

Lauer refuses to view the Pape incident this fall as unfortunate. On the contrary, he thinks it will work to Iowa's advantage. He emphasized that the star half back, whose touchdown in the closing moments beat Minnesota, not only was exonerated of having played professional football in Dubuque but also was cleared by an investigator from Maj. Griffith's office who accompanied Lauer to Dubuque and Galena when the charges were aired.

Iowa investigated all accusations against its football athletes but the only player of consequence who was disqualified was Kelsh, a substitute end. Lauer said he had not completed the probe of the basketball, track and baseball squads.

LOMSKI WINS 10 ROUND DECISION

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 20.—[U.P.]—Leo Lomski, Aberdeen Assassin, won a clean decision in ten rounds tonight from Charley Belanger, Canadian light heavyweight champion, who had scored a surprise victory over him here two weeks ago.

Amateur Boxing

Dick Mastro, flyweight brother of Earl Mastro, has been rematched to fight George Goodman in the windup of the eight amateur bout card tonight at the South Shore Athletic association, 6855 Stony Island avenue. Roosevelt Haines, lightweight champ, will meet Johnny Young, favorite of the north side, in the semi-windup.

FATHER TONDORF, QUAKE EXPERT, DIES AT HIS DESK

Won Fame in 1923 During Japanese Disaster.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Father Francis A. Tondorf, 59, was found dead in his room at Georgetown university today beside a desk on which there were two opened volumes on earth disturbances, a field in which he was one of the recognized authorities of the world.

Father Tondorf, for years director of the university's seismological observatory, suffered from high blood pressure and a heart attack was believed to have caused his death.

Then Earth Began to Quiver.

Assigned to study earthquakes by the Jesuit order as a young man, Father Tondorf continued the work after he had shown particular aptitude at the time of the Japanese earthquake in 1923.

Hours before the cables began to quiver with the news of the catastrophe, Father Tondorf had given the Associated Press the news that there had been strong earth tremors about 6,000 miles from Washington and that Japan probably was near the center of the none. More than twelve hours had passed with no word of the disturbance.

Story of Destruction.

"O, you'll hear from it eventually," Father Tondorf said, "for this one was a whopper."

Within three hours the news began to come from Japan and the story of death and destruction continued for days.

One of the sharpest quakes ever recorded in the United States, Father Tondorf said, was that in Charlestorf, S. C., in 1886, when "the earth billowed like swells in the sea."

CONFESSES SHE AIDED NEIGHBOR SLAY HUSBAND

Durant, Okla., Nov. 29.—(AP)—A love pact in which the mother of three and the father of eight children agreed to kill their spouses was alleged in a confession made to county authorities today by Mrs. Ila Hughes. A murder charge was filed immediately against the woman in connection with the killing of her husband, Will Hughes, last Tuesday night.

Mrs. Hughes, 35, named as her accomplice A. J. Eastep, 38, who lived near her husband's farm in Bryan county, asserting that upon a prearranged signal she lured her husband to a barn, where Eastep clubbed him to death with a motor car spring. Eastep, who is held at the state prison at McAlester, also has been charged with murder.

The statement declared also that Eastep had informed her in October that he would poison his wife and that Mrs. Eastep died three days later. County authorities have ordered the woman's body exhumed and the viscera examined. Officers said Hughes carried $1,500 life insurance and that Eastep had collected $1,000 insurance on his wife's life.

ALICE WASHBURN DIES; ONE OF FIRST SCREEN "COMICS"

In the early part of the century Miss Washburn became identified with the Edison company of New York in the production of photoplays and shared the popularity enjoyed by John Bunny, the best known of the early screen comedians. She retired 15 years ago.

Elmer Decides Friday Evening Is for Dancers

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

From the number of dance orchestras and consequently the multitude of dance numbers on the air these Fridays, it seems that Friday evening is dance evening. There were vocal solos here and there, and even a few programs in semi-serious vein, but these seem to be merely divertissements, interludes, resting moments, for the dancers.

I am willing to concede the evening to those who are fond of dancing. My job is merely to listen and write my impressions. In listening to many of last evening's dance programs, I could not avoid noticing that many of the dance programs, the music of which by its very nature is light in character, has a counterbalance in heavy advertising, and similar popular programs on other evenings are heavily laden with advertising.

The ingenuity with which the advertiser's name and product are repeated over and over again in one sentence without getting hopelessly mixed up is a wonder. Why, some of these word batteries might be likened to advertising bullets shot out into the air in machine gun fashion and with machine gun rapidity.

Maybe this should go with popular programs; I'll presume not to know. I think I should leave that to the dancers.

Anyhow, it was somewhat of a relief when Quin Ryan, W-G-N, 10 to 10:10, began reading the high lights of "Tomorrow's Tribune." It is easy to imagine how these concise news items are received at distant points.

Outside stations came in with tremendous strength last evening. WGY, Schenectady, came a-roaring. WHAS, Louisville; KDKA, Pittsburgh, and WTAM, Louisville, were heard announcing their call letters at 11 o'clock.

David E. Birkhoff, Former Chicagoan, Dies in Madison

David E. Birkhoff, 37 years old, a former Chicagoan, part owner of the Morrison photographic studios in Chicago, Milwaukee, and Detroit, and proprietor of the De Longe studio at Madison, died yesterday at Madison after a two weeks' illness of pneumonia. MRS. F. W. PENFIELD TELLS EVANSTON THING OR TWO

Mrs. Frederick W. Penfield of Glencoe, wife of a former Cook county commissioner and zoning expert, submitted to arrest for failing to observe a stop light in Evanston yesterday afternoon and was fined $2 and costs after a lengthy discussion bearing on the traffic system of the suburb and the excellency of her own driving.

Mrs. Penfield was arrested by Patrolman Pete Hansen after she failed to come to a stop at Orrington avenue and Central street. She protested, but went to the station where the desk sergeant asked her name.

"Mrs. Frederick W. Penfield, 88 Lakewood drive, Glencoe, and you might add that I'm the most conservative driver on the north shore," he was told. There was more argument and finally she signified her wish to go before Justice of the Peace H. H. Porter and have her case tried so that she might keep a "very important engagement."

Before the bench Mrs. Penfield entered into a highly detailed explanation of the pains she took in operating her car and suggested that Evanston must be "hard up for arrests." Justice Porter assured her he had had eighteen traffic offenders before him already during the day and predicted 4,000 as the yearly total. Mrs. Penfield paid her fine and left.

EVANSTON AGAIN TURNS TO BANKS IN TAX DILEMMA

The Evanston banks will be requested to continue carrying the financial obligations of the government of that city for some months until there is a prospect of taxes for 1928 being collected, Corporation Counsel William Lester of Evanston said yesterday.

Tax anticipation warrants to the amount of $300,000, which are bearing 5 per cent interest, are now held by the six Evanston banks, Mr. Lester revealed. He said the town probably has enough money to get along until about Jan. 1. The tax warrants mature on Jan. 7, 1930, but with the tax collecting situation still unsettled, Mr. Lester said that the city could not meet this obligation. He said he expected to discuss the situation with the heads of the banks early next week.

DISCOVER BODIES OF MOTHER AND 2 LITTLE GIRLS

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—The headless bodies of a woman and her two young daughters were found today in a cañon near San Fernando. They had been dug from their shallow graves by animals roaming the sparsely settled region.

They were identified as the bodies of Mrs. Helene Alvarez-Garcia and her two children, Elisa, 6 years old, and Carmelita, 12 years old. They were found close to the spot where Thanksgiving picnickers came upon the mutilated remains of Charles Alvarez, 18 year old son of the woman. The four disappeared from their home in San Fernando on last Oct. 8.

Police are seeking Luciano Garcia, husband and stepfather, who disappeared from San Fernando on Oct. 10.

HEARING FOR GIRLS' ASSAILANT.

Morgan Gibson, the ex-marine who seriously wounded Florence and Mabelle Kohl in a jealous rage in their apartment in the Bell-Shore hotel, 1062 Bryn Mawr avenue, will be arraigned tomorrow on two charges of assault to commit murder. At the Edgewater hospital the sisters were reported to be improving.

JOHN M. FLYNN, VETERAN TRIBUNE PRINTER, IS DEAD

John M. Flynn, pensioned member of THE TRIBUNE composing room staff, died on Thursday evening at the age of 70. "Jackie," as he was affectionately called, joined THE TRIBUNE composing room force in 1875. For several years previous to that he had been an office boy. Only one member of THE TRIBUNE composing room force whose period antedates that of Mr. Flynn is still in THE TRIBUNE'S service. Mr. Flynn for years was in charge of making up the financial pages. Two children survive him, Mrs. Estelle Metz and Charles J. Flynn, who is copycutter in THE TRIBUNE composing room. The funeral will be held on Monday from the chapel at 1138 West 87th street, to St. Killian's church, where solemn requiem high mass will be celebrated at 10 a. m. Burial at Mount Olivet.

"JACKIE" FLYNN.

Dallas L. Sharp, Noted as Nature Writer, Dies

Boston, Mass., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Dallas Lore Sharp, author, retired minister, and professor of English at Boston university until 1922, died today after a long illness at his home on Mullein Hill, Hingham. His wife and son, Morrison, were at his bedside. The naturalist whom John Burroughs classed as "probably the greatest nature writer America owns" came into political prominence in 1922 as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States senate.

BOY HUNTER IS SHOT BY PAL; MAY DIE OF WOUND

Harold Grigolige, 16 year old high school student of 8916 Union avenue, was wounded yesterday when he was shot accidentally by a boy companion with whom he was hunting rabbits on a prairie at 93d street and Genoa avenue. Edwin Nyden, 16, 8730 Morgan street, Grigolige's companion, stumbled and his .22 caliber rifle was discharged. The bullet entered at the base of Grigolige's spine, and according to physicians at the Auburn Park hospital the youth has only a slight chance for recovery. The boys are classmates at the Westcott Junior High school.

William Keenan, 23 Years on City Police Force, Dies

William Keenan, 54 years old, 4531 North Troy street, a policeman attached to the North Robey street station, died yesterday at the Swedish Covenant hospital of an intestinal disorder. He had been a member of the police force for 23 years. He is survived by his widow; two sons, John and Thomas; one daughter, Loretta; a brother, Lieut. Thomas Keenan of the North Robey Street station, and a sister, Sister Mary Chotile, a nun of the Order of the Sisters of Mercy. Funeral services will be held at 9:30 a. m. Monday at Our Lady of Mercy church, with burial at Mount Carmel cemetery.

Mrs. Lillian Kohlhammer Dies at Villa in Italy

Mrs. Lillian G. Kohlhammer, 40 years old, widow of Robert W. Kohlhammer, who was a member of the Chicago Board of Trade for 30 years, died on Thursday at her villa, "La Vetta," near Setignano, Italy. Mrs. Kohlhammer, who formerly lived at 561 Surf street, had lived in Europe since the death of her husband in 1920.

FATE OF CUNEO TOWER PLAN IN JUDGE'S HANDS

Chief Justice Taylor of the Circuit court yesterday took under advisement his decision in the certiorari proceedings brought by three neighboring property owners seeking revocation of the building permit for the proposed John F. Cuneo tower at Michigan avenue and Randolph street. The case was opened Nov. 4 and has required 18 days for testimony and argument by attorneys.

The property owners, through Attorneys Joseph B. Fleming, Clay Judson, and Lester Falk, contended that the amendment to the zoning laws under which Cuneo won the right to build to a height of 633 feet, including the tower of the building, is unconstitutional in that it is special and discriminatory legislation. Mr. Cuneo's attorneys, David Levinson, John G. Campbell, Carlton L. Fischer, and Barnet Hodes, author of the amendment, argued that the increased 176 feet in height is justifiable by virtue of the special position of the property, overlooking Grant park and fronting on three streets.

DEATH NOTICES

In Memoriam.

ISAACSON—Fannie Yetta Isaacson. In loving memory of our adored mother, who passed through the gate called death one year ago today.

O, how we miss her words cannot tell,
Her bright, happy face that we loved so well.
God took her home; it was His will,
But in our hearts she is with us still.
Time may heal, but it never can mend,
For our hearts will be broken until the end.
And of the load you helped us carry,
Always patient, true, and kind.
But everything shall be, for God's will must be done.

What a beautiful memory she left behind.

EXPORT SELLING INFLUENCES RISE IN WHEAT PRICES

Values Keep on Upgrade; Gain 2 5-8 to 3 1-4c.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Foreigners are regarded as having overstayed their market as far as supplies of wheat are concerned, and with the rapid reduction in estimates on the Argentine crop have turned to North America for the cash grain.

Export sales of 3,500,000 to 4,000,000 bu were estimated as having been made in the last two days, including around 2,500,000 bu hard winter, durums and white winter, and the removal of hedges against this grain combined with the purchase of 500,000 bu Argentine wheat in store in Liverpool for shipment to Germany kept values on the upgrade with the finish about the top with net gains of 2⅝@3¼c. Winnipeg was stronger than Chicago and 3¼@3⅝c higher, compared with Wednesday, while both Buenos Aires and Rosario were 2⅛@2⅛c higher.

A big trade was on in wheat futures here, with longs selling December freely and buying May, while cash interests did the reverse at 11⅜@11⅜c difference, the widest spread of the season. Immense realizing sales in the May delivery were steadily absorbed by commission houses, and the market failed to show any tendency to react from bulges.

Lower Argentine Estimates.

Predictions made earlier in the month by the department of agriculture that the price of wheat would advance 10@15c per bu from the level then prevailing have practically been made good in three weeks, due mainly to an advance in the cash grain as compared with futures, the basis at the gulf being up around 8c in the last 10 days. Despite the advance there has been no evidence of a falling off in the foreign demand, which has created a strong bullish sentiment, and had it not been for the steady liquidation in the December delivery the market might have given a better account of itself. The trade looks for a fairly liberal reduction to be shown in the visible supply Monday.

Argentine crop estimates are being steadily lower, with Murray now looking for slightly less than 200,000,000 bu, against 325,000,000 bu last year, but owing to the poorer quality he places the exportable surplus at only 110,000,000 bu. One private cable placed the crop at 145,000,000 bu, and another said that in parts of the province of Buenos Aires wheat that looked good for 15 bu or more per acre two weeks ago was in some instances not worth cutting at the present time owing to rust damage. R. O. Cromwell estimated the crop at 207,000,000 bu for all provinces.

Foreigners were free buyers of wheat futures here early, and that market was 2¼@2½d higher than Wednesday's finish.

Cash Corn Basis Lower.

Corn market showed an easier undertone, although the finish was ¼@⅝c higher, due to sympathy with wheat. There was more pressure on the December than on the deferred deliveries, due to a decline of ½@2c in the spot basis which put the new No. 3 grades about on a delivery basis. Colder weather failed to increase country offerings to arrive to any great extent, while the shipping demand was slower with sales of 72,000 bu. Buenos Aires closed ¼c higher to ⅛c lower as compared with Wednesday.

Live stock sold readily at higher prices under brisk competition yesterday following the Thanksgiving holiday. Fancy steers sorted from show stock reached a peak of $16.50, highest in more than six weeks.

The hog average at $9.25 was within 5c of the highest since Oct. 25, while lamb prices were only 10c under the highest point this month

Show Opens Today.

The culling of stock fed for the International Live Stock show, which opens today, dumped hundreds of steers and yearlings in prime condition on the open market yesterday, accounting for the high level of the extreme top and bulk of sales. About 200, averaging 970@1,176 lbs, sold at $16.00 and above, with one load averaging 1,176 lbs at $1.650.

A week ago yesterday only regular "market" cattle were available and the top stopped at $14.75. Medium and weighty steers showed the least strength, although prime 1,456 lb steers rejected from the show brought $15.50, highest of the week for the weight. Cows and heifers were unchanged, showing 50c loss for the week. Calves were steady, but show gains of 50@75c for the week. Lightweight stockers and feeders were strong to 25c higher.

Some of the largest shipping orders of the season were filled in the hog market yesterday at 15@25c higher prices, the bulk of the supply of better grades changing hands soon after the opening. The extreme top and general average prices moved up 20c at $9.50 and $9.25 respectively, comparing with a top of $9.15 and average of $8.95 last Tuesday, the low spot of the season.

Outsiders bought about 9,000, the second largest number for Friday since early in the year and 40 per cent of the available supply after directs had been deducted from the supply. Larger houses refused to follow at the full strength, being well supplied with 13,000 directs brought in mostly from country points. However, only 4,000 were left at the close.

Light Lambs at $13.40.

Activity featured the lamb market yesterday at stronger prices, some sales showing 10@15c advance, considering weight and quality. About 60 per cent of offerings consisted of fed westerns, and, with weights heaviest of the season, buyers scrambled for desirable lambs averaging less than 90 lbs.

Fancy lightweights to city butchers brought $13.40, with packers paying upward to $13.25. Bulk of 85@95 lb averages sold at $12.50@13.00, some prime 99 lb averages as high as $12.75. Aged and yearling sheep showed little change. Feeders were slow and unchanged, some good grades selling at $12.25.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 300 cattle, 7,000 hogs, and 1,000 sheep, against 520 cattle, 12,837 hogs, and 686 sheep the previous Saturday and 386 cattle, 7,960 hogs, and 2,021 sheep a year ago.

PACKERS BUY DEC. LARD

Packers bought December lard yesterday from tired longs and sold May. There was also changing from December to January and May by commission houses. The near futures were unchanged, with the deferred 12¼@15c lower at the inside figures of the day. The trade is looking for fair deliveries and a good decrease in stocks in Monday's returns. Liverpool lard was unchanged to 6d lower. Export clearances, 416,889 lbs.

Bellies were offered sparingly, with prices 2¼@25c higher except for May, which was unchanged. Hog prices were sharply higher and grades were all higher, but the market for product was a disappointment to holders.

Hog receipts at western points were larger than a week ago and smaller than last year. Prices follow:

FIND BUSINESS BENEFITS FROM FLOW OF CREDIT

Brokers' Loans Drop 137 Millions More.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Further evidence that general business is being helped by the flow of credit from the stock market to trade channels is contained in reports on brokers' loans and the condition of the Federal reserve system issued by the reserve board yesterday. It is evident that trade and industry are taking advantage of easier interest rates to push improvement plans that were delayed while money rates were high.

An additional $137,000,000 has been rounded out of brokers' loans in the last week, bringing the current total down to $3,450,000,000. This makes the eighth consecutive week in which such loans have declined and in this period the total shrinkage has been $3,154,000,000 from the peak figure of $4,304,000,000 established on Oct. 2. Thus, the decline since the stock market collapse began is nearly 50 per cent.

Not only are loans now $1,840,000,000 lower than a year ago, but they are also below the level of two years ago.

Banks Reduce Loans.

Banks, corporations, and individual lenders of stock market funds now have about $1,840,000,000 more than a year ago to devote to other purposes. The detail of the brokers' loan statement shows that the New York banks reduced their own loans $22,000,000 in the last week and now are lending $404,000,000 less than a year ago.

The interior banks cut down their loans by $86,000,000 and are furnishing $1,120,000,000 less than a year ago. Other lenders withdrew $49,000,000 and now are furnishing $305,000,000 less than a year ago.

In spite of the reduced amount of credit being furnished for speculation, the member banks of the reserve system increased their borrowings from the reserve banks by $12,791,000, bringing total borrowings up to $912,-[illegible]. But the reserve banks reduced their holdings of bankers' acceptances by $26,516,000 and made little change in their investment in government obligations. Deposits dropped $125,576,000, but note circulation increased $5,191,000.

Gold and total reserves declined $54,-[illegible] and $61,008,000, respectively. But the ratio of reserves to liabilities rose to 71.8 per cent, compared with 71.2 per cent last week.

Gold exports for the week from New York totaled $6,200,000, com-

Employment Flexibility Is Boon to U.S.

BY SCRUTATOR.

The most dependable statistics on employment and wages paid are collected from manufacturing firms. Difficulty is often found in bringing the figures to a point representative of the whole population because manufacturing, relatively, absorbs the efforts of so small a proportion of the whole mass of workers.

As an example, the automobile industry could be used. The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce furnishes a statement that 3,956,138 are directly employed in the industry, which could be estimated as about 8 per cent of the whole number of persons in the United States engaged in gainful pursuits.

Of these nearly four million persons, less than 850,000 are in strictly factory work. In the motor vehicle factories, it is reported, 402,000 are employed; in parts and accessory manufacture, 200,000; in gasoline refineries and oil production, 150,000, and in tire factories, 96,000.

Allied Occupations.

On the other side of the picture the chamber gives the number making a living as drivers at 1,500,000, and of the professional chauffeurs as 635,-000. Motor vehicle dealers and salesmen are put at 365,000; repair shop employés at 300,000; dealers in supplies, tires and parts and their salesmen at 160,000; garage employés at 128,000, and persons dealing in financing and insurance of motor vehicles at 20,000.

This does not complete the tally. There are many thousands more whose livelihood depends on conditions that are created by the automobile and the desire to ride in it. Without the vehicle the roadside lunch stand, the tourist accommodation, and much of the road building would be unnecessary.

It requires nearly three times as many persons to service and keep our automobiles running as it does to make them. Theoretically it would be possible for the factories to cut their working forces by a quarter or even by a half without cutting down for a short period the total amount of spending in the country.

Pyramiding of Workers.

The pyramided workers on top of the manufacturing might even have a greater gross income if it is assumed that conditions make it possible for the laid off workers to go on tours. Fairly good weather, the possession of cars by the laid off and also savings sufficient to defray the cost would be needed.

Further, it is possible that a lessening in new car production and sales, which means a running of old ones, may increase the requirements for labor on repairs, while the use of inefficient, outworn engines may also mean a somewhat greater consumption of gasoline and oil than if the engines were new.

In the end such wastes would become unendurable, but they might well have a stabilizing effect for a brief period of lessened factory production.

The point to be made is that every industry, as we classify industries, has a multitude of groups working at it, from the farmer or the miner who furnishes the raw materials, through the manufacturing plant and distribution and financing and servicing, and that a break at any one point does not mean that all must suffer severely.

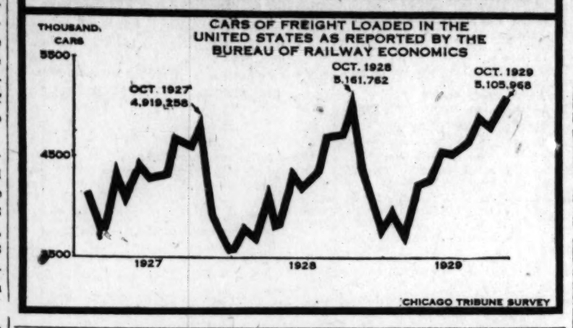
Value of Flexibility.

This flexibility in the scheme has its value. In October, according to the federal reserve board's figures, department store sales in 229 cities were 3 per cent larger than they were in the same month a year before. Yet automobile production and sales has declined.

It would not be possible for the country to prosper long if factory employment fell off considerably. But some branches of industry do go along and act as balance wheels to even the flow of trade.

An accurate understanding of this will not be possible until statistics are gathered on such occupations as they are gathered now in factories.

OCTOBER FREIGHT LOADINGS WERE NEARLY EQUAL TO LAST YEAR'S RECORD



VARIOUS CONCERNS PLAN MILLIONS FOR 1930 IMPROVEMENTS

Proposed expenditures for new construction next year totaling several hundred million dollars were announced by several industrial and railroad companies yesterday.

Companies whose operations are supervised by the Electric Bond and Share company have estimated their expenditures at $125,400,000. The Aluminum Company of America has a budget of $50,000,000, an increase of $17,000,000 over the current year. However, only $15,000,000 of this year's budget will have been used, leaving the balance to be carried over.

The Pacific Gas and Electric company will spend a record total of about $40,000,000. The Otis Steel company directors approved a $10,000,000 expansion program, which will be started as soon as possible.

The budget of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific calls for an expenditure of $23,000,000, according to President H. A. Scandrett. About $15,000,000 will go for improvements and $8,000,000 for new equipment. The Norfolk and Western will devote about $15,000,000 to improvements and equipment, according to President Arthur C. Needles. The Grand Trunk Western plans to issue $4,238,000 equipment trust certificates to help finance the purchase of 2,000 freight cars and 15 locomotives, while the Central Vermont plans a $1,849,000 issue to finance the purchase of 1,000 automobile box cars.

Province of Ontario to Float $30,000,000 Issue

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 29.—The Province of Ontario announced today that bids will be opened on Dec. 4 on a new issue of $30,000,000 provincial bonds.

Approve Merger of Hocking Valley Line with C. & O. Ry.

Columbus, O., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Merger of the Hocking Valley railroad with the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad was approved by 95 per cent of the stockholders of the Hocking Valley company at a special meeting here today.

A resolution providing for sale of the railroad properties, rights, privileges, and franchises to the C. & O, subject to approval of the interstate commerce commission, was adopted.

Step in Unification.

The merger is another step in the plans of the Van Sweringen interests to unity their railroad holdings. If approved the Chesapeake and Ohio will have an uninterrupted run from the tidewater at Newport News, Va., to Lake Erie, at Toledo, where it can join with the Pere Marquette, another Van Sweringen road.

Directors of the two railroads already have approved the merger plans and this was the first of two stockholders' meetings to consider the proposition. The stockholders of the Chesapeake and Ohio will met Dec. 3 to pass on a similar resolution.

At a meeting of directors in Cleveland Oct. 16 the Chesapeake and Ohio voted to increase its common capital stock from $180,000,000 to $300,000,000 to provide funds for the purchase of Hocking Valley stocks at the ratio of two and one-half shares of Chesapeake and Ohio stock for one of Hocking.

Will Lose Identity.

Under the proposed consolidation the Hocking Valley will lose its identity in railroad circles. Both railroads are widely known as heavy haulers of coal from the fields in Ohio, West Virginia, and Kentucky.

Petitions for authority to merge the roads have been filed with the interstate commerce commission, but have not yet been passed upon. Both lines are controlled by the Van Sweringen interests and the unification, it was pointed out, would simplify operations.

CANADIAN NATL. PLANS FINANCIAL UNIT OF 90 ROADS

LONDON, Nov. 29.—[U. P.]—Plans for amalgamation of ninety independent railroad companies, which are presently under only administrative control of the Canadian National railways, into a single corporate financial unit, were revealed today by Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National railways.

It was understood the present paper capitalization of the companies totals $2,000,000,000.

Thornton said the purpose of his visit to London was to initiate discussion of the amalgamation plan after which, if it seems favorable, he will push negotiations to permit action as soon as possible. He said the amalgamation is desirable both for the Canadian government and the holders of securities of individual companies.

Atwater Kent Radio Output Jumps 100% in 3 Weeks

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 29.—[Special.]—Announcement is made by the Atwater Kent Manufacturing company of a 100 per cent increase in radio production in the last three weeks. The demand from its distributors throughout the country in the last three weeks has necessitated a doubling of its production and a resultant increase in the number of factory employés.

Berlin Municipality Accepts $5,000,000 Loan

Berlin, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The Berlin municipality has accepted the $5,000,000 loan of Dillon, Read & Co., New York bankers, subject to approval by the federal loan commission. The loan is made for one year at 7½ per cent. The loan, which will serve as consolidation for short term debts, will probably be liquidated from the proceeds of a larged loan proposed for next year

CITY OF N. Y. TO INCREASE SIZE OF BOND ISSUE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 29.—The city of New York will be in the market on Dec. 11 with a new issue of $65,000,000 long term serial bonds and corporate stock instead of $60,000,000 as was originally planned, according to an announcement made today at the offices of Controller Berry.

Late in October the controller announced the $60,000,000 issue would be sold on Oct. 30, but with the upset in the stock market immediately following the sale was called off.

The new issue will consist of $38,-000,000 of serial bonds and $27,000,000 of corporate stock. Of the bonds, $36,-000,000 will mature serially from Dec. 1, 1930, to 1969, and will be issued for school purposes, and $2,000,000 will mature serially from Dec. 1, 1930, to 1979, issued for the following purposes: $10,-000,000 water, $7,000,000 dock, $7,000,-000 rapid transit, and $3,000,000 for various purposes.

WALL ST. SUMS UP LOSSES DUE TO STOCK CRASH

Traders Keep Eye on Foreign Exchange.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 29. — Brokerage house forces found plenty to keep them busy today despite the fact that the stock and surb exchanges remained closed for the rest of the week. There were monthly statements to compile, customers' accounts to adjust, and preparations to be made for "full steam ahead" next week when five hour trading sessions with the regular half day on Saturday will be resumed.

Statisticians of different concerns find time to further cast up accounts on the market's rather zig-zag course throughout the month now closing and find more definitely where "we're at."

To their surprise some of them found no single group of the list showed a gain for the four weeks despite the fact that advances of from 10 to 40 points were made by the main body of stocks during the closing days of the month.

Cites Firm's Valuations.

One concern's "average" list of 225 representative issues was found to have lost a total of some $6,055,521,000 in open market valuation during the month—on top of the ten billion dollars loss registered in October. But for the six or seven days' rally toward the last this month's depreciation might have approximated $15,000,000.

November's declines have run the market losses for the last three months up to more than $20,000,000,000.

Only eight individual stocks of the entire stock exchange list showed any gain at all on November's trading activities. Two of these were in the railway equipment group, namely, American Locomotive and General Railway Signal. The other gains were scattered, including Case, Freeport Texas, American Home Products, Barnet Leather, International Combustion, and American Safety Razor.

Public utilities were the heaviest sufferers of any group during the month. Shares of this division depreciated more than a billion dollars in the four weeks, compared with a three billion loss in October. Of the total loss American Telephone and Telegraph Columbia Gas and Electric, Consolidated Gas, International Telephone and Telegraph, and North American company accounted for some $800,000,000.

Mining Shares Hit.

Mining shares came next in the line, the twelve stocks which make up this group declining approximately $700,000,000. Anaconda, Kennecott and International Nickel lost together $500,000,000 of their total here.

Railroad shares depreciated $580,000,000; the motors, $576,000,000, and the oils, $364,146,928 during the month.

During the seventeen days on which the stock exchange was open for trading in November there were but four regular five hour sessions. On all of the other thirteen days the stock exchange was closed at 1 o'clock. In all there were but fifty-nine trading hours in the month.

The situation in the stock market may not be entirely normal during the final month of the year, for the reason that prevailing conditions are strongly in contrast with those ruling at this time during the last few years. Under prevailing conditions, with the market having been severely liquidated, there will be much greater occasion for selling to establish "losses for tax purposes" than was the case at any time in the last four or five years.

Such selling may be expected to play a considerable part in directing price movements during the new month, but as one trader remarked while discussing the new schedule, "the market has already established all the losses I care to take into account so far as 1929 taxes are concerned."

Watch Foreign Exchange.

With local and London bankers discussing the prospects for gold exports from New York, the foreign exchange market was watched closely today as activities were resumed there after yesterday's bank holiday.

Sterling and other leading European currencies were in fairly brisk demand, showing some measure of strength particularly where rates rule close to the gold point. French and Belgian francs were a shade higher, and Swiss francs, which were watched with particular interest because of London's intimations that we might ship gold in that direction early, also were notably strong, along with Dutch guilders.

Standard Oil of Kansas.

E. C. L.—After reporting net profit for the first six months of 1929 substantially greater than net profit for the full year of 1928, Standard Oil Company of Kansas recently announced the resumption of dividends on its $25 par stock. The directors have declared quarterly dividends of 50 cents per share and extra dividend of 25 cents a share, both payable Dec. 16, 1929, to stock of record Nov. 30, 1929. The last previous dividend paid was 50 cents a share on June 16, 1924.

For the six months ended June 30, 1929, the company reported sales of $3,897,953 and net profit of $459,939, equivalent to $1.44 per share earned on 320,000 shares.

Net profit for the year ended December 31, 1928, was $292,227, equivalent to 91 cents per share earned on the capital stock. This compares with a deficit of $827,757 in 1927, net profit of $163,203 in 1926, and net profit of $494,296 in 1925. In 1923 and 1924 deficits were reported.

At the close of 1928 current assets were $5,349,848 and current liabilities were $728,624, leaving a net working capital of $4,621,224, which compares with $3,915,613 at the close of 1927. As of June 30, 1929, surplus was $561,347, compared with $101,407 on Dec. 31, 1928.

The company was incorporated in 1892 in Kansas and is engaged in the manufacture of gasoline and naphthas, refined oils, fuel oils, and petroleum coke. It owns and operates a refinery at Neodesha, Kas., which is capable of running 15,000 barrels of crude oil daily.

The company recently announced that it had entered the production end of the oil business and had acquired control of Tulsa Oil company of Tulsa, Okla. It was also announced that directors were considering plans to expand marketing facilities into northern Oklahoma and Missouri, involving the acquisition of many service and bulk stations.

The capital stock is medium grade and somewhat speculative at present.

Weston Electrical Instrument.

T. L. M.—Weston Electrical Instrument corporation reported net profit after federal taxes amounting to $461,922 for the six months ended June 30, 1929. This was equivalent to $2.49 per share earned on 65,000 class "A" shares and $1.95 per share on 150,000 class "B" shares. Net profit for the first half of 1928 was $246,611, equivalent to $1.43 per share on 75,000 class "A" shares and 93 cents per share on 150,000 class "B" shares.

Net profit for the June quarter alone was $232,244, against $129,292 in the like quarter of 1928.

As of June 30, 1929, current assets were $2,351,260 and current liabilities were $256,490. Profit and loss surplus amounted to $1,447,732.

For the year ended Dec. 31, 1928, the company reported net income available for dividends amounting to $617,923, against $486,402 in 1927 and $666,553 in 1926.

Columbia Gas and Electric.

A. C. F.—Columbia Gas and Electric corporation 5 per cent debentures, due May 1, 1952, are a direct obligation of the corporation, but are not secured by mortgage.

The indenture under which they are issued provides that the corporation shall not mortgage or pledge any shares of stocks of subsidiaries now owned or hereafter acquired or any fixed property which may be hereafter acquired without securing this issue equally and ratably therewith.

Earnings applicable to interest charges on this issue in the three years ended Dec. 31, 1928, averaged 10.3 times interest charges.

pared with imports of only $1,110,000, and there was an increase of $4,004,000 in gold earmarked for foreign account. Most of the exported gold went to France, while the imported metal came from South America.

Chicago Borrowings Rise.

Neither the New York nor Chicago reserve banks made any change in their 4½ per cent rediscount rates. At New York member bank borrowings increased $3,037,000 to a total of $128,977,000. The reserve bank made little change in its holdings of bankers' acceptances. Deposits dropped $130,495,000. Reserves fell $134,890,000 and the reserve ratio declined to 79.3, compared with 80.3 per cent a week ago.

At Chicago member bank borrowings rose $36,624,000 to a total of $165,997,000, with the city banks increasing their borrowings by $34,000,000. The reserve bank reduced its bankers' acceptances by $6,320,000. Deposits receded $4,169,000. Reserves declined $26,796,000 and the reserve ratio fell to 68.8 per cent, compared with 72.8 per cent last week.

Trade was good last month, according to the monthly report of the federal reserve board.

"Wholesale distribution increased during October by somewhat more than is usual at this season, according to reports from firms in eight lines of trade," the board says. "Sales were 2.7 per cent larger than for the corresponding month in 1928.

BUTTER AND EGGS HIGHER

Cold weather brought a strong bullish demonstration on the Chicago Mercantile exchange, with all butter and egg contracts scoring good advances. The upturn in butter was in the face of four market figures that showed withdrawals of 5,000,000 pounds, as against 768,504 a year ago. December butter spurted $96 a car, January jumped $72 a car, and February, moving within a more narrow range, added $24 a car to its quotation. Sales were 140 cars and receipts were 8,222 tubs. Eggs started ¾c or $90 a car higher, and the November future, which passed out of existence at 11 a. m., held the gain to the finish. Profit taking reduced moderately the December price level, however, and the finish was $75 a car higher. Sales were 224 cars and receipts were 2,558 cases. Prices follow:
